Democrats Sue GOP

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The Democrats have filed a $1 million damage suit against the committee to re-elect President Nixon and five men accused of breaking into the Democratic party headquarters.

Lawrence O'Brien, Democratic national chairman, filed the suit citing civil rights laws on voting rights, invasion of privacy and the right for protection against wire tapping.

The suit named the committee, headed by former attorney-general John Mitchell, together with five men apprehended in the Democrat offices including James McCord, a security officer for the Republic committee.

In Miami, meanwhile, secret service agents broke up a counterfeit ring's plan to flood the Democratic convention next month with $400,000 worth of bogus $10 and $20 bills.

The officers seized nearly $400,000 in counterfeit money, photographic plates and other parapehernalia used to print, dye and cut it. Five men have been arrested in connection with the bogus money plan.

Secret service supervisor Bob Newbrand said today: "Thank goodness we caught them before the convention."

O'Brien told a Washington news conference this morning "that as far as I am conserned, there is certainly in every sense a clear line (in the alleged wire tapping incident) to the committee to re-elect President Nixon and therein developing a clear line to the White House."

The other four men named in the suit and arrested along with McCord are Bernard Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Frank Sturgis and Virgilio Gonzales. All are now in jail.

A consultant to White House special counsel Charles Colson is listed in the address books of two of the five men arrested in the alleged bugging attempt.

Federal sources close to the investigation said the address books contain the name and home telephone number of Howard E. Hunt with the notations, "W. White" and W.H.

Hunt worked for the Central Intelligence Agency from 1949 to 1970. All five suspects have had links to the CIA.

In other developments:

It was reported that one of the five suspects, Martinez, contacted University of Miami officials two weeks ago seeking housing for about 3,000 Young Republicans during the Republican national convention.

Former CIA employee and FBI agent McCord, the suspect who works for the Republicans as a security co-ordinator, served

Price, Wage Curbs Likely Rejected

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The Prices and Incomes Commission today issued a report, indicating that the government has decided against imposing wage and price controls to combat inflation.

The commission, in a final report before its terms of reference expire at the end of this month, said that the curbs might have worked — but only if they had been solidly supported by public opinion and government determination.

The fact that the commission is being disbanded is, in itself, a clue as to intended government action.

Should the Trudeau government have intended to impose the controls, it would have kept chairman John Young and his band of commissioners at work enforcing the legislation.

As it is, the commission is to be replaced by a small band of civil servants.

MAIN THEME

Main theme of the report tabled in the Commons today by Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford is a simple one: Canadians will just have to learn to live with inflation.

The commission noted that in 1969 it had attempted to get a national consensus in support of voluntary price and income restraints but met with only partial success.

It also pointed out that programs of regional economic expansion, manpower retraining and similar schemes might reduce the degree of unemployment and increase supply of goods and services to ease the pressure on rising prices.

However, programs of this nature were still in the experimental stage, the report added, "and it is too early to judge with certainty what can be accomplished."

CRITICAL RANGE

Moreover, it warned, "the possibility of increasingly-severe inflation will remain if the public and their elected representatives take an over-enthusiastic view of the extent to which this critical range of unemployment has been reduced."

The commission said that it does not believe powerful labor unions and big business can continue to push up costs and prices regardless of the amount of demand pressure or slack in the economy.

Temporary controls, it pointed out, could work effectively and then be phased out with a minimum risk of renewed inflation if only two essential conditions are met:

First, the public must be convinced they are necessary and must trust their government.

Second, the government must demonstrate a capacity to maintain price and cost stability.

'I'M A JUNKIE' SAYS ROBBER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A knife-wielding bandit hijacked a milk truck Monday and robbed the driver of $70.

Peter Brennan told police his delivery run was interrupted when the man jumped aboard, put a knife to his throat and ordered him to drive down an alley.

"I don't want to take your money, but I have to because I'm a junkie," his unwanted passenger told him.

Brennan said the bandit jumped off after relieving him of $70 in company receipts.

U.S. Rejects Spill Request

OTTAWA (UPI) — The U.S. government has rejected a Canadian request to refer the question of oil spills on the high seas to the International Joint Commission, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday.

Sharp told the House of Commons he was "disappointed that the United States has rejected Canadian proposals to refer these problems to the IJC."

Instead, he said, the U.S. authorities had suggested the Environment Minister Jack Davis meet Russell Train, the chairman of the Council of Environmental Problems.

Canada had been pushing for the United States to support the reference to the IJC for some time. Sharp said letters were sent to the United States government on May 4 and May 19.

B.C. Liberal leader David Anderson, who as Esquimalt-Saanich MP has fought long and hard over the tanker issue, said today Canadian officials should have realized that Washington would never refer as important an issue as that to the IJC.

"There is no way the Americans would refer a security issue to something like the IJC, which has 50 per cent Canadian membership," he said.

WISHFUL

Hopes of such a thing happening, he said, are "wishful and pious."

Also in Victoria, a joint meeting on oil spill problems decided Monday a "memorandum of co-operation" on spills will be drafted and presented to the governments of British Columbia and Washington State.

According to a press release following the meeting, the memorandum will cover the need for full co-operation in developing programs to combat oil spills and the need to exchange "all relevant information."

SOCRED DEFECTS

Another Social Credit party member has defected to the Conservatives.

Stan Pavils, secretary and fifth vice-president of the South Peace River Social Credit Constituency, announced his resignation Monday, saying problems in the local agricultural industry must be taken before the government by men who "are dedicated rather than adept at politics."

CITY IWA MEN BACK ON JOB

Between 300 and 400 workers at B.C. Forest Products plywood mill on Gorge Road returned to work today.

The mill closed Monday when pickets appeared. But there were no pickets this morning and the day shift went to work, company and union officials said.

Elsewhere on southern Vancouver Island, about 1,000 workers were on strike while another 1,000 were on the job.

Officials of Local 1-118, International Woodworkers of America, said B.C. Forest Products, Van Isle Moulding and Moore Whittington were working but Sooke Forest Products, Victoria Plywood, Plumper Bay Sawmill, Butler Brother Logging and CPS-Rayonier logging were closed.

About 11,000 coast loggers and millworkers have gone on strike since the master contract expired last Wednesday.

NEWS BRIEFS

Fourth Victim

LONDON (UPI) — A fourth Canadian was identified today as among the 118 victims of Sunday's crash of a British European Airways Trident near London. Leslie Jackson, a Canadian citizen living in Belgium, was identified as the fourth Canadian victim.

Trials Planned

DACCA (Reuter) — Sheik Mujibur Rahman, prime minister of Bangladesh, says he intends to go ahead with the trial of 1,500 Pakistani prisoners on charges of war crimes.

Dispute Near End?

MONTREAL (CP) — The five-month old dispute between the CBC and its technicians could be settled by the end of the week, says Robert Bouchard, chief technician negotiator.

87 Bodies Found

HONG KONG (AP) — Eighty-seven bodies have been found but 165 persons are still listed as missing today after four days of record downpours, mudslides and collapsing buildings in this British colony.

Airport Hustle Restored

Times News Services

Major Canadian airports came back to life today as airlines scheduled extra flights to accommodate travellers grounded by the 24-hour pilots' strike for more stringent anti-hijacking measures.

The world wide pilots' strike ended at 11 p.m. PDT Monday and airports, as quiet as libraries since the strike began at 11 p.m. Sunday, resumed business on an increased scale.

Charles Simpson, president of the 2,000-member Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association, called the protest "very successful."

In Montreal the International Civil Aviation Organization announced Monday it has taken steps to permit member nations to impose sanctions against countries which co-operate with air pirates and extortionists.

In its statement Monday, the 124-member body said its 27-member governing council "has set the stage for legal procedures which will permit states to take sanctions through and within the framework of ICAO against any recalcitrant country which hypothetically might harbor, give refuge to or encourage perpetrators of unlawful interference with international civil aviation."

TIME STILLED —ONE SECOND

GREENWICH, England (Reuter) — Time will stand still for one second at midnight June 30 — to allow the world to catch up with it.

Worldwide radio time signals will be cut by one second to maintain the signals within agreed limits of Greenwich Mean Time, with the insertion of a "leap second."

The earth is currently losing three-thousandths of a second a day and, by the end of June, the signals will be more than six-tenths of a second fast on GMT.

Irish Pubs Blasted

BELFAST (CP) — Powerful bomb blasts damaged pubs in two country towns in Northern Ireland during the night after one British soldier was killed and four were wounded in an ambush by guerrillas in Belfast.

Fourteen persons were injured — none of them seriously — in the explosion at Ballymena, northwest of Belfast. Nobody was hurt at Dunnamanagh, County Tyrone.

The bomb at Ballymena, more than 100 pounds of gelignite planted in a stolen car, also wrecked the employment bureau and damaged 16 nearby homes.

The British soldier died when a volley of bullets hit troops patrolling Belfast's Brompton Park area. A military spokesman said the four wounded men were not hurt seriously.

At least 374 persons, including 96 soldiers, have died in the last three years of strife in Northern Ireland.

Members of the Irish Republican Army in Belfast's Crumlin Road jail ended a 36-day hunger strike today after they were granted the privileges of political prisoners.

In Dublin a special criminal court freed Joe Cahill, 52, a former commander of the Belfast IRA Provisionals, after finding him innocent of inciting persons to join the illegal IRA.

Bombers Before Pact: Laird

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird testified today Congress should reject the missile agreement signed with Moscow unless it is willing to pay $1.3 billion more for new U.S. bombers and submarines. (See also Page 32)

Pressed at a Senate Armed Services Committee hearing on the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, Laird said he could not recommend approval of the treaty unless Congress appropriates funds for the new B-1 bomber and Trident submarine.

If Congress refused to fund the costly projects, he said he would recommend the construction of all 12 antiballistic missile sites originally contemplated. The SALT agreements limit the United States and the Soviet Union to two ABM sites each.

Construction of all 12 sites would mean rejection of the accords which President Nixon signed with the Soviet leaders last month.

All three programs — the SALT treaty limiting defensive ABM missilery, the executive agreement freezing deployment of offensive missiles for five years and the new strategic weapons — are tied together, Laird said.

"Without one, I believe the national security requirements are jeopardized," he said.

S. Viets Push Back Red Tanks

SAIGON (UPI) — A force of 3,300 South Vietnamese marines fought three sharp battles in Quang Tri province today with tank-led North Vietnamese troops and destroyed 18 tanks with aid of some of the heaviest U.S. air and naval support of the war, front dispatches reported.

The marines were in the third day of a government drive to recapture the province which fell to the North Vietnamese May 1. President Nguyen Van Thieu announced plans Monday for a three-month campaign to recapture all lost territory.

The South Vietnamese had mighty support from B52s which flew a record 30 raids in South Vietnam, mostly in direct support of the marines, and attacked just north of the Demilitarized Zone today for the 13th consecutive day — another record.

The fighting was fierce along a 13-mile front, with marines driving as far as five miles into Quang Tri, the only province to fall to the Communist offensive. They were driven back by tank-led Communist counter-attacks, regrouped and attacked again and won back the lost territory.

The marines are considered South Vietnam's best fighting force and it was the marines who stood their ground during the fighting that led to the loss of Quang Tri when the 3rd Infantry Division broke and ran.

Ashcroft Water Rationed

ASHCROFT (CP) — Emergency water rationing measures were implemented Monday in this village of 3,000, hours after the water supply was knocked out of order by the high waters of the Thompson River.

The Ashcroft and District General Hospital was without any water for four hours and 465 students at the elementary school had an unscheduled day off.

Mayor Oscar Johansen said the regular pumping system finally ground to a halt Sunday night after several weeks of high river levels had deposited 3½ feet of silt and sand in the village's gravity-intake well.

Johansen appealed to civil defence officials in Kamloops for help while crews rigged up a fire engine to the water system and began taking untreated water out of the river.

Residents were warned to boil the water before using it for cooking or drinking because of the lack of chlorine treatment.

The possibility of major flooding in the Fraser Valley continued to lessen today as the Fraser River dropped to 22.46 feet, down from Sunday's level of 22.85 feet.

Have French Seized Greenpeace?

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Greenpeace III, protesting against a French nuclear test in the south Pacific may have been seized by the French navy, Heath Macquarrie (PC — Hillsborough) said Monday night.

He was refuting information given the Commons earlier by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, who said the craft, with one Canadian aboard, is in the area of a French nuclear air test scheduled for today but "it was hard for the government to know the ship's exact location because it is not Canadian.

Macquarrie, Conservative foreign affairs critic, rose on a point of privilege at the night Commons sitting and said he wanted a government spokesman to set the record straight in view of information he had just received.

That information was that Greenpeace III "is indeed, by the appropriate laws and conventions governing such things, a craft of Canadian registry, a Canadian ship."

"I am further advised that for a worrisome length of time there has been no communication from the Greenpeace III and disturbing rumors of her apprehension by vessels of the French navy."

He asked that the government "move with utmost dispatch to concern itself about the safety and well-being of Canadian citizens aboard this ship in grave danger" and added that an opportunity should be made for an immediate government response to his point of privilege.

In Wellington, New Zealand, the French embassy and the UTA French airline office, were evacuated this morning following threats that the buildings would be bombed to protest the nuclear test on Muruaroa Atoll.

Detectives also were investigating an early morning fire which gutted the Auckland offices of UTA.

Police said a witness said he saw a man on a motorcycle throw a flaming object into the offices. One fireman was injured in the blaze.

A newsman at the Wellington Evening Post received an anonymous telephone call saying the French offices in the same building would be firebombed.

In Dunedin, on the east coast of the South Island of New Zealand, the French consulate was also evacuated following a bomb threat.

Developer 'Caught In Middle'

Developer John Copp was one of the "inevitable victims" caught out by Victoria's new zoning policy on downtown highrise construction, a city hall official said today.

"If he had applied for a building permit soon after getting council's approval in principle his 38-storey tower could have gone ahead.

"But there was a long delay and then, I'm afraid, he got caught in the middle when the ground rules changed," a planning department spokesman said.

HE'LL FIGHT

Copp, of Copp Construction Ltd., announced Monday he is, after all, prepared to fight city hall so that he can build an apartment tower on Douglas next to The Bay store.

Three months ago he said he would rather not build at all than get involved in protracted arguments with the city.

Earlier this year Copp responded to a suggestion from Mayor Peter Pollen for reducing the development by cutting the number of storeys to 29, but the permit is still being withheld.

Under Victoria's new policy, the height of highrises in the downtown area is restricted to 14 storeys and the floorspace ratio to three to one.

The earlier bylaw allowed Copp a density of 6.5 to one.

LOST MONEY

Copp says he cannot abandon the project because he has too much money tied up in it, and has lost a great deal already.

Planning committee chairman Ald. Mike Young said today that he recently received a letter from Copp asking for a meeting with himself and city planner Geoff Greenhalgh, but there had been no opportunity to hold the meeting so far.

MUSIC-LOVING THIEF SILENCED

A music-loving thief was arrested by city police in a Bay Street vacant lot early today with three guitars and a portable radio he had stolen in a music studio.

Lyle Bradley Quock, 26, of 132 Dallas, pleaded guilty in provincial court today to breaking, entering and theft from Art Hall's Guitar Studio, 2508 Douglas.

City police found Quock behind a retaining wall in the lot between Douglas and Government at 3:52 a.m.

The guitars and radio were valued at a total of $288.50.

Police said Quock gained entry to the studio by throwing two bricks through a glass front door.

Quock was released from penitentiary in 1968 after serving most of a five-year sentence for robbery with violence in Whitehorse.

Judge William Ostler remanded him on the break-in charge to June 29 for pre-sentence report.

Gaglardi Probe Ends 'Soon'

An investigation which could lead to charges against Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi will be completed by the end of the week at the latest, Chief Superintendant Ross Pilkie of the RCMP, said today.

"If the planes are still flying today we should have it wound up very soon," Pilkie said. Asked whether this indicated a decision by week's end, Pilkie added: "Yes, I would certainly think so."

"It would be presumptuous of us, however, to indicate at this time whether charges will be laid," Pilkie said.

The investigation arose following an incident near Kamloops in which Gaglardi was alleged to have forced another driver to the side of the road as the minister was passing a truck on a hill.

Earlier Monday Gaglardi had harsh words for the Vancouver Sun which he said had been "constantly on my back for 20 years" and had printed "scurrilous stories" about him.

Gaglardi's outburst was prompted by a question from a reporter about the alleged driving incident.

"I told you right from the start the whole story was completely fictitious. Surely the RCMP couldn't find anything because there wasn't anything to find," he said.

Anderson Raps Commission

The B.C. Mediation Commission should be scrapped because it does not have the confidence of either labor or management, B.C. Liberal leader David Anderson said today. (See also Page 10.)

Anderson said the groups of employers and workers who participate in labor negotiations in the province should propose improvements to the system, so that it can become workable again.

'LITTLE VALUE'

"If they fail to come up with workable proposals for improvements of the commission's image and credibility, then there seems little point in continuing with the commission," he told a Kiwanis Club luncheon in Victoria.

"A mediation commission in which both labor and management lack confidence has little value."

In a separate interview today, Anderson said Premier Bennett bypassed the mediation commission two years ago in the construction industry dispute and that Attorney-General Leslie Peterson failed to prosecute violators of the Mediation Commission Act.

Anderson said decisions of the attorney-general are being made on a "personal and arbitrary" basis and that cabinet ministers who speed in their cars and newspapers who publish in defiance of the government's advertising ban are not being prosecuted.

The Liberal leade rsaid the attorney-general is "willing to ignore the law in some cases, for political purposes."

Anderson sympathized with Labor Minister James Chabot, saying: "The government's determination to use labor as a whipping boy for political purposes makes it next to impossible for the minister of labor to gain the respect and understanding of labor leaders."

"Without such respect and understanding, there is no way for the minister or the government to play a useful or constructive role in ending labor disputes."

OFFICERS GOOD

Anderson said the mediation officers of the province are very good at their jobs and have a good record of success in settling disputes. But he said the three commissioners on the mediation commission have a dismal record."

"I am no expert on labor relations," he said, "but it doesn't take an expert to see that things are going badly in this province."

"For political purposes B.C.'s government has consistently alienated labor to the point where the government has entirely lost the respect of one of the parties to labor-management disputes. As a result, it is powerless to assist in resolving these disputes."

"In my view," he said, "the mediation commissions have not succeeded in winning the confidence of labor or indeed or management, and unless it is possible to change this situation, thought should be given to abolishing it."

. . . DEMOCRATS

until four months ago in a special 15-member military reserve unit. The Washinton-based unit develops lists of radicals and draws up contingency plans for censorship of the news media and U.S. mail.

The White House personnel office confirmed Monday that Hunt is a consultant to Colson. Colson is said to specialize in delicate assignments for the president.

Ken W. Clawson, a current White House aide who until recently was a reporter, wrote in February, 1971, in The Washington Post that Colson had been "dubbed" as one of the "original back-room boys . . . the brokers, the guys who fix things when they break down and do the dirty work when it's necessary."

When Hunt was asked by a reporter why two of the suspects have his phone number, he said, "Good God!" He then paused and said, "in view that the matter is under adjudication, I have no comment." He then hung up the telephone.

Clawson said Hunt last worked for the White House on March 29, 1972, for a regular daily consultant fee. These fees are generally $100 a day.

"I've looked into this matter very thoroughly, and I am convinced that neither Colson nor anyone else at the White House had any knowledge of, or participation in, this deplorable incident at the Democratic national committee," Clawson said in a prepared statement.

Hunt is employed as a writer with the public relations firm of Robert R. Mullen and Co., located directly across from both Nixon's re-election campaign headquarters and the main White House offices.

Hunt's name and phone number was in the pop-up address box of Martinez, a real estate agent and notary public who has been active in the anti-Castro movement in Miami.

A small, black address book of one of the other suspects also has Hunt's name and phone number, the sources said.

Also taken by police was a savings account book that shows Martinez has $7,199 in a Miami bank, according to the sources.

Another name in one of the address books is James Grimm, head of housing for the University of Miami. Grimm said from Miami that Martinez contacted him about two weeks ago, seeking housing for about 3,000 Young Republicans during the Republican national convention.

Grimm said he could not provide the rooms, because classes would soon begin. Republican officials said they had no knowledge of Martinez's efforts to secure housing for Young Republicans.

Martinez works in the real estate agency of another of the suspects, Bernard L. Barker, who is said by Cuban exiles to have worked for the CIA since the Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961.

Barker is a joint investor in several apartment house developments in Miami with Miguel A. Suarez, a local Republican who ran unsuccessfully for Dade County mayor in 1970.

All five wire-tapping suspects, well-dressed, wearing rubber surgical gloves and armed only with tear gas pens, were arrested about 2:30 a.m. Saturday by D.C. police inside the sixth floor, 29-office suite of the Democratic headquarters in the Watergate Hotel.

Though the alleged bugging attempt at first appeared to be very sophisticated and professional, experts in the field of wire-tapping have since said it was amateurish.

Some enchanted evening...

You relax after a superb dinner in the warm, scented evening among flowers and watch fish gently feeding in the rock pools.

In the dusk, you can see geese flying home, high against the sunset.

Nearby, a couple swim lazily round a heated pool, while from inside the building you can hear the agreeable sounds of music and laughter.

With a sense of wonder, you remind yourself that this is a hotel in British Columbia.

Montreal's Riot Squad Put on Alert

MONTREAL (CP) — The month-long city manual workers strike forced cancellation of official St. Jean Baptiste Day celebrations here this year, but police plan to keep Old Montreal under close surveillance Saturday night.

A police spokesman said plans are "the same as any year" for the night of the June 24 holiday, a traditional celebration dating back to 1834 which honors Quebec's patron saint.

The spokesman said all leaves would be cancelled and the helmeted riot squad would be on alert.

Violence has marred several St. Jean Baptiste Day celebrations in recent years as the festivities have evolved from a huge spectacle featuring a 32-float parade, speeches by political figures and fireworks to a popular street festival in Old Montreal with strong nationalistic overtones.

Youths chanting separatist slogans, clashes between police and revellers and subsequent charges of police brutality, and scores of arrests and injuries have marked the celebration nearly every year since the mid-1960s.

Rene Charette, organizer of this year's festival for the St. Jean Baptiste Society, said in an interview that with the formal celebrations cancelled, "those who want to celebrate will, but the society will not be there to control or manage it."

The city told the committee it could not guarantee municipal services essential to the celebration because of the manual workers' strike that ended June 13.

Mr. Pelletier criticized the executive committee's list of priorities, saying the opening of La Ronde amusement park or Man and His World was not as important as the St. Jean Baptiste festival.

In 1964, when the giant torchlight parade through the city was still the highlight of the celebration, about 20 demonstrators carrying placards with separatist slogans booed and jeered as Quebec's Royal 22nd Regiment passed by a reviewing stand where Governor-General Georges Vanier was seated.

In 1966, as the Quebec separatist movement mushroomed and became more violent, about 1,000 youths—some chanting "Quebec for Quebecers" and others handing out separatist handbills—marched through downtown Montreal and clashed with police.

In 1968, the festivities exploded into a riot only 50 yards from the reviewing stand where Prime Minister Trudeau, Mayor Jean Drapeau and then-Quebec premier Daniel Johnson sat watching the traditional parade.

CARS OVERTURNED

Police cars were overturned, clashes between demonstrators and police result in 135 injuries, 290 persons were arrested and the prime minister ducked to avoid a bottle, one of several hundred hurled that night.

In 1969, Prime Minister Trudead and other political figures were not invited to the festivities, but again St. Jean Baptiste Day brought violence to Montreal as hundreds of youths chanting "Quebec for Quebecers" rampaged through the city's downtown area smashing windows and destroying city and public property.

For the first time, the parade was held during the day and a float carrying the statue of St. Jean Baptiste was overturned.

In 1970, the celebrations were again accented by nationalistic demonstrators, but they remained peaceful as police watched the proceedings and the parade was scaled down to five floats.

Last year, with the traditional parade cancelled and the festival transformed to a carnival-type holiday in Old Montreal, demonstrators and baton-wielding police battled in the narrow streets of the old city and 42 persons were arrested and 20 injured.

It is uncertain what form the festivities will take this year or how many people will gather in Old Montreal Saturday night.

The Common Front for the Defence of the French Language, a nationalistic movement led by ex-boxer Reggi Chartrand, has announced plans to hold a march from an east-end park to an unannounced destination.

Money Lost? Stolen?

NESTLETON, Ont. (CP) — If your four-year-old daughter picks up $2,400 from the car seat and throws it out the window, is it lost or stolen?

The provincial police call it theft, but your insurance company could very well take the opposite view.

This is the predicament Armando Figueiredo finds himself in. On May 23, he watched in horror as his four-year-old daughter scooped up the receipts from his service station and scattered them on the highway, where they were picked up by two passersby.

The OPP consider the money was stolen, but when Mr. Figueiredo put in a claim to his insurance company, under a policy that covered him on theft up to $2,000, he was told the money was lost, not stolen.

He has recovered $687 of the missing money and expects to be reimbursed for another $438 by General Motors of Canada Ltd. after a 60-day period for honoring cheques has elapsed.

Nestleton is 15 miles north of Coburg, Ont.

MASSIVE CLEANUPS of Vancouver's streets, lawns, backyards and alleys got under way Monday as civic workers returned to their jobs after a seven-week strike. Here garbagemen are shown cleaning up in Stanley Park. Workers are being temporarily shifted to the sanitation department in an effort to complete the job within two weeks.

Bleak Picture Painted of Jobless Youth

OTTAWA (CP) — The frustration and disillusionment of Canada's unemployed young people was the focal point of Commons debate Monday.

Led by the New Democrats, the opposition painted a bleak picture of young people lining up for welfare cheques, and PhD graduates driving taxicabs for a living.

Lorne Nystrom, 26, (NDP—Yorkton-Melville), one of the two youngest members in the House, raised the issue with a motion condemning the Liberal government for having failed to produce a comprehensive program to provide jobs for the graduates streaming out of schools and universities.

The motion, which under House rules served only as a vehicle for debate and did not come to a vote, drew support from both the Conservative and Social Credit parties.

Government spokesmen used much the same response as they have against previous opposition attacks on the unemployment issue.

MACKASEY REPLIES

Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey, the only minister to enter the debate, recited a list of program statistics which he said demonstrated government concern about unemployment among the young, and replied to claims that the government is callous and indifferent to the problem.

He also said the post-war baby boom, resulting now in large numbers of young people entering the labor force, is a major factor in the picture. While the government is not using this as an excuse, the growth in the labor force because of young people has been greater in Canada than in any other industrialized society.

Barrett Danson, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, said Canada's job creation effort has surpassed that of all European Common Market countries combined.

And John Roberts, parliamentary secretary to Regional Development Minister Jean Marchand, praised government measures such as the Opportunities for Youth and local initiatives programs. Tremendous successes have been scored in many of the projects spawned by the programs, he said.

But Mr. Nystrom said Statistics Canada figures for May showed 552,000 Canadians looking for work—289,000 or almost half of them under the age of 25.

ATTACKS METHODS

He accused the government of adopting a piecemeal, stopgap approach to unemployment.

He cited Opportunities for Youth as one program where the concept was good but failure occurred because most of the summer jobs had gone to those least needing them—"the sons and daughters of the middle class."

"What we need is action . . . . It is time our social and economic institutions caught up with the technological part of our society."

William Knight, 24, (NDP—Assiniboia), the youngest House member, zeroed in on the plight of rural young people, particularly young farmers.

He called for a new rural development policy to allow young people to return to the land for a living. He suggested an income-support program for farmers, efforts to curb foreign ownership of land and lower interest rates for farm loans.

Mr. Danson argued that artificial stimulants to agriculture could raise food costs—an effect the NDP would not welcome.

Some MPs used debate to attack the educational system in Canada.

DEGREES DON'T HELP

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate) said thousands of young Canadians are finding, contrary to what their elders have told them, that a university degree does not guarantee a job.

"A great deal of the education we're feeding young people today is irrelevant."

Mr. Lundrigan, a former teacher, said the time has come for a major reassessment of the educational structure and a concerted effort by all levels of government and industry to generate the jobs needed to fulfill the aspirations of the young.

Derek Blackburn (NDP — Brant), also a former teacher, said many students, bitter at poor employment prospects, are using schools as asylums because they have little hope of finding creative work after graduation.

He said the existing education system looks neither at the present nor to the future, with the result that it churns out educated unemployables.

HITS COUNSELLING

Alfred Hales (PC—Wellington) criticized high-school counselling services. It should be possible in this age of computers to indicate to new university students the job prospects in the areas they want to study, he said.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette called for major public works projects to alleviate unemployment among the young.

He accused the government of hiding behind the myth that money isn't available for such projects. This was an argument he couldn't accept.

Mr. Caouette was supported by Adrien Lambert (SC—Bellechasse), who urged adoption of a minimum retirement age of 60, as well as more public work projects, to open job opportunities.

The Words and the Meaning

Soviet public pronouncements being what they are, it is difficult to decide just who was the intended audience for the latest declaration from Moscow. In contrast to earlier Soviet comments on the Vietnam situation, which tended to be somewhat restrained, President Podgorny's return from a visit to Hanoi has brought out a demand that the United States stop the northern bombing "immediately and unconditionally." The Kremlin also pledges that Russia will give all the assistance necessary to combat American "aggression" in Vietnam.

These statements seem to carry a little more heat than earlier comments along the same line. The questions that now engage Washington are whether this is just an outburst of determination designed to impress Hanoi with Moscow's intention to assist its ally; whether it is in fact a serious warning to the United States; whether it is in reality directed to China, where Russian shipments to North Vietnam are being refused railway transit; or whether it reflects part of a policy struggle within the Soviet government.

If the statements indicate the assessment of a guest who has just left Hanoi after seeing the effects of the United States bombing and harbor-mining, then the vigor of the words may be an indication of the predicament in which the North Vietnamese military high command currently finds itself. Moscow may feel that a continuation of the present trend will result in Hanoi's defeat, and is warning of strong measures to prevent this. But Mr. Kissinger's current visit to Peking may have moved the Kremlin to strike a strong pose to offset any developments between the Chinese and the Americans. In earlier times, such a message might have been construed almost as a declaration of war. Today such emissions are often greeted as "more of the same."

There are rumors among the people who watch such developments from vantage points that heartening moves are afoot to achieve a peace settlement in Paris — although newspapers almost keep standing type for that frequent report. The Kremlin would hardly endanger such a step by sending harsh warnings to the United States if the meeting were imminent. But there can be little doubt the accurate new American bombs, with laser and TV directional equipment, must be causing increasing destruction in Northern Vietnam — perhaps to the point of defeat for Hanoi. Neither China nor Russia is likely to permit that — even if their actions put the new trans-Pacific detente on cold-war ice for an indefinite time.

An Easier Line on Cuba

Like stones thrown into a pond, the United States' attitude toward China and the Nixon visits to Peking and Moscow appear to be sending out ripples even in Caribbean waters that wash Cuba. This month the Organization of American States, meeting in Washington, decided to examine the diplomatic and economic ostracism of the Castro government — a gesture reflecting a softening of opposition to the island nation formerly charged with exporting revolution in this hemisphere.

Examination of the ostracism does not necessarily assure a removal of strictures against Cuba, or a resumption of ties with other members of the OAS, but individual members of the latter have, in recent months, re-established some of the contacts which used to exist.

It is not surprising that the United States abstained from the voting which saw 10 of 23 Latin-American member nations endorsing the idea of re-examining the OAS attitude toward Cuba. But abstention is a much less rigorous reaction than outright opposition to such a proposal.

There is not, at this moment, a sufficient number of members committed to welcoming Cuba back into the OAS community to assure such a course if the issue were put to a vote. A two-thirds majority is required to change the policy adopted in 1964. But the tide appears to be turning. When the president of the United States justifies recent contacts with China and Russia, the sentiment of conciliation gains strength closer to home.

Incongruity

Whatever other factors enter the case, the present local controversy over the operation of certain emergency vehicles without valid testing station stickers brings into sharp focus one of the incongruities of the sytem as it now operates.

Any emergency vehicle should be a safe vehicle — and the testing station functions to have mechanical flaws corrected. But is an emergency vehicle sited in a testing station area and without a valid sticker automatically more dangerous than a similar vehicle registered outside the testing area which has never undergone the checks and operates quite legally without any sticker at all?

Until the testing system is made universal throughout British Columbia, this discrimination will continue.

Law and/or Justice

"Despotism is the anarchy of lawless rulers; anarchy is the despotism of lawless crowds." With these words Justice E. M. Hall of the Supreme Court of Canada defined terms which are persistently in the news. But he did not rest content with definitions. He continued: "Social rights cannot arise or long survive under the lawlessness of either variety."

Justice Hall was speaking before the Association of Law Teachers at McGill, on the law and social rights. He granted that law and justice were not synonyms but that, nonetheless, "we must have laws." He advised lawyers not to fear accusations that their increasing concerns with social problems were leading them astray from professional duties.

Justice Hall is pointing the way towards an application of social justice to supplement traditional concerns with individual prerogatives. But, whatever the precise balance between the group and the individual, it is the pursuit of social justice which is at once the difference between a law-abiding society and either despotism or anarchy — and the reason for that difference.

MAURICE WESTERN

Levesque and the Chickens

OTTAWA — In the art of counting unhatched chickens, Rene Levesque ranks with the best. This may explain the failure of his studied efforts to upset the federal Government by his televised performances in France.

As on some previous occasions Mr. Levesque has not been content to count the chicks; he has gone on to predict their behaviour after birth. This is an ingenious tactic. See them hop. See them flag. Will they veer leftward or rightward? The more attention can be concentrated on such matters, the less foreigners may notice the initial problem; that the eggs remain unhatched.

What is interesting, however, is Mr. Levesque's elaborate attempt to use a French trip as a means of impressing his American neighbours. Not only did he scold Quebec students of leftist views; he also defended the United States as a healthy democracy and predicted that the independent state of his aspirations would be basically a free enterprise country welcoming foreign investment.

The Message

The message evidently is that Americans and, for that matter, Canadians ought not to worry about the destruction of Confederation. When the chicks hatch it will be found that the separatists are thoroughly well-mannered, well-behaved birds. There will not be a red feather in sight; nothing to arouse the apprehensions of the most timid investor. If one neighboring democracy is good for Americans, why should they be agitated about the prospect of two?

Anyone who accepts this must accept the assumptions on which it is obviously based. The first is that Mr. Levesque will not change his mind. As he has already had several political careers, this requires considerable faith. As a Minister in the Lesage Government he was an exponent of a new federalism and now he is an enemy of federalism. He has always been fervent in his convictions — but not in the same convictions. What he will be fervent about in the future may accordingly be a matter of doubt.

A second assumption is that leaders control events and movements to the degree suggested. The record shows that they very often do in government what they did not dream of doing when they were in opposition. This is plain even in the history of moderate parties. Mr. Pearson, to cite a recent example, attacked the extravagance of the Diefenbaker Government but ended by doubling the budget. His defence was that governments have to respond to public pressures. The Americans, whom Mr. Levesque is anxious to influence, will doubtless remember that Franklin Roosevelt came to Washington vowing that he would balance the budget. The sequel is too well known for comment.

Mr. Levesque, an idol of students, professed to be haunted by the spectre of separatism and became its white hope. Thus he, too, can be influenced. But he plans a political revolution and his movement has been a magnet for radicals of every hue. It is attractive enough that certain Waffle leaders, noted for their hatred of American capitalism, were anxious to make a deal with it. Without much doubt some separatists regard independence as a step, but only a step, towards social revolution.

This is not to suggest that Mr. Levesque is helpless at the moment to control his party. From a PQ standpoint, he may well be at the moment the indispensable man. But what will be the situation if the chickens hatch? Everyone is supposed to believe that a modern, integrated industrial state can be torn down the middle without disruption and with the decorum of a tea party at the parish church. This is wildly improbable. It is far more likely that masses of people will suffer and will have to be appeased, at least by further excitements, if they are not to conclude that they have been the victims of separatist fraud.

What to Do?

What would Mr. Levesque do in these circumstances and with his power threatened? Would he say, or be permitted to say, that he could not go further because of his assurances to Americans that an independent Quebec would be a model capitalist neighbour and a happy home for foreign investors? Or would it be the case, in such a tragic aftermath, that the man was a prisoner of the movement and of the events he had set in train?

Such fears are widely entertained or Mr. Levesque would be wasting his time in efforts to remove them. It may be a satisfying exercise to go about foreign countries counting and examining chickens which have not hatched and will not if sense prevails in Quebec. But Mr. Levesque is not persuasive in his tranquil views of the future.

If he is to satisfy the wider audience to which he is now addressing himself, he will have to ask more searching questions of his crystal ball. They amount in essence to this: if he is right in his dismal forecasts, what will happen, especially to Quebecers, when separatist chickens come home to roost?

WILLIAM R. FRYE

Compelling Logic of Events

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Hopes for peace in Vietnam have been raised, and then dashed, so many times that it is almost impossible for rational men to hope again. Yet it is an objective fact that the chances of a settlement have improved in recent weeks, and that hope of a cease-fire this summer may not be entirely ill-founded.

The return of Ambassador William J. Porter to Paris, and the disclosure by Hanoi's Xuan Thuy that he had "new directives," are not the only, nor even the principal, reasons for optimism.

What is building cautious expectations here is the compelling logic of events — the fact that there is, at last, excellent reason for both sides to seek a settlement, or at least a temporary truce.

The North Vietnamese offensive has been slowed and turned back. American mines and "smart" (laser-guided) bombs have seriously constrained Hanoi's supply lines — and both Moscow and Peking have acquiesced, de facto, in that development.

Frustration

Hanoi thus faces a long-range prospect of frustration and stalemate, its objective of forcibly overthrowing the Saigon regime almost certainly beyond reach so long as American air and sea power are fully committed to the struggle.

This is not to say that North Vietnam cannot continue to make serious trouble. Terrorism is feasible on very limited supplies. Guerrillas can toss grenades into school yards, assassinate village leaders, and lob mortars into crowded markets.

But as long as the United States maintains its air and sea interdiction of enemy supplies, Hanoi is unlikely ever again to be capable of mounting an all-out, conventional-warfare offensive of the kind which it attempted, with no fewer than 10 full divisions, on March 30-31. The tanks, heavy artillery, oil and ammunition will not be available, once present supplies are exhausted.

Meanwhile, if Hanoi then falls back on a long-drawn guerrilla conflict, North Vietnam will be absorbing punishment, more effective than that of 1965-1968, not merely from the air and sea but from commando raiders on the ground.

More and more allied commandos are already succeeding in hit-and-run attacks on the North, and Hanoi must wonder if

. . . return to Paris
AMBASSADOR PORTER

one day they will come in greater force. The guerrilla fighting will not be entirely on South Vietnamese soil.

It does not, of course, follow that Hanoi will throw in the towel. But it would be logical for her at least to negotiate somewhat more realistically toward the objective of an American disengagement.

President Nixon has offered to disengage. He has said that four months after a cease-fire and the repatriation of American prisoners, all American forces would be withdrawn and "all acts of force" by Americans would cease throughout Indo-China.

Once having pulled out, it would be most unlikely that Nixon (or any president) would reintroduce American air and sea power in the event of renewed fighting. And Saigon by itself would not have the power to choke off Hanoi's supply lines.

So the military case for a truce is overwhelming. And there is also a political case. The next few months, before the November election, will be the time when President Nixon will most want a settlement. It is the time it will do him the greatest good.

It follows, therefore, from Hanoi's point of view, that this is the best time to deal with Nixon. To hold out on the slim chance of negotiating with George McGovern, or some other Democrat, in the White House would be playing a very long shot indeed.

Dangerous Game

Nor, despite their political histrionics, would Democrats in positions of responsibility be likely to give Hanoi much better terms. For them now to imply that they might is playing very dangerously with the national interest for the sake of ephemeral political advantage.

To be sure, all this is a better argument for a truce than for a real political settlement. A settlement would require acquiescence by President Thieu in Saigon, and Thieu may not have been frightened sufficiently by the first few weeks of Hanoi's offensive to surrender power to a coalition.

Still, even this is not impossible. Thieu can see what could happen if he lost his great-power ally and Hanoi did not lose hers. Saigon was never closer to collapse than it was last April; and there would be another April in prospect before South Vietnam's air force, now in training, reached its full efficiency.

Add that the Soviet Union and China both have reason to seek the benefits of a settlement in improved relations with the United States, and the prospects are even more beguiling.

It could all be just another will-o-the-wisp. But there are hard-nosed people, here and in Washington, who think this one may prove more solid.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Question

I would like to believe that Mr. W. A. C. Bennett's quote on the front page of Wednesday's paper (June 14) can be taken literally: "Well, I don't deal with people who are outside the law."

Could this really be the beginning of the end for Mr. Gaglardi?—Austin Peckham, No. 3-314 Cook St.

Look Ahead

I agree entirely with Alan Morley whose editorial "Who Pays for Brain Collapse?" was recently reprinted in the Victoria Daily Times from the Vancouver Sun. Mr. Morley has vividly expressed the folly of residential land development (Oak Hills subdivision at Kamloops) in an area adjacent to the Thompson River which historically is prone to flooding during the spring run-off.

Is not the entire municipality of Delta right up to Chilliwack a similar although much larger area? This area is the flood plain of the Fraser River, yet we see ugly block residential subdivisions sprouting up all over the region.

Mr. Morley rightly points out that diking any major river only lends a false sense of security. The mathematics of probability ensure that some day again, as in 1948, the Fraser will inundate Delta. Then watch the hue and cry, and very likely the rubber stamp for the Moran Dam!

What is wrong when a farmer with a good tract of arable farmland such as in Delta, cannot make ends meet? Instead, he retains ownership, speculating over a number of years until he sells to a residential land developer for a good price. During this time he struggles at farming his land while imported Idaho potatoes, California carrots and Mexican tomatoes undercut him on the domestic market.

As with Oak Hills, the time will come when we taxpayers will pay the shot for the flooded-out householders of Delta. It is long past time for the provincial government to implement comprehensive land use studies and the accompanying legislation. Let us put our land in British Columbia to its best possible and proper use. — Alan H. Meadows, 4960 Georgia Park Terrace.

Basic Stuff

To a cynic it is amusing that so many of the best people should damn Mr. Gaglardi for calling greed and selfishness gifts from God, for this simply makes him a true disciple of those great apostles of the capitalist system, Adam Smith and John Stuart Mill. According to their widely accepted economic philosophy of laissez-faire individualism, let each one work for his own selfish ends and this will eventually work out for the general good of the community as a whole.

Little wonder that the purchasing agents, essential cogs in our economic system, should have given Mr. Gaglardi a standing ovation. Greed and selfishness are basically of the very stuff on which our revered economic system is founded, and it must rejoice Mr. Gaglardi's heart to keep those two "gifts from God" in mind when his congregation lustily sings: "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." — C. K. Morison, 2220 Windsor Road.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of June 20, 1912:

CHICAGO — With the split between the Taft and Roosevelt forces in the Republican national convention having at last reached the point where a definite threat to bolt had been made, many panic-stricken delegates turned desperately to the task of stirring up sentiment for a compromise candidate. Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court and Gov. Hadley of Missouri were the names under consideration. Practically all of the talk of a compromise candidate comes from the Roosevelt followers.

Hijacking: Why the Fuss?

By JAMES EAYRS

Who is entitled to address us passengers on spaceship earth with the words "This is your captain speaking?" If anyone, the secretary-general of the United Nations.

He alone is authorized by 137 countries to "bring to the attention of the security council any matter which in his opinion may threaten the peace and security." Without such a person set in authority over us, the world would resemble even more than it already does a kind of jumbo jet in which as Eldridge Cleaver puts it "a passle of drunks, hypes, freaks and madmen fight for the controls and the pilot's seat."

The secretary-general knows perfectly well that a new form of piracy — a piracy of the air — is loose around the globe. He is aware that airliners are being hijacked and time-bombed, that airports have become targets for terrorist attacks. But in his opinion air piracy is not enough of a threat to international peace and security to warrant his bringing it to the attention of the security council.

That opinion is one which isn't shared by those who fly the planes. Borrowing from the instruction manual provided by the late Saul Alinsky, airline pilots around the world have engaged the secretary-general in confrontation politics.

They told the secretary-general to place the issue of air piracy on the agenda of the security council. The security council should order governments to refuse to offer hijackers political asylum, to make hijacking punishable by death. Unless the security council met at once and acted, the airline pilots would strike.

On the Spot

These demands put Kurt Waldheim on the spot. To yield to them would be yielding to pressure. It would create a precedent certainly far-reaching, possibly harmful to his office. Henceforth any global group of malcontents would feel entitled to besiege the secretary-general with their grievances, a right previously restricted to member governments. But to ignore them would make it appear that he was too much preoccupied by protocol, too little by human need and world opinion.

So the secretary-general compromised. He would not, he could not, accept an ultimatum to summon the security council within hours. But he would meet it soon enough. Give the security council a chance, he told the pilots' spokesman. Wait and see what it would do.

For the pilots that response was not enough. So, for 24 hours, they refused to fly their planes. June 19, 1972, will be a day for historians to remember — the date, for the first time in history, of general strike in the global village. What, as they look back on it, are historians likely to make of it?

They will probably be impressed, first off, by the commotion air piracy has aroused within the international community, considering how relatively little harm it has done to it so far.

Between 1930 — the date of the first recorded hijacking, over Peru — and October 1971, there have been 319 incidents of attempted or successful hijacking all over the world. Approximately 1,500 crew members and 15,000 passengers have been involved in them. About a dozen aircraft were damaged or destroyed. About 400 persons lost their lives.

Melancholy figures. Yet compared to the tolls taken by war, pestilence, famine, technology, the body count inflicted by pirates of the air over four decades hardly shows in the mortality tables — barely a weekend's slaughter on the highways, an hour's slaughter of some ferocious tribal strife.

Future historians are bound to wonder why the United Nations didn't show more concern for the hijacking of states — punishing those who seized control of governments and forced whole nations off their course — than for the hijacking of planes. They will ask: "Why all the fuss?"

Beautiful People

To be the prey of aerial pirates is the occupational hazard of the affluent and influential, who fly further and more often than the rest. The jet-set of the global village — businessmen, diplomats, journalists, so-called "action" intellectuals — aghast to discover that you can't buy security aloft as you can buy leg-room, have done what Beautiful People always do when the service is not to their liking. They've sent up a howl of complaints.

These resonate noisily in the world's press and council chambers. But among the 98 per cent of people who will never get inside the cabin of a DC-3, let alone stretch out with a scotch in the cabin of a Concorde, their howl falls on deaf ears. The people of poverty, ignorance and disease have much more to complain about. If the United Nations listens to the Beautiful People, after so long ignoring the wretched of the earth, the wretched of the earth will be even more disposed to dismiss it as a rich man's club indifferent to their needs, heedless of their hopes.

It's not as if the pilots' recommendations — so the historians will muse — were sure to put an end to violence in the air. A death penalty for hijackers, mandatory extradition, are intended as deterrents. But deterrents don't invariably work.

Deterrents work on those whose derring-do is the result of a careful balancing of risks and opportunites. Would-be airborne Bonnies and Clydes, dreaming of skyjacking bags filled with banknotes, will be deterred by the foreknowledge that there's no place for them to hide — not even Algeria or Cuba.

Deterrents don't work on those who embark upon their escapade on some psychotic's quest for notoriety. Deterrents don't work on kamikaze terrorists who know — like the attackers at Tel Aviv — that their mission means their death.

What future historians will ponder most of all is our readiness to abandon the right of political asylum.

That right airline pilots don't care much about, for theirs is a profession carried on regardless of the local ideology. Left-of-centre, right-of-centre, somewhere in-between — what does it matter to a captain from Air Canada or Aeroflot moving around a homogenized universe in which runways, airports, limousines, hotels, are much the same whether in Belgrade or Bermuda, Sydney or Saigon.

For governments, it's different — or at any rate used to be. Between 1947 and 1953 occurred 14 successful and two unsuccessful hijackings. All took place in Eastern European aircraft. Hijackers reaching their destination in the West not only received asylum there, they were greeted as Cold war heroes.

Escape Execution

It's not by accident that communist countries have the most stringent anti-hijacking laws. But if the airline pilots get their way, we will have them, too.

During a debate at the United Nations, one delegate argued that "there might be cases where, on moral ground, it was inappropriate to punish a hijacker. . . . For example where an individual, having committed no crime but regarded as undesirable politically in a certain country, resorted to the diversion of an aircraft to escape summary execution." This was argued by the delegate of Lebanon, but that doesn't make it wrong.

Those so eager to abandon the right of political asylum in the illusory pursuit of security aloft should consider a simple alternative: If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the aircraft.

When Everybody Lies, It's Hard to Believe

By TRB
New Republic

We are having lunch six miles up — sky full of popcorn clouds. "Red or white?" asks the pretty Malaysian hostess in a shining Oriental dress. We left the Singapore Hilton at 6 a.m. and will end in Honolulu at some incomprehensible hour, for with this International Date Line you never know whether it is yesterday, today or tomorrow. The captain's voice over the intercom says casually, "On our left the Mekong Delta."

The sea is deep blue and some of the beaches of Vietnam how us are yellow sand. These may be toy airplanes on that matchbox field.

"Passing on the left the city of Vinh Long," says the captain informatively. Some of us look down from our pressurized jet. At 500 m.p.h. the tortured land is soon passed. The lunch is abalone with minced pork, wine, "Savarin aux fruits."

We are fighting a depersonalized war down there, to save our national honor. Mr. Nixon has said he isn't going to be the first president to lose a war. The Harris poll says 79 per cent want a U.S. pullout but, on the hand, 45 per cent (to 8 per cent) would oppose peace by accepting a coalition government that included Communists. So we must fight. We can't let our president down.

Any day now the Communists may throw in the sponge and let us end this senseless slaughter. But our boys, fortunately, the actual killing has become increasingly remote. In the bombers, anyway, the soldier is separated from the consequence of his action. The difficulty is that a seismic sector can't always differentiate between a truck load of farms and a school bus. But that's the hazard of war, isn't it? We can become complacent for our side is free from fear of retaliation.

The fields of Vietnam are being scientifically cratered. It's a small country but even at that Mr. Laird says it will cost us $3 to $5 billion more to do the job. Between 1965 and 1971 bombing dug some 26 million craters with an averate depth of 25 feet and diameter of 40 feet. Along with that herbicide spraying killed perhaps half the hardwood forest west and north of Saigon, and maybe half of all the mangrove forests. We stopped that a year ago after devastating around 5.5 million acres largely because foreign nations were saying nasty things about us. Some of the countries at the Stockholm conference, for example, rejected the U.S. as savior of the environment while practicing ecocide in Indochina.

There has been a price for this at home, of course, of helplessness and frustration, of dejection and despair. Worse still, probably, is the loss of confidence of many people in their institutions and their government. A lot of people have avoided this simply by closing their minds to the war; tuning it out. You can numb your mind if you set about it properly, but it is an art and some people are better at it than others. On the other hand there is always this uncomfortable question, whether killing women and children in villages is as bad as not caring about killing women and children in villages?

America is in this fix, I think, partly because of our odd form of government. More and more we have been getting away from shared responsibility in Washington, and massing power at the top, largely in the president. The abdication of authority by Congress has been the most conspicuous change of government in Washington in 50 years. Congress has been found an unnecessary element in carrying on this war, and so has the press, and so finally has the public. They all oppose the war but it goes on. The important factors are the Pentagon and the president. They are going to save our national honor and they are going to preserve Mr. Nixon from being the first president, etc.

Curiously enough, the original theory of our government was that the chief executive would be subordinate to the legislature, but things developed in precisely the opposite direction.

Everybody lies to Congress. Congress banned use of funds to subsidize foreign troops in Laos, but the administration flagrantly violates the ban. Congress approved $10 million in humanitarian aid for the Pakistani government which the general accounting office now finds was diverted into fortifications: a senior official at the time assured senators that there was "no evidence" of such irregularities.

The army lies, and Congress is the last to hear about it: New York Timesman Seymour Hersh just revealed the suppressed secret army report about the 1968 Mylai massacre; the report found that the cover-up was "made at every level" from bottom to top. You remember the photos of Mylai? They were ultimately exposed by the press — a pile of women and old men shot down in cold blood, with the buttocks of one slain baby showing in the foreground . . . Well, national honor, you know.

When Mr. Nixon was in Moscow Comrade Brezhnev must have envied him his power. Comrade Brezhnev doesn't go through our election process, but he has to clear a lot of things with others. The American president can order an invasion of Cambodia on his own. Under a parliamentary democracy, if Heath should fire his foreign secretary, Sir Alec Home, the latter would still have his powerful seat in the Commons. If Mr. Nixon fired Kissinger he would just have to go back to Harvard. Mr. Nixon is boss.

Franklin Roosevelt had two press conferences a week; Mr. Nixon held his last formal one June 1, 1971; yes, over a year ago. Jeer if you want at the press, but it is a safeguard of democracy; it links the president with reality. The Nixon administration has deliberately set out to downgrade it. Mr. Nixon is the most isolated president since Hoover. That is the trouble with our system of elected monarchy, particularly where you have a man who is reclusive and introspective, lacking warm and easy relationship with the public.

The problem goes deeper than Mr. Nixon, though. We have elevated the symbolic office of the presidency so that we feel it must not be tarnished; it must not be diminished by military defeat.

ANYONE CARE?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

What's the news from Kitchener? See The Globe and Mail, June 8.

"Shipments of cookies and candies from the strikebound Dare Foods Ltd. plant in Kitchener have been suspended . . . following a day of violence on Tuesday when strikers threw stones and beer bottles, broke windows, tossed Molotov cocktails and scuffled with police. Six pickets were arrested.

"Twin gasoline pumps behind the factory were smashed Tuesday night and early Wednesday one picket tried to drop a lighted match into a pipe ventilating the underground fuel tanks."

Did the story shock us? Would our reaction have been different if the dateline and context had been different?

If the item had come from Montreal and related to a rally for Quebec rights — if it had come from Toronto and dealt with a demonstration at the U.S. Consulate — if it had originated on any university campus linked to any of a dozen student causes — how then would the story have grabbed us?

Have we reached a state where the fact of violence concerns us less than the where and why of it? If the answer is yes — we are in trouble. Deep trouble.

You Won't Read It Here

By JOHN NICHOL

In San Francisco, on the 31st floor of the new tower of the St. Francis hotel, there is a bar and a restaurant.

The restaurant was not officially open but the other day it was possible for a sneaky visitor to slide through the great black leather doors with the golden handles for a look around.

The place is decorated like a 19th century gentleman's library. There are comfortable chairs, and the walls are lined with books. Yes — books. There are bookshelves everywhere, and they are filled with sets of leather bound books.

What a good idea: The lonely, weary traveler can lean back in a comfortable chair with a cheering glass, and a book chosen from this marvellous library in the sky. "God bless," the traveler might say, "the sensitive innkeeper who owns this 31-storey tower of kindness in downtown San Francisco."

But — do not go there: the whole thing is a horrible fake. Most bookshelves are about ten inches deep. Obviously anyone building a high rise building has to pinch every penny, and squeeze out every inch of space. And that's what these boys have done.

They cut the depth of the bookcases down to two inches. But since one problem leads to another, and since a ten-inch book won't fit in a two-inch bookcase — what's to be done?

Saw off all the books two inches from their backbones? Obviously. So that's what they did. They took several thousand leather bound books and sawed them off two inches from their spines, and stuck them up with glue in their two inch bookcases.

The leather looks great. You can pick at the little stubs of pages with your finger nail and even see a word or two. But that's it.

This particular collection of books looked pretty dull — even before the amputation. There are sets of California law reports, and legislative proceedings. One could argue that they were both useless and valueless — and no one would ever want to read them anyway. That's probably true. It is also irrelevant.

I can hear the conversation now — "Al and I have this great idea, Mr. Friendly Innkeeper, we're gonna take this big pile of cruddy old leather covered books and saw them all off short. Then we gonna stick them on the wall with glue. Make it look like some kind of fancy intellectual library — ya know? It will make all these suckers think they are gentlemen — ya know? Make 'em feel genteel — ya know? Like Hathaway shirt men maybe — or Gary Grant. What will we do with the parts of the books we don't use? They'll make great land fill out at our new leisure home project — the Albert Einstein golf and country club."

It's not hard to define examples of international phonyness, fakery, flackery and pomposity. They are everywhere. But this particular example seems especially sickening. It seems to symbolize it all.

Japan Strike Hurts Kaiser Operations

FERNIE (CP) — The strike of Japanese maritime unions against Japanese shipping companies which carry Kaiser Resources Ltd.'s East Kootenay coal will adversely affect the company's second-quarter results this year, Edgar F. Kaiser, executive vice-president of operations, said Monday.

He told a shareholders' meeting that more than 600,000 tons of coal is stockpiled at the Roberts Bank port and that Kaiser Resources is paid for its coal only when it is loaded aboard ships there.

Some shipments aboard non-Japanese vessels have been arranged, he said, but the firm expects to fall about 270,000 tons short of its second-quarter target of 1.1 million long tons for coal shipments to Japan. The strike began May 5.

Kaiser noted that Kaiser Resources recorded a loss of $3,771,000 for the first quarter of this year.

Protector Now Under Attack

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

That old protector of the environment, Mayor Pat Brennan of Squamish, was on the defensive this week in an ecology battle over the future of fishing in Howe Sound.

Brennan was under attack from fishermen over his proposal for a superport at the head of the sound, about 40 miles north of Vancouver.

He took provincial Resources Minister Ray Williston on a tour of the 38-acre landfill area set aside for grain elevators, cranes and coal-handling facilities.

'NONSENSE'

The site is adjacent to the mouth of the Squamish River, and that's the reason for the protests. Some mainland fishermen say the superport would interfere with migration up the river, that the port should be constructed elsewhere on Howe Sound.

The mayor calls th fisher men's complaints "nonsense."

Although the port will be near the mouth of the river, loading activities would be well clear of the route the fish would take, he said.

Resources Minister Williston, in Victoria Monday afternoon, agreed with Brennan's stand.

"There's no reason why a port there would interfere with fishing," Williston said.

LOST BATTLE

Fishermen, however, plan to continue their battle against a large port at Squamish, claiming it would turn Howe Sound into a dead sea devoid of fish.

It is ironical that Brennan should be under attack on an ecology issue as it was he who led the opposition to the use of the spray chemical 2, 4-D by B.C. Hydro.

He got the municipality to pass a bylaw prohibiting B.C. Hydro from using the chemical for clearing grass, saying the spray was a health hazard to Squamish residents.

Brennan lost that battle when a provincial court judge ruled the Squamish bylaw invalid.

As an expanded port, Squamish could handle coal and other products sent from the interior of B.C. down the British Columbia Railway (formerly PGE).

Although the railway continues on to West Vancouver the provincial government can see advantages in expanding dock facilities at the point where the railway first reaches tidewater (Squamish) rather than sending coal cars through heavily-populated areas like West Vancouver.

In addition, Brennan sees Squamish as an alternate port for shipping grain to China.

With a 45-mile spur line between Clinton and Ashcroft, the CNR and CP Rail would be linked with the British Columbia Railway, providing an alternative route if the other lines are blocked.

Last winter snowslides blocked grain deliveries of both CN and CP trains, creating concern in China about the reliability of Canada as a supplier of grain.

MAJOR UPSET

Brennan said it upset him to see 20 ships waiting in vain to load grain in Vancouver when the 20 ships could have been loaded in 20 days if there had been a spur line and grain elevators in Squamish.

Brennan sees Squamish port expansion as crucial to protect Canada's grain trade.

If the federal government goes ahead with the rail link, he says, there would be nothing standing in the way of a tremendous expansion of port facilities at Squamish.

Nothing that is but a group of angry fishermen.

City Accountant On Executive

Victoria accountant C. D. Moore has been elected to the executive council of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C.

Vancouver accountant W. G. Mitchell has been elected president of the 2,200-member association, succeeding P. C. Barter, also of Vancouver.

CAE

CAE Industries Ltd., which had suspended dividend payments of 7½ cents a share a quarter in April, 1970, will pay 15 cents a share July 31. Record date is July 17.

The company's annual meeting here earlier this month was told that it is the intention to maintain future dividend payments on a semi-annual basis.

The Bay

The London-based Shop-Rite discount store chain has been sold to Hudson's Bay Co. of Winnipeg.

The Bay paid between $200,000 and $250,000 for Middlesex Warehouse Sales Ltd., the holding company for the Shop-Rite chain.

Candel

Candel Oil Ltd. earned $3,199,000 or 77 cents a share during 1971, up from $2,642,000 or 63 cents a share the previous year. Gross income rose to $9,237,000 from $9,034,000.

Hy's

Vancouver-based Hy's of Canada Ltd. reports profits of $156,346 or 18 cents a share in the six months ending March 31, up from earnings of $81,920 or nine cents a share for the same period in 1971.

Hy Aisentat, president of the company which is primarily involved in the restaurant business, said the firm's volume increased 14 per cent and cash flow increased 28 per cent over the same period last year.

Gross income for the six months to the end of March was $3,630,485 compared with $3,178,848. Expenses increased to $3,143,427 from $2,834,955.

Lufthansa

The West German airline Lufthansa lost $10.5 million during 1971.

The deficit was due mainly to last year's revaluation of the German mark against the dollar and other currencies. Revaluation cost the company $38.8 million.

It was the first time in eight years Lufthansa had shown a loss. During the preceding business year, in 1970, the profit was $5.28 million.

EDP

Sales were down, but EDP Industries Ltd. still managed to reduce its losses for the six months ended May 31.

Company chairman James A. Pattison said that losses before extraordinary items were $23,265, compared with $544,667 for the same period a year ago.

Sales in the half dipped to $812,041, compared to $1,755,722 in 1971. Pattison said the drop in revenue was the result of discontinuing certain loss operations which were primarily in areas other than data processing.

Court Upholds Baseball Reserve Clause

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the third time in 50 years, the U.S. Supreme Court has refused to overturn baseball's unique status as the only sport exempt from anti-trust laws.

The highest court in the U.S. thus threw the matter back at a seemingly disinterested Congress, which has adopted none of the more than 50 bills introduced in the last two decades to change baseball's reserve system which binds a player to one team indefinitely.

In a 5-to-3 ruling Monday against a suit brought by former outfielder Curt Flood, the court's refusal to redefine the reserve clause raised the possibility of another and more massive general strike next spring than the one which delayed the start of the 1972 baseball season for more than a week.

"Technically, it is a subject for collective bargaining," said Richard Moss, counsel for the Major League Baseball Players Association. "But practically, it is the subject for a strike, a long strike. You either forget it or strike over it, and both are unfortunate courses."

EXEMPT FROM ANTI-TRUST LAWS

The so-called basic agreement between players and owners expires Dec. 31, along with pension and health insurance agreements reached after the recent strike in April. The basic agreement covers minimum salary, expenses and many other rules.

"Every attempt was made by the players to discuss the reserve system and every attempt was met with a stonewall response," said Moss. "If the attitudes on the other side have changed, we'll be delighted to sit down and bargain. But we'd have to see it first."

However, one baseball executive, asking to remain unidentified, said, "I hope we're intelligent enough—players and management alike—to negotiate this before we're forced to do it."

That power rests with Congress. But Justice Harry A. Blackmun, delivering the Supreme Court's majority opinion, noted that Congress has had a long time to do something about it and said the fact that it did nothing indicates more than "mere Congressional silence and passivity."

In fact, he said, the Supreme Court "has concluded that Congress has had no intention to subject baseball's reserve system to the reach of the antitrust statutes."

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the decision "opens the way for renewed collective bargaining on the reserve system following the 1972 season."

Exactly what the players want was explained by Milt Pappas, player representative of Chicago Cubs:

"The ruling doesn't make a lot of difference and the players were not looking to make utter chaos, which complete elimination of the reserve clause would do. However, some owners now have an idea how the players feel.

"What we are going to seek at the meeting table is an agreement that will give veteran players some freedom in negotiating. After a certain time with a club, say five years or eight years, a player should be able to sit down and negotiate on whether he can get more money if he's worth it, or be free to bargain with another club."

In its decision, the court agreed that baseball is a business engaged in interstate commerce and Justice Blackmun called its anti-trust exemption "an aberration" and "an exception and an anomaly." He continued:

"If there is any inconsistency or illogic in all of this, it is an inconsistency and illogic of long standing that is to be remedied by the Congress and not by this court."

The decision is of no consequence to other sports, which are not immune to the anti-trust laws.

However, another challenge to baseball loomed when catcher Ted Simmons of St. Louis Cardinals, the only player who hasn't signed his 1972 contract, said he may challenge the reserve clause if he is still unsigned at the end of the season.

Roxburgh and Nicklaus —Best in Their Class

It was a full program, and then some, for the golfing fraternity on the weekend, and there probably won't be any better from some time to come, either.

First, there was the climax to the B.C. Men's Amateur championship at Royal Colwood, and a positively sparkling display by 20-year-old Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver. Roxburgh not only made this year's amateur a one-man show, but he did it in such convincing fashion that right now he almost ranks in a class by himself.

He won the bundle by 11 big strokes, and he won by defeating the man who said before the tournament that he would be happy with a 290 total, and if he got that 290, he figured he could win.

That was veteran John Russell of Vancouver, the eventual runner-up, and he scored just that — 290. Roxburgh, meanwhile, proceeded to get nothing but better. He started with a three-over par 73, followed with a 71, and then culminated his complete domination of his rivals with a pair of 68s for a final 279, one under par.

Experienced observers could not recall Royal Colwood being handled in this fashion ever before, and if the 279 from the very back tees wasn't itself a record, and nobody could question that claim, certainly, the two 68s that Roxburgh fired in succession on the final two days were unmatched. Roxburgh also hit something like 49 of the last 54 greens in regulation figures, and try that on any course some weekend!

★ ★ ★

Now the provincial scene switches to the tryouts for the Willingdon Cup team, which last year was composed of Roxburgh, Bert Ticehurst, Russell and Victoria's Dave Mick.

On that score, Roxburgh is virtually a shoo-in, because the final 36-hole round of the invitational which will decide the B.C. Team will be added on to the B.C. Amateur results. Russell holds a five-stroke margin over Harry White of Vancouver, and isn't likely to falter badly, while the fourth place right now is held by Mick.

Actually, Mick was coming on as well as anyone except the phlegmatic Roxburgh in the final rounds. He had a 72-71, after a 78-75 start; and if his game wasn't solid at the beginning, he was sharp as the tournament drew to a close.

However, there is yet another Island hope who deserves merit and attention. Young Martin Holman of Cowichan played surprisingly steady golf, even if he did appear to rush his shots at times, and he ended up only two strokes behind Mick. And if the lack of experience is his main problem, he can't be eliminated for that reason alone.

This apparently leaves Bert Ticehurst, a 10-year Willingdon Cup veteran, out in the cold, or does it? Ticehurst, after an opening round 72, didn't play well, and wound up at 301. But he can play better and besides, is a tournament-tested performer. He could still be heard from, as could Colwood's Ken Floyd, and also Steve Berry of Vancouver. Within this group undoubtedly will come the B.C. team with Roxburgh and Russell the almost certain nominees, leaving two other spots open. If Mick hits his game, he could be number three. Certainly he is highly regarded on the mainland, as well as on the Island.

Meanwhile, down at Pebble Beach, in the U.S. Open it just had to rank as a remarkable show by the Golden Bear, Jack Nicklaus. What Nicklaus did under those horrendous conditions, and playing to those postage-size greens was amazing indeed.

It was all there for everyone to see on TV, and although about 90 per cent of the viewers were probably wishing for an Arnold Palmer charge, it wasn't to be. Nicklaus was the steadiest of the lot, and just when it seemed that even he must falter, he recovered to save it all, and to save it by plenty, and three strokes, as it turned out.

It is more surprising when it is realized that early in the final round, Nicklaus actually was tied by Kermit Zarley, although they were playing in different pairings, and Palmer was almost right there too. He was one stroke behind. But Zarley collapsed under the foul weather conditions, and that isn't a harsh term, he finally wound up at 296, six strokes behind Nicklaus. Palmer was four back, and Bruce Crampton, who eventually was second, had to settle for a 76.

★ ★ ★

To most people, this was the "big one" for Nicklaus. And many would like to have seen him beaten. Because this is the tradition of sport. Knock off the top dog if you can. Everyone loves an underdog. And this is just what the defending champion Lee Trevino was at Pebble Beach. He was a game competitor, yes; but this time he had met his master.

Nicklaus was clearly superior, and now that he has two legs up on the prestigious grand slam — the British Open and the PGA championships to come — watch for a swing of public sentiment in his favor. And why not?

He may not be the charismatic idol of the fairways and the television screens, that Palmer was, and still is, but that really doesn't matter now. He is the best golfer in the world, and it would be only fitting, now that he has that big jump, and has two titles in the bag, he can make it all the way. Agreed.

SPRINT CHAMP IN MEET

A bevy of world-class athletes will be competing in the "Olympic Preview" track and field meet beginning at 6:30 tonight in Centennial Stadium.

Ron Coleman and Arnie Robinson will be arriving for the long jump event. Coleman, who was number one in the world last year with a leap of 27 feet, ¾-inch, and Robinson, the current AAU champion who has jumped 26 feet, five inches, will both be competing.

Another prestigious "catch" announced this morning by Ron Bowker of Invictus, the Victoria track group that organized the meet, is Robert Taylor.

Taylor won the 100-metre AAU title last weekend in Seattle.

COMEBACK BID

The meet also forms one of the steps on a comeback trail for Tom Hill of Texas Southern Track Club. Hill was the United States champion and world record holder for the 110-metre hurdles in 1970 with a time of 13.2 seconds. He retired for a year but returned to action in the AAU meet, where he placed second in the finals after beating the winner in one of the heats.

In the high jump competition, no less than eight entries, including John Hawkins of Courtenay have cleared seven feet.

Isaacson's Hit Deciding Blow

Seaboard Construction squeezed out a 4-3 victory over cellar-dwelling Churchill Hotel in a Victoria Major Men's Softball League game Monday night at Central Park.

Pete Isaacson bashed out a double in the eighth inning to knock in Bob Lowe with the winning run.

Seaboard, which holds a four-game lead in the league standings, had a 3-2 lead after six innings, but Churchill tied the score in the seventh to make the extra inning necessary.

Barry Wilkin struck out 11 batters and scattered six hits while pitching the victory for Seaboard.

Late Bell Burst Wreck Molsons

Bell's Men's Wear poured 13 runs into the final two innings Monday night to overwhelm Victoria Molsons 13-4 in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game at Heywood Avenue Park.

Don Frampton paced the effort with a two-run double in the seven-run sixth inning and a three-run homer in the seventh.

Catcher Jim Wilson aided at the plate, driving in two runs in the sixth on two hits and lashing a bases-empty homer in the seventh.

Bells moved six points ahead of second-place Juan de Fuca Sporting Goods with the victory.

DECISION A STABILIZER

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Monday that the decision by the United States Supreme Court to reject a bid by Curt Flood to have baseball's reserve clause declared illegal, "has no affect whatever on hockey."

"The decision has no affect, except it stabilizes the whole sport milieu," Campbell said. "If the reserve clause had been declared in violation of anti-trust, you would have had contract-jumping all over the place."

. . . "It is of no consequence to hockey," Campbell said. "Other sports are not immune to anti-trust laws in the United States.

. . . "All we can do is be grateful there will be no great turbulence in baseball."

Bucs Break Out; Astros Get Stingy

By The Associated Press

Pittsburgh Pirates blasted their way out of a rut Monday night, but Houston Astros have found a groove they'd like to stay in.

The Pirates, shut out by San Diego Padres 4-0 and 1-0 in their last two starts and scoreless for 23 innings, erupted for 16 hits—including home runs by Roberto Clemente, Gene Alley and Al Oliver—and pasted Los Angeles Dodgers 13-3.

The Astros, meanwhile, got their second consecutive one-hit pitching performance when Larry Dierker limited New York to a lone single as Houston defeated the Mets 3-0 for the Astros' fifth straight victory.

As a result, Pittsburgh moved back into first place in the National League East by one-half game over the Mets, while the Astros pulled within a halfgame of first-place Cincinnati in the National League West. The Reds were blanked by Montreal Expos 2-0.

In the only other National League baseball action, Chicago Cubs nipped San Francisco Giants 7-6 in 11 innings in an afternoon game. Philadelphia Phillies game at Atlanta and San Diego's contest at St. Louis were rained out.

In the American League, Boston Red Sox bombed Texas Rangers 12-0, California Angels edged Baltimore Orioles 4-3 and Oakland Athletics beat Detroit Tigers 7-3. Cleveland Indians' game with Minnesota Twins was rained out while New York Yankees, Milwaukee Brewers, Kansas City Royals and Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

Oliver and Clement drove in three runs apiece for the Pirates, whose .284 team batting average is tops in the majors. The three RBI moved Clemente into first place on the all-time Pirate list with 1,275, two more than Hall of Famer Pie Traynor.

At the Astrodome, Dierker showed the Houston fans something, too, duplicating Jerry Reuss's one-hit effort against the Phillies Sunday. It was only the eighth time back-to-back one-hitters have been pitched.

The lone safety off Dierker, 6-2, was a third inning single by Duffy Dyer, while Reuss gave up a leadoff double to Larry Bowa in the ninth.

Houston scored twice in the seventh on run-scoring singles by Lee May and Tommy Helms, then added another run in the ninth on another RBI single by May.

Dierker, a 25-year-old righthander who has been with Houston since 1964, said his fast ball wasn't particularly overpowering, but control was the key.

"I've had better games," he said, "but never better control."

Montreal's Bill Stoneman shut out Cincinnati Reds on four singles, while Tim Foli and Ron Woods drove in the Expos' runs with sacrifice flies.

Reggie Smith clouted two home runs and drove in five runs and Sonny Siebert hurled a three-hitter as Texas whipped Boston. Siebert, 7-3, had a no-hitter until Ted Kubiak hit a pinch-double leading off the sixth inning. Rico Petrocelli and Danny Cater also homered for Boston.

Cepeda Reinstated

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves of the National League, who suspended Orlando Cepeda last weekend after he asked to be traded, released or given away, said Monday the first baseman had been reinstated.

Eddie Robinson, Atlanta director of player personnel, said he and manager Luman Harris had met with Cepeda, 34, and "everything has been resolved."

Cepeda, who is recovering from a knee operation last fall, complained that he was not being allowed to play enough. He left the club before Saturday night's Braves-Expos game when his name wasn't in the starting lineup and Harris promptly suspended him.

Flett Returns to NHL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Right winger Bill Flett, who jumped to the World Hockey Association last month, returned to the National Hockey League Monday, signing a three-year contract with Philadelphia Flyers.

Keith Allen, general manager of the Flyers, said he expected no legal difficulties concerning the three-year contract. Flett signed with New York Raiders of the WHA.

"Bill tells us that there was a clause in that contract which said they (the Raiders) had to deliver securities or money by a certain date or the agreement was null and void," Allen said. "They didn't.

"We wanted to talk to Flett no matter what they (the Raiders) did. We believe that he, Brent Hughes and any of our other players who have allegedly signed with the WHA are still our property. We are pursuing all of them in a very aggressive manner."

Hughes also signed with the Raiders last month. Centre Eddie Joyal and a few Flyer farmhands have signed with other WHA clubs.

Allen said the deadline for the Raiders to secure Flett's contract was midnight last Friday.

Flett was traded to the Flyers by Los Angeles Kings of the WHL last January. He scored 18 goals last season, 11 after joining the Flyers.

Terms of the three-year pact were not disclosed.

GERELA STILL A LION; REJECTS NFL OFFERS

PENTICTON (CP) — Veteran placekicker Ted Gerela Monday signed a long-term contract with British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference.

The 28-year-old Gerela, who had played out his option, started working out with the team today.

The soccer-style field goal specialist has received offers from three National Football League clubs, but chose to remain with the Lions.

He joined the B.C. club in 1967 from Washington State University.

Earlier, veteran linebacker Greg Findlay signed with the club and now will attempt to make the switch to defensive end.

The lions also announced the signing of running back Billy Main who had an outstanding college career at Oregon State, where he was the all-time scoring leader and all-time kick-off return leader.

Main, 24, is 5-foot-11 and 195 pounds. He was drafted by Pittsburgh of the NFL in 1970 and was released part-way through the season. He did not play pro ball last season.

The latest signing bring to 76 the total number of players at the Okanagan training camp site.

The camp continues through July 4 and the Lions play their first pre-season game July 5 against Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina.

Dale Takes Medal In Qualifying Test

Dal Shaw of Glen Meadows is off to a good start in her attempt to collect a third consecutive Victoria and District women's golf championship.

Miss Shaw carded a 76 Monday to win medal honors, finishing the qualifying round five strokes ahead of runners-up and former champions, Shirley Naysmith of Gorge Vale and Joan Lawson of Uplands.

Sixteen players qualified for the four rounds of match play scheduled to begin today.

Former Saskatchewan junior titlist Brenda Prosofsky, now living in Victoria, was one of four who made it at the cutoff score of 92. Flo Champman also finished at 92 but missed the championship section through the system used to scheduled to the five-way tie.

Margaret Todd, an 11-time winner of the event, competed only in order to get a score to qualify for the senior women's team. She is not competing in the city championship this year.

Terese Todd, who didn't make the cutoff, used a driver to sink a hole-in-one of the 153-yard, par-three 10th hole.

Cedar Hill Juniors Inter-Club Champs

Cedar Hill saved the best for last Monday and came away with the Junior Inter-Club Golf League championship.

In the final day of competition this season, Cedar Hill stunned visiting Royal Colwood with a 7½-1½ victory.

Colwood became the favored contender last week by regaining the lead with a 6½-2½ triumph over Victoria.

In other final encounters, defending-champion Uplands nipped visiting Glen Meadows 5-4 and Victoria defeated visiting Gorge Vale 5½-3½.

Uplands and Victoria finished in a tie for second place with 24 points each, two and a half behind Cedar Hill. Colwood placed fourth, another half point back. Glen Meadows was fifth and Gorge Vale, winner of the inaugural event in 1970, placed last.

Cedar Hill swept all three fourball matches and the only points gained for Colwood were scored by Wayne Hendry, who defeated Neil Campbell, 2 and 1, and Craig Kuytik, who halved with Randy Price.

Ray Horne rallied from four down for a half with John Hough of Victoria, and Jake Harris had to win five of the last six holes to beat Gorge Vale's Brad Palmgren, 1 up.

COLWOOD 1½ AT CEDAR HILL 7½

Wayne Hendry defeated Neil Campbell, 2 and 1; Al Bryce was beaten by Rob Pearce, 3 and 2; Cedar Hill won fourball, 4 and 3.

Craig Kuytik halved with Randy Price; Bill Boomer was beaten by Glen Oberg, 3 and 2; Cedar Hill won fourball, 6 and 4.

Colin Campbell was beaten by David Rands, 2 up; Murray Walker was beaten by Kerry Davies, 4 and 3; Cedar Hill won fourball, 2 and 1.

GLEN MEADOWS 4 AT UPLANDS 3

Don Gowan was beaten by Keith Burrell, 1 up; Al Robertson defeated Tad McDiarmid, 2 up; Glen Meadows won fourball, 1 up.

Dave Tremblay defeated Lee Haskell, 3 and 1; Larry Criddle was beaten by Brad McLeod, 4 and 3; Glen Meadows won fourball, 2 up.

John Gowan was beaten by Larry Ware, 1 up; Robin Richards was beaten by Dave Anderson, 7 and 6; Uplands won fourball, 6 and 4.

GORGE VALE 3½ AT VICTORIA 5½

Bob Beauchemin was beaten by Drew Winfemute, 7 and 5; Doug Mahovlic defeated Dunc Conrad, 4 and 3; Victoria won fourball, 4 and 3.

Ray Horne halved with John Hough; Tim Howard defeated Brian Sutherland-Brown, 1 up; Gorge won fourball, 1 up.

Ian Seymour was beaten by Kane Straith, 1 up; Brad Palmgren was beaten by Jake Harris, 1 up; Victoria won fourball, 4-2.

Tregellas Leads Former Caddies

Al Tregellas carded a 75 to capture low gross honors in the recent second annual pre-war caddies' tournament at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

His brother, Gord, was runner-up with a 79.

Eric Wright collected low-net laurels with a 74, three strokes ahead of Stony Jackson.

CALIFORNIA RUTH CLUB PLAYS HERE THURSDAY

Victoria Firefighters (16-18) Babe Ruth League will play host to a team from the Southern Siskiyera League of Dunsmuir, Calif., for an exhibition baseball doubleheader beginning at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in Royal Athletic Park.

The visitors, who have been touring the western United States and British Columbia, will battle an all-star team from the Victoria league.

Admission for everyone to the twin bill will be $1.

This meeting will serve as a warm-up for some members of a Victoria all-star team that will seek a second successive victory in a July 1 tournament in Seattle. The same squad will then go to Kelowna on the July 17 weekend for the 10-team tournament for the provincial title and a berth in the Pacific regional playoffs.

City Drivers Hit Trouble

MONROE, Wash. — Victoria super-stock drivers ran into a spell of misfortune Sunday in the $10,000, 200-lap feature race at Evergreen Speedway.

Gary Kershaw, who placed second to Spokane's Chuck Little in the $3,350 O'Keefe Opener on Saturday in Langley, started off right by setting fast time in the time trials and finishing second in the trophy dash.

During the main event, however, Kershaw was running third when the car in front of him blew its engine, forcing him to spin out. Kershaw later passed the leader twice to regain two of the three lost laps but ran out of time.

Two other Victorians didn't fare even as well.

Ross Surgenor was forced out of the feature race with heating problems on the 10th lap and Dave Cooper's car blew its engine on the 72nd lap.

Garry Webster Skips Rink To Esquimalt Bonspiel Win

Garry Webster of the Victoria Racquet Club, skipping for Doreen Wallace, Fred Provencal and Marg Provencal, clipped Duane Andrews of Esquimalt 11-9 in the final Sunday to win "A" event in the 11th annual Esquimalt Curling Club summer mixed bonspiel.

Norma Robinson, Steve Beggs and Audrey Johnson rounded out the Andrews foursome.

Lyle Gordon of Esquimalt (Jackie Thame, Marvin Heap, Iris Gordon) captured the "B" event with a 10-4 win over Doug McDonald's Vancouver-Victoria entry (Dorothy McDonald, Jack Crowther, Edna Messum).

Bob Edgeworth of Esquimalt emerged with the "C" event prize by dropping Gwynn Hughes of Duncan, the defending champion, 7-5. Bill Page defeated Tom Dickson 9-5 in the all-Victoria "D" event final and Ralph Adolphe topped the "E" event with an 11-7 decision over Joe Dill in an all-Esquimalt affair.

Gary Merrett's Duncan rink (Sharon Kaspick, Vern Kaspick and Judy Merrett) tossed the first eight-ender ever recorded in any 'spiel at Esquimalt during a 17-4 victory over Gordie Brown of Esquimalt.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

McGovern Faces New York Test

NEW YORK (Reuter) — New York state voters are expected to put the seal on a political miracle today—the rise of Senator George McGovern to the point where the Democratic presidential nomination is within his grasp.

McGovern was a rank outsider when the first Democratic presidential primary was held four months ago. But he goes into today's New York primary, the 23rd and last before the July 1 convention, with 1,091 of the 1,509 delegates needed to win.

He is expected to win at least 220 of New York's 278 delegates and from there get enough bandwagon support to go into the convention and win on the first ballot.

So convinced is the South Dakota senator that he is on the right track that he said Monday he has no intention of shifting his political philosophy.

GIVEN WARNING

His statement came after his main rival for the nomination, Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, warned that McGovern's positions on such issues as taxation, welfare and defence spending are out of tune with the country's.

Said McGovern: "You don't win nine successive primaries on a platform the people are opposed to."

Meanwhile, McGovern today accused Humphrey of making a "frantic effort to mislead the voters" about McGovern's stand on the issues.

"I am afraid that my old friend has forgotten that there is such a thing as wanting too much to be elected," McGovern said in a statement released through his headquarters here.

McGovern was stung by Humphrey's charges Monday that McGovern's nomination would be "disastrous" for the Democratic Party unless McGovern modified his liberal views.

Humphrey did not campaign in New York but has urged the election of uncommitted delegates in today's primary.

"It is sad to see a nationally known figure like Hubert Humphrey undermining his reputation and jeopardizing his party by the kind of misleading statements he has been making about my positions," McGovern said.

"A few years ago I watched Humphrey undercut his credibility by exuberant efforts to sell the American people on the Vietnam war.

"He condemned those of us who warned against the Vietnam tragedy. Now he seems bent on further political self-destruction in a frantic effort to mislead the voters about the domestic issues of 1972.

AREA SHEEP PASTURE WILL BE FULL OF HAMS

A Metchosin sheep pasture will be the scene of a North American ham radio contest this weekend.

The field will bristle with antennas and radio equipment as the amateur radio operators see how many contacts they can make on their ham sets in a 24-hour period within the scope of the contest, sponsored by the American Radio Relay League.

Gerry Moore, Victoria Shortwave Club publicity director, said more than 50 city operators are expected in the contest.

Contestants will participate on the Wooton Road field near Witty's Lagoon from noon Saturday to noon Sunday, he said.

Two-man crews, an operator and a contact recorder, will work two to four hour shifts throughout the contest.

The Victoria club placed first in its class in Canada in the 1971 contest.

"Our club made 1,526 contacts last year, made in 24 hours by three stations," said Moore. "That's roughly 20 per hour."

About 12,000 amateur radio operators will compete throughout the continent. The contest encompasses Canada and the United States including Hawaii and Puerto Rico, he said.

Participants will operate their sets on emergency power units such as portable generators provided by Civil Defence to test their capabilities in emergency situations.

"The whole object of the exercise is to test operators under emergency conditions," said Moore.

He said both voice and code units will be used.

To operate a ham radio in Canada, a person must pass difficult examinations and obtain a licence from the transport department. This insures proper operation of radio equipment, he indicated.

Most local hams build their own units.

Commission Studies 1 Hearing or Many

The B.C. Mediation Commission has not yet decided whether to hold one large hearing or separate hearings for each union contract referred to it in the construction industry dispute.

Commission chairman John Parker said the question will be taken under advisement after today's second round of preliminary hearings in Vancouver into disputes involving unions without new contracts.

Monday's session looked into disputes involving the carpenters, boilermakers, cement masons and electricians. Today's inquiry was to hear information on the disputes involving plumbers, insulators, ironworkers and mainland sheetmetal workers.

Parker said Construction Labor Relations Association, bargainer for 840 contractors, attended Monday's hearings but no union representatives showed up.

B.C. and Yukon Building and Construction Trades Council officials were not available for comment, but they said earlier the commission would be boycotted, in line with labor's policy of ignoring the commission because of its compulsory arbitration powers.

CLRA, meanwhile, said laborers and mainland sheetmetal workers have returned to work. A tentative agreement has been reached with the operating engineers.

Laborers in Victoria approved a new contract Monday night which a union spokesman said provides for a 90-cents-an-hour wage and fringe-benefit package over two years.

Mainland sheetmetal workers were told by their union to return to work pending a membership vote on a possible settlement.

Other union members without contracts remained off work, despite the cabinet's back-to-work order effective last Wednesday.

Two lawyers hired by the government to look for evidence for prosecutions under the Mediation Commission Act said their investigation is continuing.

INVADERS MENACE OAK BAY BIRDS

Oak Bay police may be asked to put down invaders from Discovery Island — with shotguns if necessary.

The invaders, growing in numbers, are menacig Oak Bay's population—birds, that is — and filling the daybreak hours with their clamorings.

In a letter to council Monday night, one concerned resident asked for action.

He wrote: The crow population in Oak Bay is growing steadily and is causing considerable damage to the song and shore birds by raiding their nests, eating the eggs as well as the fledglings."

Apparently, the crows prefer to live in "the bedroom of Victoria" rather than their natural home.

The writer explains: "They find Oak Bay a more attractive place to settle in than Discovery Island, which I am told was their natural habitat."

He writes that two years ago, at his request, the police shot two crows, which he hung on a tree as a deterrent.

However, complaints of shotgun fire forced an end to the practise.

Council Monday night decided to refer the matter to the police commission.

Tacoma Judge Tells Jury To Acquit Frisco Mayor

TACOMA (AP) — A federal judge said Monday he would order a jury to acquit San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto and two former Washington State officials of charges they conspired to bribe public officials.

Judge Ray McNichols said that after reviewing the evidence presented in the five weeks of trial that he was convinced a jury considering such evidence would acquit the defendants.

Alioto, O'Connell and a former O'Connell assistant, George Faler, were charged by a federal grand jury on nine counts of bribery conspiracy and mail fraud.

The charges resulted from a series of anti-trust suits against electrical equipment manufacturers which Alioto handled for the state and several public utilities in the 1960s before he was elected mayor. O'Connell and Faler admitted sharing some $800,000 of Alioto's $2.3 million fee.

ALIOTO
. . . nine charges

The government contended this constituted a bribe in return for which O'Connell lifted an original $1 million limit on those fees.

McNichols' acquittal order represented the second victory for the three in litigation which came out of the anti-trust cases.

Earlier this year, a jury in Vancouver, Wash., ruled in their behalf after the state filed a civil suit attempting to recover the fees paid Alioto.

LONGER TERM FOR MEDIATOR

The term of mediator Clark Gilmour in the contract dispute between unions and management of Victoria Press Limited has been extended until Thursday.

Notification of the eighth extension of Gilmour's term came today from the B.C. Mediation Commission. Gilmour's term had expired Monday.

Victoria Press publishes Victoria's two daily newspapers — the Times and the Daily Colonist. Negotiations between the Victoria Newspaper Council of Unions and the company management have been going on for several months.

Mayor Defends Wain Rd. Stall

North Saanich Mayor Trevor Davis Monday defended his about-face on a council decision to extend Wain Road.

Answering criticism from Ald. Nell Horth that the mayor was attempting to "stifle the two-thirds vote of council" by holding up road construction, Davis said:

"I am quite determined council shall follow the wishes of the people. This is what we are here for."

The mayor said he had encouraged the organizer of a 29-name petition protesting the Wain Road extention.

"This is the essence of democracy and is the whole basis of this administration, whether you like it or not."

"Is this a reason to hold up all construction?" asked Ald. George Cumpston.

"Yes, if the capital program includes work requiring the addition of half to one mill on taxes in the face of vigorous opposition," replied Davis.

Ald. Doug Boon suggested Davis check into the number of complaints received by the municipality in winter from motorists in Deep Cove.

"The majority are now sitting very quiet."

Cheers from the gallery followed a comment by Ald. H. A. Taylor, public works chairman, that since the Wain Road project has been stalled all spring and summer it was unlikely it could be extended this year anyway.

Ald. Horth said the mayor had the privelege of holding up the construction for 30 days. "There are another two weeks to go."

In other business, council accepted the recommendation from Ald. Taylor that no traffic lights be installed at the Amity Drive intersection of Pat Bay highway.

As a result of a study of RCMP statistics on traffic light controlled intersections, Ald. Taylor said that accidents increase when traffic lights are installed.

"No means has yet been found to overcome the human element," said Taylor referring to a tendency on the part of drivers to "run" the lights.

"Lights don't mean anything. Most people out here don't even read English," said Taylor.

A number of letters received by council about the Kingswood development involving a golf course and a private residential scheme, were made available at the municipal hall to anybody wishing to read them.

Classics Prof. New UVic Dean

University of Victoria classics professor Dr. Peter Smith has been appointed dean of the faculty of fine arts by the university board of governors.

Announcement of Smith's appointment came following the board's meeting Monday afternoon. He will succeed Peter Garvie, who has accepted an appointment with the University of Texas.

Smith, 39, is the former associate dean of the faculty of arts and science. He resigned from that position in April of 1971.

Born in Victoria, Smith attended school at Margaret Jenkins Elementary and at Victoria high school where he was B.C.'s top student in 1949. He won a similar award during his first year at Victoria College.

Smith graduated from UBC in 1953, winning the governor general's gold medal as top student.

He took postgraduate work at UBC and then earned his master's and doctorate from Yale University where he stayed to teach for a year. After teaching at Carleton University he returned to Victoria in 1960 and was appointed head of the classics department in 1963.

He was appointed associate dean of arts and science in 1970.

Drains Upgrading Backed

Esquimalt public works committee recommended Monday night that the council implement a recent engineering report recomending a $560,000 program of improvements of storm drains in apartment-zoned areas.

The report, prepared by a civil engineering firm and authorized by council last February, studied the capacities of municipal sewage and storm drain systems and found storm sewers serving multiple dwellings areas provided poor service.

It recommended that a schedule and priority list be prepared for upgrading the system, with highest priority going to areas where flooding occurs more than once a year.

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren said the project has already been broken down into six priority classifications, with an estimated cost for the first area of $100,000.

The committee recommended that the public works department outline specific plans for the improvements to start in the fall.

It also asked council to consider holding a referendum in December to raise money to pay for the project.

Mayor Art Young said today if the project is financed out of the regular budget it may take 10 to 15 years to complete but with extra funds approved by the ratepayers it could be completed quicker.

ALEXANDER TOPIC

An illustrated talk on the "trail" of Alexander the Great will be given at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery Wednesday by Pat Martin Bates, well known Victoria artist.

The lecture will start at 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Bates last year visited the towns and cities in Greece and Asia Minor which once formed part of the empire of Alexander the Great.

The artist who has won international recognition for her prints, has just returned from Cracow, Poland, where one of her relief prints was hung in the section representing Canada at that country's 5th international biennial show of printmaking.

Medical Fees Restored

The British Columbia government completed its about-face on para medical service fees Monday by returning the amount of yearly benefit payable under the medical services plan to $50 per person or $100 per family.

The increase, effective July 1, applies to services of chiropractors, maturapathic physicians, orthoptic treatments physiotherapists and podiatrists.

Orthoptic and Physiotherapeutic treatments are payable only on referral of a physian.

The previous rate for these services was $35 per person and $70 per family, effective since Feb. 7, 1972. This was an increase over the $25 and $50 rates which became effective in September 1970. Before that, the rates were as they will be effective July 1.

Announcement of the turnabout came from Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, the minister responsible for medical services.

Economy Shows 'Staying Power'

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) — Canada is capable of achieving a 40-per-cent growth in output and improvement in its standard of living by 1980 if it adapts readily to change and uses the right policies, the former chairman of the Economic Council of Canada said today.

Arthur J. R. Smith, now president of The Conference Board, told the 43rd annual meeting of the Electronic Industries Association that the decade of the 1970s can show more growth than any earlier 10-year period of the 20th Century.

The economy has already been expanding since the start of 1971, and "the current expansion appears to be developing real staying power," Dr. Smith said.

"We have very large longer term growth capabilities in the Canadian economy over the whole of the 1970s.

"The estimates suggest that by 1980, if we were to make reasonably full and increasingly efficient use of our productive resources—both human and material—the nation as a whole could have access to more than $5 worth of goods and services for every $3 available in 1970, at 1970 prices."

LESS NEED FOR IMPORTS

Moreover, Dr. Smith said, the potentials are greater now than they have been in the past for growth, based on the country's natural labor force growth, its own skills and capital, and less need for imports.

"The scope for indigenous growth is unprecedented."

He said, however, there are doubters who question whether the country really wants a high-growth economy. Some feel that society was already sufficiently affluent, that growth entailed too many changes from established habits and patterns, and could only mean damaged to the environment.

No really significant change has been made in the past 20 years in the proportion of total income going to the top 20 per cent of the population, or to the bottom 20 per cent, Dr. Smith added.

If the country refuses to adapt to change, it may face the harsh disciplines of strong competition from abroad, he said.

And growth could yield the resources needed to fight pollution, congestion, alienation and other adverse factors.

Dr. Smith said it was striking that even with the advances already made, "we do not appear to be moving swiftly or in any accelerating way towards the so-called leisure society."

Society did not seem to want to take any dividends from growth in shorter working hours and more leisure. People seemed to want to take 95 per cent of their growth potential in the form of goods and services, and only about five per cent in shorter hours.

Chlorine Tank Cars Derailed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A derailment Monday blocked the Canadian National Railways line 75 miles west of here as eight cars left the tracks, one containing ammunition and two carrying powdered fluoride and chlorine.

CNR spokesmen said the fluorine and chlorine tank cars were punctured and leaking but there was no danger, nor was there any danger from the small arms and ammunition destined for a United States military base in Alaska. The shipment was to go by barge from Prince Rupert to Alaska.

There were no injuries in the derailment as seven cars remained upright on the road bed and one slipped on to its side.

About 25 passengers were taken to Prince Rupert by bus Monday and eastbound passengers from Prince Rupert were also to come here by bus.

Writer Sees Victoria as 'Distorted Dream Of Home Concocted by Homesick Englishmen'

By WALTER McKINNON
Times Staff

Ever wondered if Victoria's "Little Bit of Olde England" image is getting across to the rest of the world?

The answer is yes, if the purple prose of New York travel writers can be taken as any indication.

"Victoria is rather like a distorted dream of home concocted by homesick Englishmen who spent their lives supervising the Empire," according to one such scribe. "Whereas Vancouver is determinedly American in style and appearance, Victoria stands staunchly convinced — as was its royal namesake — that 19th-century British is Best."

This introduction to Victoria is from an article on British Columbia to be presented in the July issue of Better Homes and Gardens, a widely-circulated monthly magazine published by Meredith Corporation, Des Moines, Iowa.

It was written by John F. Baker, an author and editor who grew up in England and has for the past 14 years lived in New York.

Baker, who warns his readers that nobody goes to Vancouver Island without "making the pilgrimage to the quaint capital city of Victoria, however untypical of the island it may be," was one of a group of U.S. travel writers who passed through the city several months ago.

★ ★ ★

Upon reading his story, however flattering it may be, one must conclude that his visit was brief indeed and that he didn't get much beyond the Inner Harbor and the Empress Hotel.

Baker concedes that "Some of Victoria can be taken quite seriously, however," compliments the natives on their being "astonishingly green of thumb," offers a plug for Butchart Gardens but completely overlooks the admission-free splendor of Beacon Hill Park.

He was obviously impressed by The Empress and he found both bars, the Bengal Room and the Library Bar. Baker seemed to be a bit confused about the Bengal Room, however.

He calls it "an intimidatingly grand restaurant . . . where it would seem that medals and orders must be compulsory with one's evening dining."

Obviously he didn't stop in for a nightcap in the evening, when he would have found himself cheek to jowl with the blue-jeaned, love-beaded younger set.

He had a word or two for Victoria's many architectural triumphs, too.

The Empress, for example, "squatting firmly at the centre of town, is the essence of nostalgic Englishry; a massive Edwardian pile that boasts a Rose Garden, a Conservatory complete with potted plants and elderly ladies in wicker chairs."

Our legislature, Baker writes, is "of choice Gothic-Moorish design, of a kind dear to many an English provincial city . . ."

And he has praise for "the showy, contemporary Provincial Museum, probably the only convincing piece of 20th-century architecture in town. . . ."

In the accommodation department, Baker recommends The Empress, The Imperial Inn, "quiet, elegant and not far from the hub of things," and The Olde England Inn, "a good shot at an English country hotel, with suits of armor, fine period furniture and typical Old Country cooking smells. . . ."

★ ★ ★

Baker's article warns that British Columbia "is a long way from almost anywhere else," but worth the trip.

Thanks, John . . .

And he closes with another plug for Victoria, as the best place to end a B.C. visit.

"It's the most foreign of western Canadian cities, and therefore leaves a pleasant aftertaste of 'abroad'."

Thanks again.

Sampling water at Clover Point where sewage has flowed for 78 years

Outfall Passes Test . . . So Far

Sampling of water from the surface to the sea bed at the mouth of the mile-long Macaulay Point sewer outfall has not turned up any biological problem so far, a University of Victoria biologist said today.

Prof. Derek Ellis said testing includes analysis of algae and samples from the ocean floor as well as water at all levels through the 200-foot depth.

The outfall, 36 inches in diameter, is currently carrying almost 10½ million gallons of sewage daily into the Strait of Juan de Fuca. It has been in operation 10 months, replacing an outfall which discharged sewage a few feet from shore at Macaulay Point in Esquimalt.

Ellis and fellow biologist Jack Littlepage are in charge of an independent evaluation program for the Capital regional district which is measuring the effects of the new outfall. Their testing began a year before the pipe went operational to provide comparative data.

The biologists are also conducting a monitoring program off Clover Point for the pollution control branch. Most of Victoria city's sewage is discharged there just below low tide line.

A control station there also enables them to make sure any pollution found at Macaulay Point isn't originating off Clover Point.

Very high coliform counts (one measure of pollution) continue to be found at Clover Point, Ellis said today. The study there also examines the long-term effects of sewage discharge. The Clover Point outfall has been used since 1894.

The Macaulay Point outfall is authorized under a three-year permit from the pollution control branch. The studies will determine whether a treatment plant is needed.

Elford to Drop Sports Centre Swap Proposal

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Oak Bay's Mayor Frances Elford today conceded defeat in trying to persuade her council to accept a controversial swap proposal by Farmer Construction Ltd.

She said, that as far as she was concerned, the issue is closed.

"This is a sad day for Oak Bay," she said. "Council has decided not to accept Farmer's outstanding offer, the like of which we'll never have again."

Farmer Construction proposed building a curling-hockey complex free in return for being given the 9.3-acre academy site, now priced at $850,000 by council.

The firm had wanted to build three 12-storey towers and 50 town houses on the site.

A bid to hold a referendum on the swap proposal was defeated at Monday's council meeting. This, said the mayor, meant council had "literally turned down" the project.

The referendum vote came after more than two hours of debate, heard by more than 100 residents.

Among those opposing the swap was Dr. G. Scott Wallace, Progressive Conservative MP for the riding and a former alderman.

Wallace, noting that Ald. Douglas Watts had intimated that Oak Bay would be getting a $1 million complex in exchange for $850,000 (the asking price of the academy site), said:

"Nobody in business gives away $150,000," he said and cautioned "council shouldn't go into this degree of planning with one developer without some other proposal."

Jack Sambrooke and Bert Bertoia, members of the Oak Bay Recreation Action Group, said they were in favor of a recreation complex at this time and Bertoia stressed that if the Farmer proposal was accepted no increase in taxes would be needed to get one.

Ald. John Goult said the issue at stake was not whether council supported a centre. Both he and Ald. Douglas McLelland told the audience that council had commissioned architect John Di Castri to draw up plans for one.

Goult said, "We are getting to the nub now. If we choose to accept the Farmer proposal this council will be under obligation to consider it as a whole. It is simply not a matter of hockey sticks and ice skates for the winter."

Supporting the Farmer proposal, Watts said revenue from the academy site would be in the neighborhood of two mills and another two mills would be saved by the company building the complex.

Ald McLelland disagreed:

"Farmer Construction has unwittingly brought the Trojan horse into Oak Bay. If the price is right and we have three highrises, it will be if they have them up there, why can't we have them down here? You're not looking at two mills, you're looking at a ring of 15 highrises."

After McLelland had stressed that nobody on council was against a recreation complex but "the real debate is how you pay for it," Bertoia and other RAG members said they would support any move to get one.

Watts moved the council approve in principle that a referendum be drawn up on the acceptance of Farmer Construction's development of the Riding academy property with the proceeds to be used for the recreational centre.

The motion was defeated; the mayor, Watts, and Ald. Norman Pimlott voting for it with Alds. Shirley Dowell, Goult, Smith and McLelland opposed.

GAINS

Gains Named Fire Chief In Saanich

Assistant chief Harold Gains, 53, will take over as chief of Saanich fire department on his 26th anniversary of joining the force Aug. 1, 1946.

Gains was appointed to assume the post of chief Glen Robbins, who retires July 31.

Mayor Hugh Curtis, a member of council's personnel committee, said Gains is "an excellent member and officer of the department."

He was the sole applicant among 15 eligible officers of Saanich fire department invited to compete for the appointment.

Gains was promoted to lieutenant Nov. 1, 1965, and to assistant chief April 2, 1971. He has taken firefighting administration courses at McMaster University and B.C. Institute of Technology, qualifying him for the responsibilities of chief.

Saanich-born, Gains is married with three sons, one living at home, 4116 Cedar Hill Road.

Hospital Posts Under Discussion

Appointment of an assistant executive director at Queen Victoria Hospital will be considered at the next board meeting, chairman Alex Wood said today.

The hospital has been without an assistant for Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, executive director, since Pat Bluett accepted a senior post in Ontario about two years ago.

Wood said the board has been reviewing the administrative positions at the hospital since it took over this spring from the Sisters of St. Ann. While no changes are contemplated, it needs to confirm a number of appointments.

He confirmed that Carl Hortie, acting director of administrative services, has left. He takes a new position at Royal Jubilee Hospital as director of supply services.

Asked about resignation of Sister Mary Doris, director of nursing, Wood said he hoped she could be persuaded not to leave but any comment would have to come from there. She could not be reached for comment.

Many hospitals have medical directors to serve as the link between doctors on staff and the hospital board but Queen Victoria has been without one for about three years.

Trustees Beaten On Ban

Greater Victoria school board was beaten to the punch Monday in getting rid of what some trustees considered an objectionable story in a Grade 5 reader about an Indian who ran into trouble with the law.

The department of education announced earlier in the day the story won't appear in new textbooks.

The story, included in the reader Under Canadian Skies, will be phased out in all existing readers within three years. Objections to the story were that it portrayed all Indians as troublemakers.

Board Transfers Principals

The Greater Victoria school board today announced the transfers of three principals and seven vice-principals in district elementary schools.

Robert Mainwaring, principal of Campus View Elementary, is going to Braefoot Elementary. Braefoot principal Donald McKinnon moves to Rockheights Elementary and Rockheights principal Robert McKee moves to Campus View.

Vice-principal transfers include W. H. Abbott moving from Sir James Douglas Elementary to Willows Elementary, G. C. Chater from Cloverdale to Sir James Douglas, William Kirby from Margaret Jenkins to Cloverdale, Leo Stratholt from Craigflower to Margaret Jenkins, E. S. Shortt from Uplands to Craigflower, W. C. Bell from Quadra to Macaulay and A. G. Mason from Macaulay to Quadra.

E. W. Thomson has been appointed first assistant at Uplands. Garnet Jackson, vice-principal of Willows, has accepted a Department of National Defence teaching job in Europe.

Other transfers will be necessary in the near future as the board Monday night received the resignation of Robert H. Jones, who is leaving Tillicum Elementary for health reasons.

Ask the Times

Q. Can only liquor stores sell beer, wine and hard liquor, and who owns the company that advertises Dial-A-Bottle? L.I.

A. Apart from such places as cocktail bars, dining establishments and beer parlors licenced by the Liquor Control Board, only provincial government liquor stores can sell liquor. However, private individuals or groups can get a banquet or entertainment licence to sell liquor, beer and wine at private parties.

Application forms can be picked up at liquor stores, and then taken to the local police department where you will get a special permit ($1 for beer and wine, and $2 for hard liquor.)

The refreshments cannot be sold for profit.

The Dial-A-Bottle service is privately owned. In Victoria, the manager is Burt Anderson who operates under a franchise from the parent firm in Vancouver. The service holds a business licence from city hall.

Q. Could you please tell me where to write in Ottawa about my old age pension? — G.S.

A. Old age pensions are administered through the regional offices of the department of national health and welfare. You should write to the Victoria office, 1230 Government.

Q. Could you give information on receiving mail while on an extended tour of Europe? Is there such a thing as "general delivery" in Europe.

A. Yes, letters can be mailed "general delivery to European cities. Canada House and British Columbia House in London and the various Canadian embassies, as well as American Express offices, can be used as addresses. The Post Office advises all letters sent to such addresses be marked "Hold For Arrival.

Q. Would you please tell me the mailing address of Jacques Cousteau?—J.P.

A. The Institute Oceanographique, Monaco.

'Snobbish, Outdated Attitude' Of Home Owners Upsets Citizen

The snobbery of single family housing was cited by a ratepayer at Saanich council meeting Monday, but instead of getting a rise he got compliments.

L. W. Jones, 5-1701 MacKenzie, was given permission to address council on row housing, in which he referred to a remark in April by Mayor Hugh Curtis likening the type of development to wartime housing.

The mayor's reference was to potential development with row houses of a choice building site having a view of the Olympic mountains.

He suggested a better type of development would be more suitable.

Jones said in general statements of this kind, "all are condemned.

"I cannot see any person holding public office, especially a mayor, running down any type of housing," he said.

"Are we (who live in row houses) to be condemned to the less salubrious parts of town?" he asked. He wondered why the site in question was too good for that type of development.

"This way of thinking has got to change. The attitude of single family home owners is snobbish, outdated . . . We've got to look ahead in these things," Jones said.

If that same attitude persisted in Vancouver, the single family sprawl would extend to Chilliwack, he declared.

Curtis apologized to Jones and said his remark was not intended to be harmful toward row housing occupants.

But he accused Jones of being overly sensitive.

"If every member of council stopped to consider every single word, it would be very slow progress indeed," Curtis said.

Ald. Edith Gunning said it was true, there is a snobbery about single family housing.

"The single family dwelling seems to have about it an aura of sanctity."

More people should speak out like Jones about townhouses, she said.

Ald. Frank Waring said Jones had robbed him of his arguments in rebuttal, having been prepared for an attack on row housing.

Apology Needed

DEAR ABBY: The mother who said her son put on an act in public, slurping, giggling, crossing his eyes and falling all over the place "like a retarded person" owes the retarded an apology.

My brother is a retarded mongoloid, and he never behaved any such way. In fact, his manners are far above most normal people.

I've also visited a hospital for retarded and I've never seen anything but politeness and good manners there — Sister

DEAR ABBY: I am writing for my comparative religions class.

We held an interesting discussion on the letter from the mother whose 16-year-old son, Bill, mimicked a mentally retarded person "to make people laugh" and his father was his best audience.

Our class consists of students from the 9th through 12th grades, and we'd like for "Bill" to know how her peers feel about his behavior:

Bill needs help. He is trying desperately to get the attention which he never received as a child. A suggested cure would be for him to work with retarded children.

And as far as Bill's father is concerned, I think we all left class with a greater appreciation of our own. — Class Secretary

DEAR ABBY: I am really angry about that teen-aged boy who acted like a nut on the street. I can't understand why his mother didn't hit him with the first thing handy.

One way to cure him would be to take him (and his father, who thought the performance was sidesplitting) on a tour of the nearest mental hospital, including the back wards where they keep the most severely afflicted.

If that boy and his father were still laughing by the time they finished the tour, she should have them both committeed. — Esther

Women In Exile

By JUDY KLEMESRUD
Special to the Times

MONTREAL — Like their husbands and boy-friends, American women in exile here seem to b caught up in an motional debate about whether they are "copping out," of being true to their principles, by remaining in Canada.

There is one major difference, of course: the women do not need an amnesty bill passed by Congress to travel to the United States. They can come and go as the please, and they do. However, the men, as draft dodgers and deserters, face sentences of up to 10 years in prison and $10,000 in fines if they're caught in their native land.

Some women return to the United States shortly after they arrive here, leaving behind them a broken marriage or relationship. ("The first three months here are really trumatic for couples because of all the uncertainties," said a 25-year-old wife of a draft dodger who has been in Montreal a year.)

For those women who stay and qualify as landed immigrants life is in some ways easier, and in other ways more difficult, than it is for their men. American women generally have less trouble finding jobs (especially as waitresses, secretaries and domestic workers) than their men do.

However, the unpleasant side is the discrimination that many of the women say they feel in predominantly French, Roman Catholic Quebec — an oppression they believe is greater than they encountered in the United States.

"There are a lot of male Chauvinist pigs on the street," said Rita Noguchi (not her real name), a 22-year-old biology student and underground abortion counsellor from Salt Lake City who came to Montreal two years ago with her boy-friend shortly after he got his draft notice. "In America, the men just look, but here they physically touch you, which freaks me out."

Other women who were interviewed mentioned not being able to enter taverns in Montreal, low salaries in comparision with those of men in the same jobs, and the fact that, until recently, they couldn't sit on juries or sign themselves in or out of hospitals.

Miss Noguchi, whose father is a Japanese-American cook, became active in the Montreal women's movement after undergoing an illegal abortion here last August. She said she regarded her time in Canada as "a vacation" and that she especially missed being involved in the American antiwar movement.

"I feel sort of like a copout here," she said, while her boy-frind, Shem, who collects $28 a week in welfare, drank beer in a back room of their apartment with two vociferous French separatists.

"Canada is no paradise; I'm not happy here and I don't intend to stay."

There are no estimates as to how many American women have followed their men to Canada. The number of male fugitives has been estimated at between 10,000 and 100,000, depending on whether you're talking to someone from the U.S. or Canadian government (they tend toward to the low side) or an anti-war group (they tend toward the high side).

Most of the Americans are clustered in Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and Vancouver. The great majority of them are white.

Because of the troop withdrawals from Vietnam, the flow of young refugees to Canada has decreased considerably.

In 1969, about 20 draft dodgers and deserters a day sought refuge in Montreal, according to Susan Lloyd, 25, whose draft-resisting husband, Richard Gooding, is a counselor to American expatriates in Montreal. Today, she said, the number has slowed to between 20 and 40 in a four-month period.

A Continuing Saga of 2,000-Mile Train Trip

Today is our second day aboard "The Orange Blossom Special" hurtling past endless miles of hauntingly forgettable scenery bound for our new home.

Of course, we are not always hurtling. Seventeen or eighteen times a day we stop in small towns with names like "Beavernose" where we are greeted by the sight of all the senior male citizenry snickering and pointing their fingers at us.

During the night we discovered that our son's pull-down roomette bed, like a surly mare trying to return to the stable, has the unnerving tendency to snap back into the wall with him in it.

Actually, this unnerves only me. Our son viewed being swallowed by a bed as a definite plus factor, and all night long we heard a muffled cry of "Whee!" every time he levitated.

Our children spend a great deal of time in the baggage car, whiling away the hours by switching tags on the luggage and playing with our dog and a German Shepherd. This morning they discovered that during the night someone had brought aboard six boxes of baby chicks. Now, I know our children. They didn't mean to let 300 chickens loose in the baggage car. And I'm certain that the conductor will get the 296 that the German Shepherd didn't eat back in their boxes by tomorrow.

This evening the children asked the conductor for some post cards and stationery so that they could write to their friends back home.

"Isn't that grand?" I remarked to my husband. "They are so excited over their first train trip that they can't wait to tell everyone about it."

"Mom," our son called to me. "How do you spell 'boring'?"

Amendments Won't Help Poor

QUEBEC (CP) — Perry Ronayne of Dartmouth, N.S., told a housing discussion at a Canadian Conference on Social Welfare that the central issue "is to get people in power to realize the problems and to get them to make decisions."

Mr. Ronayne, who is chairman of the board of the Interfaith Non-profit Housing Corp. in Halifax, also said the housing problem could be solved if Canadians are willing to face the issue squarely and make the necessary sacrifices.

Government agencies set up immense hurdles for citizen's groups and it takes months to find out what is being done, he said.

He said his group has written promises for $300,000 and is hoping to get 200 acres of land from the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. to build its own housing project.

The session was also told that recently-proposed amendements to the National Housing Act to make $57 million available for low-cost housing "will not do anything significant for the poor."

Prof. Joseph Baker, of McGill Univeristy's school of architecture, said the main deficiency of the amendments is that they are aimed at people in the $8,000 to $10,000 annual income bracket and "they won't get to low-income groups."

Prof. Baker criticized the CMHC for preparing the amendments for Parliament without first publishing a policy paper that could be used for public discussions on the topic. The CMHC is the federal government's housing agency.

'Lost Identity' Crisis

family

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

The person who loses a wallet these days often worries less about missing cash than lost identity.

In North America, there has been a move towards "plastic money" and computerized cards for everything from medical care to international club memberships. So, losing your wallet can result in hours of phone calls and letters of explanation, all to re-establish that you are who you say you are.

Take, for instance, the case of the missing wallet and $1.41.

No one is going to fret over $1.41.

Big Problem

However, the loss of the wallet's plasticized "accordion" containing birth certificate, driver's licence, gas station credit card, auto insurance "pink slip," press identity card and social insurance number present its owner with a much bigger retrieval headache.

First, make sure you have really lost your property, suggests a spokesman for the records department of Victoria city police. All too often, the lost wallet embarrassingly emerges from the back of a drawer, or turns up in those trousers "you haven't worn in years."

Having established that your wallet is really missing and not merely misplaced, sit down and list the contents as far as you can remember them before phoning the police with an account of where and when the loss occurred.

Two kinds of disasters can follow a wallet loss — the economic crisis and the identity crisis.

Credit cards save you carrying hard cash around with you, but they can cost you dearly, should they fall into unscrupulous hands.

Bank officials in charge of credit card facilities stress the need for immediate reporting of any loss. The bank concerned will cancel your old account number and issue you with another at your request. In most cases, replacement is free and takes two to three weeks. One bank, whose cards bear a photograph of the rightful owner, does charge a replacement fee of $2, but this, a spokesman explained, is merely to cover cost of a new photo.

From July 1, all new B.C. drivers' licences will carry the owner's photograph. Replacement means that the driver will have to fill in a re-application form and mail it with a $2 fee to the provincial government's driving licence division. If you lose your B.C. licence while on holiday out of the province, you can have a temporary one issued to you, good for 90 days and stamped "valid without photograph" until your return, when a full licence is issued at no extra charge.

$2 Cost

Birth certificates, necessary proof of age from the first day at school to the day your Final Application is lodged, cost $2 to replace. B.C.'s director of vital statistics wants to know your date and place of birth, your parents' names and the maiden name of your mother before issuing you a new copy. The process takes about a week, sometimes longer in summer months, when passport applications increase.

A spokesman for the B.C. Medical Plan says people can be very vague when reporting lost medical coverage cards. He suggests you make quite certain which of the three available medical schemes you belong to. Renewal applications can be made in most cases through your employer or by writing directly to the enrolment manager of your plan, quoting your coverage number, where possible.

For the person who carries several credit cards for stores, gas stations or the multi-purpose cards of the Chargex or American Express type, a sound move is to check with your insurance agent about credit card cover policies. Several companies now offer, for a small annual premium, protection against fraudulent use of your card if it should be lost.

During summer months, when people wear lighter clothing, with fewer pockets, spend time on crowded beaches and leave valuables in beach bags or "hidden" in towels while they swim, particular care should be taken.

Sex researchers Masters and Johnson

Approach Sex 'Like a Good Meal'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Doctors and ministers on the whole are guilty of appalling sexual ignorance but will be deluged in the near future with demands from the public for sex counselling, sex researchers Masters and Johnson told delegates to the American Medical Association convention here.

The demand for help will come as Americans learn to approach sex in the same comfortable way they approach eating, Drs. William H. Masters and Virginia Johnson Masters said.

The couple discussed the maritally destructive influences of sexual inadequacy in a paper delivered Sunday night at a scientific session of the annual AMA meeting.

They named as the major forms of sexual "disfunction," different levels of sexual desire by partners and inability to communicate different needs, impotence, premature ejaculation and failure to obtain orgasm.

Masters and Johnson said a "massive clinical demand" for sex counselling should become obvious within the next two or three years.

Although at least 50 per cent of all marriages suffer from a clinically significant degree of sexual disfunction, they said, no medical schools had a course on sex until 12 years ago. Even now, a quarter of the schools do not include natural sexual functioning in their curriculum.

"How embarrassing, even how appalling it is, that medicine and theology have consistently refused to accept" every challenge to dispel misconceptions that threaten the stability of marriage, they said.

"First, the professionals, then the general public, must be educated to the concept that sexual function is an integral part of every man or woman's physical means of communication.

"We simply must cease equating sex with sin."

The average man or woman thinks more about sex than any other subject, they said, and it should be approached "in the same comfortable manner they accept the resolution of their hunger symptoms."

"How healthy it would be if men and women could enjoy the same comfortable interaction in the bedroom that they do in the dining room," Masters and Johnson said.

"As with appetite for food, sexual hunger should be resolved when present but never forced if absent.

"As professionals, we must teach husbands and wives to communicate that waxing and waning of their sexual appetites."

Earlier that evening the president of the association warned that doctors should be careful about expanding their profession or they might face the problems of oversupply currently plaguing elementary school teachers and engineers.

Dr. Wesley W. Hall of Reno, the outgoing president of the nation's largest physicians' organization, said that such an oversupply is "not beyond the realm of possibility."

"It has been said we need 50,000 more doctors in the United States," said Hall. "Just how many do we really need?

"In 1970, there was one doctor for each 632 people in this country. Do we need one doctor for each 400? For each 200? For each 100?

"It would seem to me that with 108 medical schools in operation now and with six or seven to open in September, and with 15 or more on the drawing board, it might well be time to stop, look and listen and take inventory," the Reno doctor said.

Hall suggested that the AMA create a special ad hoc commission from outside the profession to do a thorough analysis of the number of doctors needed, the types of doctors needed, and their distribution in urban and rural areas.

A Mayo Clinic researcher reported Monday that doses of an acid found in human bile have been given gallstone patients to melt away the stones so they don't have to be removed surgically.

Dr. Johnson L. Thistle said the experimental technique has been used successfully on seven women but that it needs much more study.

Thistle said carefully monitored oral doses of chenodeoxycholic acid, a primary acid of human bile, resulted in disappearance of gallstones in four women and a decrease in stone size in the other three after six to 24 months of treatment.

He said no problems had been detected in the patients, but emphasized that long-term, carefully controlled studies are needed, especially in regard to liver function and cholesterol metabolism. Thistle said studies are currently under way on an expanded group of 70 patients.

Gallstones are one of the leading causes of surgery in the United States — about a third of the 15 million Americans afflicted by them each year undergoing operations.

Toy Makers to Drop Bombs, Grenades

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Toy merchants, on orders from the California legislature, are dropping bombs, grenades and torture instruments from their stock-in-trade.

Under new legislation, they have until July 1 to jettison toys which critics say have violent influences in the sandbox or playpen.

The law, believed to be the first of its kind in the United States, prohibits manufacture or sale of such toys and provides fines of up to $300.

But most merchants say anti-war sentiments and alarm over increasing crime reduced the demand for war toys even before the legislation was passed.

Assemblyman John Bolton of San Francisco, who introduced the legislation, said:

"We are indoctrinated toward violence. We have enough of that sort of thing around without encouraging kids in it. The next step would be to ban sophisticated war toys. Anything that makes war and violence attractive and inviting is a bad thing. How anyone can label these things as toys is beyond me."

The law exempts "any model of an aircraft, ship, motor vehicle, railroad engine, car or rocketship or other spacecraft" from the ban. It does not apply to toy guns.

Joseph Busch, Los Angeles County district attorney, said he was notifying city lawyers, law enforcement officers manufacturers, wholesale distributors and major retailers that the law becomes effective July 1.

He said his office's unit, which makes inspections for unsafe toys, will check for banned items.

"Violence in our country should not be further encouraged by the sale of grisly depictions of torture and torture devices," he said. "Law enforcement has enough problems with real bombs and grenades without allowing the proliferation of false explosives."

The Toy Manufacturers of America, the industry organization based in New York, says the California law is the only one of its kind in the U.S.

"I think it (the law) will have very little effect on the industry," said association President Walter Ross.

"There was a series of vampire and torture model kits on the market a few years ago. I believe that sort of thing inspired the Burton Act. The growing unpopularity of the Vietnam war did much to decrease the popularity of war-type toys."

Mattell Inc., the biggest U.S. toy manufacturer, said it wasn't manufacturing the type of toys banned.

"Most of our 'monster' sales have slowed down," said a spokesman for the Los Angeles branch of F. A. O. Schwarz, a toy store on New York's Fifth Avenue. "War toys are not carried."

Federal Status Council Urged

REGINA (CP) — The Canadian Federation of University Women will press for a federal status of women council.

The federation, representing 122 clubs and more than 11,000 members, passed a resolution near the close of its annual meeting here asking the government to set up such a body.

The federation would like to see the council set up under a minister who would report directly to parliament.

Delegates also passed a resolution giving CFUW support to recommendations of the status of women report concerning day care centres. The resolution asks that day care centres be initiated at the community level by non-profit organizations but it rejects the idea of publicly-funded profit-making centres.

A number of resolutions relating to pollution got approval. The federation urges all levels of government to establish definite policies on the disposal of solid wastes and give research priority to recycling and reconversion as a method of treatment.

9 TROUBLED YEARS MARK PAUL'S REIGN

VATICAN CITY (AP) — This week Pope Paul completes nine years of a troubled papacy.

He has stood firm on issues of faith, birth control and priestly celibacy despite challenges to papal authority which have brought him to tears many times.

Close associates have said the Pope is so deeply affected by the revolt in the ranks of laymen and prelates that he would like to leave the cares of his office.

But he feels kings can abdicate but Popes cannot.

Nine years ago Wednesday, the Pope was elected.

A few years later, he started referring in speeches to the "immense burden," of being the spiritual leader of 600 million Roman Catholics in a fast-changing world.

Last April he told a group of nuns in audience; "It would be beautiful to be able to shake off the burden of the Church and say I do not want it."

Peter Hall's film Perfect Friday is interesting because it manages to be slick and unpretentious at the same time.

Certainly it won't break any records attracting audiences. No one seems to expect it. Its fate is to hold up the bottom end of double bills as it is doing this week in Victoria.

Nonetheless, the combining of the talents of its competent cast and craftsmen is well worth their effort. The product is simple entertainment.

The film play deals with a conspiracy in the tried-and-true style of English mystery-comedies. A meticulous bank official master minds a plot to rob his employers of 200,000 pounds with the help of a foppish and impoverished earl and his high-living lady.

Yes, all the sterotypes are there. So are the gimmicks and the little tests of the audience's loyalty to the bad guy-heroes, the ticklish situation when the plot almost falls through. There is even a chase scene and an ending with a twist which, of course, we could have figured out from the beginning if we did not have the sense of humor to play along.

But we don't because it is quite pleasant witnessing the predictable manifest itself when it is done with measured showmanship and much know-how.

No opportunity is given the viewer to wander away from the story even if the story is a bit thin. All questions are smartly answered even though the questions aren't very difficult.

Stanley Baker's performances as the assistant under manager of a London bank is as believable as any of his old roles as a sophisticated tough. David Warner, as the decadent and immoral Earl of Forset probably does the finest job of the show. And Ursula Andress adds, besides her primative beauty, the necessary style to complete this otherwise unlikely comedy team.

There is never a flaw in the camera work, editing or direction which refuse to be overworked and, at the same time, are also capable of handling the task.

It all flows together very easily.

PORTLAND, Me. — The only woman senator in the United States, 74-year-old Margaret Chase Smith, defeated a combination of youth and money to win Republican nomination for a fifth term.

Mrs. Smith will face Democrat William Hathaway, a popular four-term congressman.

With 602 of Maine's 629 voting districts reported, Mrs. Smith had 71,107 votes to 34,527 for Robert A. G. Monks, 38, a millionaire businessman.

Mrs. Smith maintained her usual low-ky weekends-only campaign.

WASHINGTON — Rep. Les Aspin wants Congressional action to assure the next Joe Frazier-Muhammad Ali heavyweigh championship fight is shown free on home television. Closed-circuit television-tickets to the fight could average $25, Aspin said.

OTTAWA — John Diefenbaker told the Commons Monday he has seen pictures of "a slaughter" of Western wood buffalo during a recent helicopter roundup of the government-protected animals, which caused a stampede.

He asked Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien for a report on the roundup in Wood Buffalo national park, northern Alberta, which he said caused the animals unnecessary cruelty.

SECHELT — Premier Bennett visited the Sunshine Coast during the weekend and promised his government "will leave no stone untrurned to protect the ecology and environment of Sechelt and the whole of the beautiful province of British Columbia."

Bennett, accompanied by his wife and Minister-without-Portfolio Isabel Dawson, was greeted by smiles and applause, a contrast to the reception given him in many places during a recent cabinet tour of the province.

He participated in official openings of the Elphinstone Pioneer Museum in Gibsons, and presented a plaque dedicating improvements at the Sechelt public library. He also took part in a ceremony marking the area's strawberry festival.

Former Presbyterian Moderator Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. James Alan Munro, 72, a former moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, was found dead Monday at his home.

Mr. Munro had suffered a heart ailment for some years.

He was executive director of the National Development Fund, through which the church has raised more than $4 million for capital needs.

Born in Winnipeg, he was educated at Saskatoon Teachers College and the University of Saskatoon, from which he graduated with a bachelor of arts degree.

After teaching in Saskatchewan he came to Knox College here, graduating in 1931.

He served at Rosetown, Sask., and Chilliwack, B.C., before joining the Canadian Army as a chaplain.

Following discharge, he became superintendent of missions for Western Canada and took over the national post of secretary for home missions in 1940, a position he held for 16 years.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. R. Elliott of Victoria and Mrs. J. O. Wilhelm of Toronto.

SAANICH PRESERVES VOTING STATUS QUO

Election reform was rejected by Saanich council Monday night.

In earlier committee discussion concerning simultaneous election for all members of council every two years, aldermen were split.

But Monday night full council voted 5-3 against the proposal and backed that with a 5-3 vote for the system used at present — annual elections with half the council's terms expiring each year.

Chief proponent of the two-year system was Ald. Edith Gunning, backed by Alan Newberry and Fred Severson.

In moving the status quo be endorsed, Ald. Leslie Passmore said, "As far as I'm concerned, I'm happy with a good thing."

The subject was raised by the Union of B.C. Municipalities, which asked local councils to state a preference for the existing system; elections every two years, or elections every three years, in each case with all candidates running together, including the mayor.

Gunning argued that with the mayor as a candidate for every election there would be more voter interest, there would be greater uniformity with other parts of Canada and elections would cost less.

To the argument that continuity could be lost if voters decided to elect an entirely new council at any given election, she replied:

"The public should have the right to dismiss the whole regime if they want to." She agreed it would be over a serious matter if that happened.

Passmore said he opposed the stand because he felt an emotional issue raised just before an election could obscure the past performance of a council and sway the electorate. He felt continuity is important, which the current system achieves with overlapping terms of office.

He said there had been no "real objections" from anybody and he thought council was "doing quite well as we are."

Newberry said he approved the two-year system because it tends to concentrate all the issues at one time, making the whole council politically responsible together.

Ald. William Noel said he had no preference but wondered whether the city of Vancouver, which operates under its own charter and has had the two-year system for some time, is better-run than Saanich.

Mayor Hugh Curtis noted "Vancouver city council is no shining example in this part of the world."

Ald. Frank Waring said he could see nothing wrong with the present system.

Hard Line Taken On Oil Spills

Saanich council Monday made sure the subject of oil spills will be on the agenda at B.C.'s largest municipal forum in September.

A resolution condemning the west coast oil tanker route from Alaska was presented by Mayor Hugh Curtis and unanimously adopted by aldermen after it was noted there was no such effort being made by any other body.

The resolution asks the Union of B.C. Municipalities to convey strong objection to the tanker route to the governments of the province of B.C., the State of Washington and the federal governments of Canada and the U.S.

Curtis said in the preamble that it is impossible, even with the most sophisticated equipment, to prevent oil spillage, and this has a "devastating impact on the entire Pacific Northwest."

Alternative land transport systems can be used for oil, Curtis said.

The UBCM was requested to "acknowledge the importance of oil to the economy and to stress that every effort be made to select an alternative method of transportation which would satisfy and safeguard the national interests of both countries."

He also noted that Saanich is a maritime community with about 15 miles of waterfrontage, 11 natural sand beaches and the prospect of acquiring more, and that many citizens derive their livelihood from the sea.

Council approved nine other resolutions for the September conference.

"I think that's the new record," clerk Gordon Hayward observed.

They concerned the election of directors to regional district boards at the time of other local elections, B.C. Hydro responsibility for financing underground wiring projects, community use of school facilities through joint council-school board projects, providing for equality in per capita grants, welfare costs, fees for municipal service to developers and other matters previously discussed by the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities.

Residents Oppose Pond Plan

Two residents spoke against a proposed "public pond" recommended by the municipal planner at Saanich council meeting Monday.

Peter Kappel, president, and Mrs. Mary Szalai, secretary, represented Northridge Community Association in opposing the petition by Lipsey-Rolston Development Co. Ltd. to make a one-acre park out of land being developed in the Northridge subdivision.

Kappel said the pond nearly drowned two children last winter and Mrs. Szalai said there had been many requests to have it filled in.

They did not object to creation of the park, they told aldermen, who asked if that represented feeling of the community.

"That's my feeling and of the people we talked to," Kappel said.

He pointed out there was no great advantage to another park when there was one on Vanalman a short distance away.

Engineer Frank Neate said much of the hazard could be dealt with once the pond became a municipal responsibility — such as flattening the slope to reduce the chance of dropping off the bank.

Council followed the suggestion of Mayor Hugh Curtis in turning the matter over to public works committee for examination.

Garbage Remains a Burning Question

Aldermen dealt with the Saanich burning question Monday night — for the umpteenth time.

And despite repeated complaints reported by several of the aldermen, backyard incinerators will remain a way of life in Saanich.

A letter from Mrs. Ivan Crull, 3977 Maria, revived the issue. She protested the burning of garbage by residents at carefully noted times of the night — eight and 10 o'clock.

"Neighbors who are so base as to light fires at night should have their fire permits taken away," she wrote.

No one needs to burn garbage when there is weekly pickup of domestic waste, she declared.

Council should ban backyard burning during afternoons, Sundays, holidays and Mondays (washday), Mrs. Crull said.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said he would support a moderate ban on burning and reminded aldermen he had tried to initiate one himself, "but council shot me down — in flames, I might add."

He said Saanich is in the "dark ages — perhaps due to smoke — because we have no authority aside from that of the (local deputy assistant) fire marshal" to control fires.

Ald. Alan Newberry said his experience had shown that often incinerators are the "visible weapons in neighborhood warfare," used as reprisal when neighbors can't get along with each other.

Council supported a suggestion from Ald. Leslie Passmore that residents be asked "not to be stinkers" by means of cards mailed out with water bills.

CANADA MAY FOLLOW U.S. CIG WARNING

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is regulation that warnings about the health hazard of cigarette smoking be included in print advertising, Health Minister John Munro said Monday.

He observed in a Commons reply to Barry Mather (NDP —Surrey-White Rock) that a printed warning already had been required for cigarette packages.

The package message says the federal health department "advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked." Cigarette advertising on television was banned as of last Jan. 1.

Mather said the U.S. federal trade commission requires that a health warning be included in advertising in printed journals.

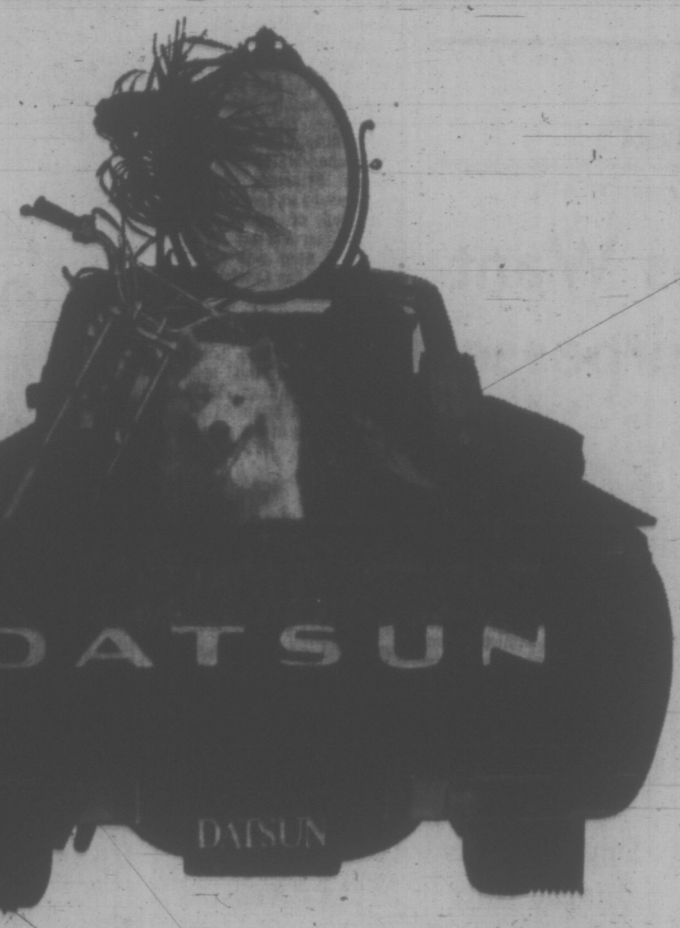
"I've always wanted a sports car.



But I really need a truck."

Datsun announces the new Sportruck

All you really need is a new Datsun Sportruck. It's still North America's number one imported pickup. Only more so now.
Up front, there's an all-new cab with crisp GT styling. Inside, a cushy, angled seat that's as comfortable as sin. With two inches more stretch space for leggy types. And a sexy instrument panel that looks like it was stolen from our 240-Z. (It was).

Take comfort, too, in a slightly longer wheelbase and new cab mounting for sedan-like smoothness. Plus an improved, high capacity heater and flow-through ventilation.

But behind that pretty face, it's still a Datsun. Same rugged suspension. Same eager, rally-winning engine. Same quick gear-box, same big cargo box. Think of the possibilities. You can haul fence posts to the back forty. Haul your camper to the lake. Haul your lady to the dance. All in the same sweet rig.

Datsun Sportruck. It's all you really need.

Datsun is all you really need.

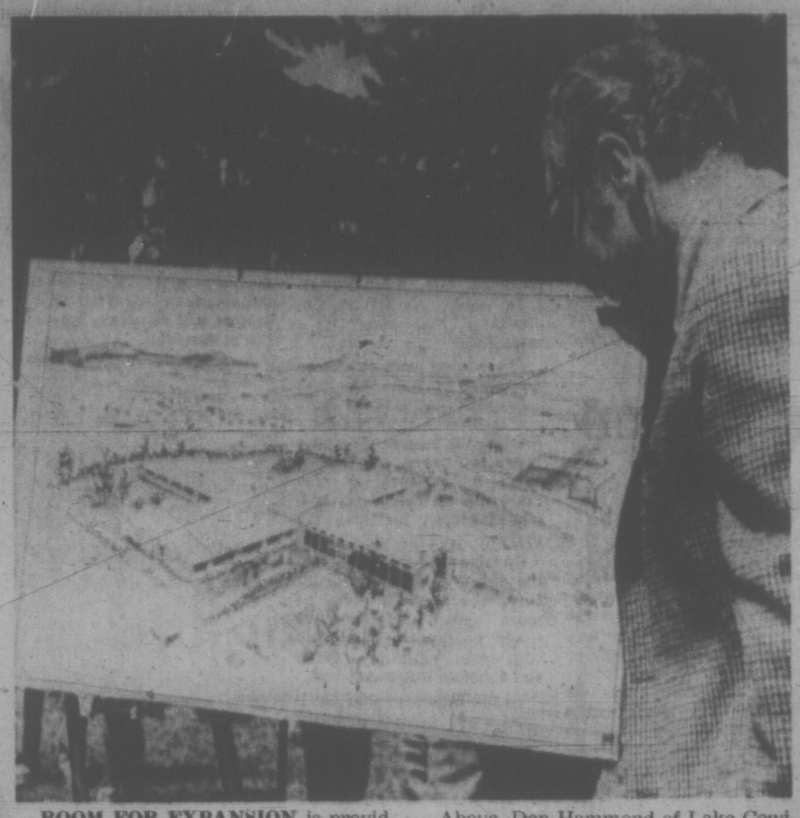
DIGGING DEEP while the men look on is Phyllis Whittome, chairman of Cowichan District Hospital Board. She turned first sod Monday for new extended care hospital on site of old King's Daughters' Hospital. Project is expected to be completed in 11 months and will ease pressure on Cowichan District Hospital, officials say. (Donna Clements photo.)



ROOM FOR EXPANSION is provided in new extended care hospital which will start with 78 beds. Another 22 can be added as need arises. Above, Don Hammond of Lake Cowichan studies sketch of $1 million project.

Shop Centre Proposed

DUNCAN — A Vancouver firm's proposal to open a $1,800,000 shopping centre development adjacent to the Duncan Shopping Plaza by August 1973 was submitted to city council Monday evening.

C. S. Regehr, of Griffith, Lee and Wilson Ltd., said the development which is to be constructed on an eight-acre area, leased from the Cowichan Indian band for a 68-year-term, would provide for a 50,000 square foot department store. For comparison, the existing Safeway store here is 29,000 square feet.

Other new businesses proposed for the centre are: A food market; family clothing store; general merchandise store; band bank and other allied and complementary stores of various sizes.

DUNCAN — The new Cowichan District extended care hospital could be open in eight months but it's more realistic to predict an 11-month project.

Bruce Liddell of H. E. Fowler and Sons contractors said Monday the labor situation is too unsettled to expect fast completion of the $1 million project.

Liddell told more than 100 spectators at a sod-turning ceremony at the old King's Daughters' Hospital site in Duncan that excavation on the site will be started immediately and the rest will depend on when the construction dispute ends.

Cowichan Valley regional hospital district taxpayers approved the project in a 94.6 per cent vote a year ago.

Cowichan district hospital board chairman Phyllis Whittome, who turned the first sod, said the unit will have 78 finished beds but another 22 can eaily be added when the need arises.

There will be room for further horizontal expansion of 100 beds to the single storey woodframe construction.

Regional hospital chairman Don Morton pointed out that although "we are six months behind schedule let's look to the future. We are going to get the hospital built."

Cowichan-Malahat M.L.A. Robert Strachan expressed his pleasure at seeing the second step of comprehensive medical service on its way. The first step was the construction of the Cowichan hospital in 1966.

Special guests at the ceremony were Elizabeth Stock and Beatrice Day, both 89, who were on the original King's Daughters' Hospital auxiliary and attended its official opening at the same site 61 years ago.

Trustees Want Two Overpasses

DUNCAN — Cowichan school board members want two overpasses constructed in the district to provide safe access across the Trans-Canada Highway for children.

Trustees decided Monday evening to ask the support of the department of education in urging the department of highways to construct an overpass on Shepherd Road, Mill Bay, and a second adjacent to Koksilah Elementary School.

Chairman Dave Bradbury said the need for overpasses, which they have been considering for a long time, was brought to a head a week ago when nine-year-old Lorraine Powell, of Cobble Hill, was struck by a half-ton truck while on her way to school.

Irate residents agreed to delay a special meeing over the traffic hazard there until board members could see what they could do.

Bradbury told trustees he has already been in contact with Education Minister Donald brothers and is sure the board will receive his support.

He added that because of the high water table in both places an overpass rather than underpass will have to be considered.

TRUSTEE RESIGNS

DUNCAN — Cowichan school board trustee Oke Olsson, one of Duncan's representatives, has resigned.

Olsson, a beauty shop operator, whose first term was to expire at the end of December, said he resigned due to pressing business demands.

No date for a byelection has been set.

Smythe Heads Duncan Grits

DUNCAN — George Smythe was elected president of the Cowichan-Malahat Liberal Association here Monday.

Other executives chosen were: Sherriden Clements, vice-president; Alan MacKenzie, treasurer; Joe Haddock, secretary.

Cowichans Name Acting Chief

DUNCAN — Norman Joe, chairman of the Cowichan Indian Co-operative Services and band councillor for four years, is the Cowichan Indian Band's acting chief until a byelection fills the position left vacant when Dennis Alphonse resigned last Friday.

Joe, 39, was selected by band council members Monday evening.

Alphonse, also 39, who resigned to spend more time with his eight children and wife, said today he will stay on as band manager until July 3.

As a member of the band council council for 18 years, Alphonse spent seven as chief and the past two as band manager. No date for the byelection has been set.

Chinese Cabbage Offers Something Special

Now that fresh lettuce, beet greens and spinach are coming from the garden daily, we have a chance to look ahead to something special for sowing in July.

The soil will be warm, the temperatures night and day just right, all helpful in growing the versatile Chinese cabbage.

By making a decision now to grow this delicious salad vegetable, you have time before the July 15 sowing date to find the seed.

You may have to hunt around for it, but you can be confident that you will like to eat Chinese cabbage either cooked or raw. It is not a new vegetable, having been used in China during the 5th century AD, though not introduced into Europe until 1845.

* * *

The soil should be rich in humus to hold moisture equably since this vegetable depends on quick growth for its tenderness. If peas were previously grown in the row so much the better for there will be nitrogen residue.

Into the row spread more dampened compost, but use no fertilizers. If the row is on the shady (east) side of pole beans, so much the better to keep the direct heat off in the afternoon.

Never let the seedlings dry out. Thin them gradually to 12 or 15 inches apart, for it will take about eight weeks for a headed cabbage to reach perfection.

If any show signs of flowering, pull them out and discard. Commercial fertilizer will have this effect, but occasional liquid feeding and spraying with alginure encourages general health and growth.

If you know the cos type of lettuce you will know what to expect a Chinese cabbage to look like.

As each plant begins to fold its upright bright green leaves around the heart, tie loosely with soft string near the top to promote heart development.

* * *

Always use when freshly cut from the garden, for this is when the delicate flavor is at its best.

To use raw as in a salad, slice crosswise. Inch thick slices garnished with other salad vegetables and sprinkled with finely grated cheese and nuts will earn you well deserved praise as a discerning hostess.

Remember it will be Labor Day or mid September when you serve the first Chinese cabbage, but the younger ones can be used as you thin them out.

To cook, slice crosswise and simmer for a few minutes in butter and a little water. When done (in about 10 minutes) add a few shrimps or chicken pieces with cooked brown rice and a shake of curry powder.

Sow the seeds next month and enjoy this fine Chinese plant in fall.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

One of the attributes that has been bestowed upon the expert by either nature or environmental circumstances is a high acute degree of pessimism.

In this deal, our South declarer was not pessimistically oriented. As a result, he lost a slam that a more pessimistic player would have fulfilled. Can you isolated South's mistake in play?

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

SOUTH

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	2♠	Pass
3♣	Pass	4♣	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5◇	Pass
6♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ◇.

After winning the opening diamond lead with the queen, declarer paused to examine his assets. It became quickly apparent that his slam appeared to be a cinch: he had no losers in either spades, hearts or diamonds. And since the four outstanding clubs figured to be divided either 2-2 or 3-1, he had just one club loser, to the defenders' ace.

So, without analysing any further, at trick two South led a low club to dummy's jack, West following suit with the deuce. When East discarded a spade on this lead, declarer had become a doomed man. The loss of two trump tricks to West's ace and ten were now inevitable. Where did declarer slip in his play?

Without any doubt, declarer was unlucky in running into a 4-0 division of the outstanding trumps. But, as we all know, there are those days when such things happen. And declarer, in his analysis, failed to give any consideration to this possibility.

At trick two, declarer should not have led a low trump to dummy's jack. Instead, he should have laid down his own king of trumps. West would have won this trick with his ace as East discarded a spade. West would then have returned, let us say, a spade, the board's ace taking the trick. South would now have come back to his own hand via a heart, and laid down the nine of trumps. West's ten would be trapped.

By leading the trump king originally, declarer would be making sure of losing exactly one trump trick. If, in theory, West had failed to follow suit to the lead of the trump king, East would be revealed as the possessor of the A-10-5-2. Upon winning his ace, East would return, let us say, a diamond, South winning.

Next would come a trump to dummy's jack, after which the board's last trump would be led. East's remaining 10-5 would now be trapped by South's Q-9.

NEW SCHOOL BATTERED, BUT PASSED

Greater Victoria school board voted Monday night to go ahead with the new secondary school planned for the Burnside area, but not before dissenting trustees fired a few rounds.

The vote went 6-3 to present the proposal to the department of education for approval. Trustees Walter Donald, Philip Ney and Hal Knight voted against it.

Donald and Ney spoke strongly against the proposal, as they have in the past. But their arguments had little effect.

Donald said he didn't want to see the school board "panic" at the bulge in school population in grades 6, 7 and 8, since population projections for lower grades indicate that secondary school enrolment will decline after an initial jump.

* * *

He also said the concept of a school as large as the one being planned goes against all current educational advice about alienation and impersonalization of students.

"Should we really be building another supermarket-type structure?" Donald asked, adding that alternatives should be explored before taking such a big step.

Ney said the main reason he opposed the new school is that it is "not nearly new enough", that it does not incorporate enough modern thinking.

"What we want now is better education, not more education," he said.

* * *

Ney said he is not convinced that the school will be adequate for educational needs in 25 years, when things are likely to be a lot different.

He added that if the public is not willing to support additional expenses for instruction, it is less likely to support more costs for buildings.

The trustees in favor of the school proposal did not argue in its favor other than Trustee Daphne Temple saying the citizens' committee helping in the plans for the school is a strong one.

If the department of education approves the school project, the board will proceed to build it as part of the 1973-74 construction program.

GETTING HITCHED in Winnipeg, Ellen Benjaminson makes good use of hitching rings, once in use for tethering horses, to protect her bicycle from theft. Winnipeg officials say as many as 4,000 bicycles will be stolen this summer in the city.

Sask. Population Dips

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan will "have to struggle" to maintain its present population, Agriculture Minister Jack Messer said Monday.

Messer said sagging farm income has affected the province's entire economy, resulting in reduced employment and a subsequent small reduction in population.

His remarks were in a speech to a service club delivered by Sharon Simons, an executive-assistant to the minister.

He said the logical solution is to develop an industry to create employment, an industry which would produce a finished product.

"We should set aside as inappropriate the strategy of developing secondary industries exclusively or primarily in relation to mineral resources."

Messer said secondary manufacturing could be linked successfully to agriculture.

We can already point to examples of sucessful operations across the province. This includes rapeseed-crushing plants, Alfalfa-dehydrating plants and other plants which process the products from our farms," he said.

Sheepmen Optimistic

EDMONTON (CP) — The province's sheep industry has more going for it this year than ever before, Robert Shopland of Rochester, chairman of the Alberta Sheep and Wool Commission, said.

A poor cousin in the market place to beef and pork, lamb may be on the verge of receiving more customer acceptance, Shopland said following a special meeting of producers from Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

* * *

Night Ban Urged

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP) — The Manitoba Wildlife Federation at a weekend convention urged municipal governments to ban the discharge of firearms after dark.

Delegates said too many animals, both game and domestic, have been killed after dark. Provincial laws now prohibit night hunting.

* * *

Foundation Backed

EDMONTON (CP) — A foundation which would support drug and alcoholism research and education has been proposed by the Alberta Medical Association.

Dr. C. J. Varvis of Edmonton, president of the Association, said Monday the foundation would collect and manage donated funds for a program which would be led by an expert of "world-wide reputation."

* * *

Worms Threaten

WINNIPEG (CP) — Farmers in the northwest area of Manitoba can expect another full-scale battle to control berta army worms in rapeseed crops this year.

Entomologists with the provincial agriculture department say field surveys have shown a high density of army worm pupae in the Swan River and Roblin areas. There is little hope that natural factors will prevent the army worm moths from hatching, now that the pupae have lasted through the winter.

Lewis Gives Advice

FORT QU'APPELLE, Sask. (CP) — Canadian farmers should enlist the support of the consumer if they hope to save the family farm and rural communities, the leader of the national New Democratic Party said Sunday.

David Lewis told a meeting in this community about 40 miles northeast of Regina, that all Canadians should know that a viable agricultural economy based on the family farm is essential to society as a whole.

Belafonte Ill

EDMONTON (CP) — Singer Harry Belafonte was under doctor's care Monday with a severe cold and throat infection which forced him to cancel four weekend performances in the city.

Belafonte was taken to hospital Sunday morning. He was released after x-rays and having fluid removed from his lungs. Carson Harris, manager for the tour, said Belafonte has a severe cold which "almost developed into pneumonia."

Trustees Decide to Stay With B.C. Association

The B.C. School Trustees Association can still count Greater Victoria trustees among its members today.

But listening to the arguments at Monday night's school board meeting, it would have been difficult to predict that result.

The board voted 6-3 to stay in the BCSTA, despite criticism of the organization's policies and the way it handles its annual conventions.

The supporters of the motion argued that to withdraw from the BCSTA would do more harm than good at this point and that the Victoria board has enough influence on other trustees in the province to make membeership a worthwhile venture.

Trustee Walter Donald opposed membership, saying that manipulation of the agenda of the BCSTA convention in May worked to the detriment of the taxpaying puplic and was a benefit to the vested interests of school board members.

Donald said withdrawal from the BCSTA would jar the body's executive into some positive action.

Trustee Carron Jameson said there have been disagreements between the BCSTA and member boards in the past, but that the body exerts some worthwhile influence on education in the province.

Trustee Peter Bunn attacked the BCSTA executive, its executive director and its conventions, but said there can be something made out of all those faults if Victoria's own trustees worked to try to make it better.

Harry Graham said the trustees should follow the lead of the world's airline pilots by withdrawing their services from the BCSTA "for a year or two" to signify their dissatisfaction.

Board chairman Allan McKinnon said the board didn't receive 10 cents worth of benefits over the last year, much less the $14,000 which was paid in dues.

But despite the objections, the motion was approved and Victoria will be in the BCSTA at least until next January.

'Noisy' Lane Stays

A pedestrian access for Lansdowne Junior Secondary School will remain open despite vigorous complaints of neighbors.

Saanich council will take no action on the request by E. A. Kathol, 1766 Taylor, and Hector McDonald, 1776 Taylor, to have the lane running between their properties discontinued because of its nuisance value.

Aldermen Leslie Passmore and William Campbell said they viewed the property and found it to be wide and relatively short, about 120 feet. Neither house adjoining has windows looking on to the lane, Passmore said.

The children using the access shout, litter the ground with papers and utter loud obscenities, council was told. Also, Kathol said, two youngsters were lured away from the lane and molested a few months ago.

Police concurred with residents that the lane was a source of trouble.

Ald. William Noel suggested Kathol be permitted to raise the height of his fence near the front property line to act as a sound barrier.

Ald. Edith Gunning said the lane constitutes a "real problem" and is an imposition on adjoining property. She suggested police attend the access daily until school term ends, but got no support in view of the fact that children are out next week.

Gas Line Loser In Hydro Plan

VANCOUVER (CP)—A decision by British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority to use some other power source than a gas-fired generating station to meet the growth in energy needs on Vancouver Island will scotch the hopes of Centennial Natural Gas Pipe Line Co. to lay a gas transmission line across the Strait of Georgia, the Public Utilities Commission was told Monday.

Centennial president C. D. Bailey made the statement during presentation of his company's case for a pipeline to the island.

The PUC is inquiring into rival schemes by Centennial and four othrs, Hydro among them, to fuel the Island with natural gas.

Centennial is alone in proposing a cost-of-service line which it would operate in cooperation with hydro.

The suggestion is that Hydro would negotiate initial purchase of the gas and arrange its distribution on the island.

Hydro would pay Centennial for moving the gas from a tap at Williams Lake on the Westcoast Transmission Gas trunk line and landing it ashore or the island af Comox.

Under questioning by Robert Brewer, representing Georgia Gulf Trasmission Ltd., Bailey admitted that deletion of gas for thermal power generation would force his company to abandon its present scheme.

ON THE ROAD . . . OFF THE STANDS

OTTAWA (CP) — On the Road, a pamphlet just released by the health department warning young hitchhikers about drugs, venereal disease and other travelling pitfalls, has been withdrawn from bookstores, Information Canada officials said Monday.

Rober Muir, Conservative MP for Cape Breton — The Sydneys, pointed out several mistakes in the 32-page booklet Thursday.

Sydney, one of the provinces' largest cities, is shown 300 miles from its proper location. The town of Truro is in the wrong place and Dalhousie, N.B., appears to be in Quebec.

Mr. Muir also said that Newfoundland was improperly abbreviated as N.F.

Errors on the pamphlet's Ottawa map also have been found. Kent Street, a major entry to the capital's downtown area is not on the map at all; Sussex Drive, on which the prime minister lives, is not where it should be, and some street names are incorrectly spelled.

Norm Taylor, promotion officer with the health department, said that while the map mistakes are regrettable and should have been avoided, they don't negate the value of the booklet to young hitchhikers.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Spots and a Zig-Zag Line

Thousands of persons will occasionally note that their vision has suddenly become fuzzy, and a minute or so later, on closing the eyes, the person can see a bright little zig-zag line that pulsates. This line quickly lengthens and then tends to bend outward to one side or the other. Sometimes it is bordered by a band of color. In 20 minutes, the line disappears over the outer side of the field of vision, and again the person's vision is normal. I can read during a scotoma spell, but it is difficult.

What I have described is a typical "scintillating scotoma" (in Greek, scotoma means a spot). Such spots come to migrainous persons, and in men they usually are the only symptom of migraine. I have had scotomas all my life and I never had the headache or nausea that most migrainous women get.

Many a person, when he got his first scotoma, thought he was going blind. I am sorry to say that quite a few such people told me that they were not immediately reassured when told what their trouble was, even by the oculists whom they consulted. I know a well-to-do young woman who had her brain explored surgically for a typical and harmless migrainous scotoma.

Fortunately, I have always been able to reassure the person who is worrying about such a scotoma, because I have known hundreds of men who, like me, were bothered by them for many years without getting any loss of vision.

People have been having such scotomas and making note of them since ancient times. I have found references to them in the literature of the ancient Sumerians, who wrote perhaps 1,000 or 2,000 years before the time of Christ.

I am satisfied that my scotomas are my small share of the migraine that so bothered my mother. When a migraine hit her, she might spend a day in a darkened room, where the least noise bothered her a great deal. Such spells came when she had been tired or emotionally upset about something. Men rarely have the severe unilateral (on one side) headache with nausea or vomiting that migrainous women often get. The men generally have only the scotoma. I have seen headaches with nausea and vomiting in a few men, but such men were all intensely nervous and brainy.

The important thing to remember about a scintillating scotoma is that it does not harm the eyes. In 20 minutes it will be gone, and there may only be a temporary feeling of fatigue. There is no need for treating one with medicine, because it is over so quickly.

A man's best friend (could be) his moose . . .

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE NO SOFTIE

EATONVILLE, Wash. (AP) — David and Constance Hellyer have a moose in their back yard, again. He's four year old, nosey and smart in his dumb-looking way.

He was there last fall staring through the ranch windows and ignoring shooing and blasting hi-fi tunes. He finally ambled off when the Hellyers dug out a record called The Language and Music of the Wolves.

Chocolate Mousse — as the Hellyers called him — came back Monday, tried the electric fence and then figured out a way to get around it because the waters of Horseshoe Lake had receded slightly and he could wade past the pesky danger.

His intended mate, Charlotte Eclair, who is only two, stayed out in the forestland, maybe pining.

The pair are part of the Hellyer program for creating a natural outdoor zoo on 535 acres here, near Tacoma, as a gift to the Tacoma Zoological Society.

Dr. Hellyer, a 58-year-old pediatrician about to retire, bought the land for $4.50 an acre in the mid-'30s and held on to it although he has been offered $1 million for it.

Now he has donated the property, exept the house, and with his manager and zoo experts is building the sanctuary to preserve wild life of the Pacific Northwest and Alaska.

It will be ready for the public late next year along with a children's zoo. A million visitors a season, riding on rubber-tired trains, are expected to travel through the natural zoo in time.

AG's Office Rejects Saanich Court Use

An attempt to restore the use of Saanich police court after 6½ years of virtual idleness has been rejected by the attorney-general's department.

Saanich Mayor High Curtis said there is no argument with the central court concept, whose Provincial Court rooms adjoin the city police station on Fisgard Street.

"It continues to concern me that a facility being provided by public dollars is not being put to full use," Curtis said.

He accused the attorney-general's department of "this myopia regarding downtown Victoria, which has been the only source of contention in an otherwise good relationship."

Curtis made his remarks as a member of the Provincial Court Management Committee, consisting of the mayors of Greater Victoria and chaired by Mayor Peter Pollen.

In May the committee asked Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to approach Saanich with a view to making use of its court rooms for coroner's inquests in Greater Victoria.

The committee also said that after a "productive discussion with district Judge William L. Ostler, this committee has concluded that the provincial court building on Fisgard Street should be expanded to provide a third court room to accommodate Judge F. S. Green." Pollen's letter added:

AVAILABLE

"It was noted, however, that very excellent court room facilities are available but unused in Saanich . . ."

Assistant deputy attorney-general A. L. Pearson replied:

"He (the coroner) reports that he is very pleased with existing arrangement and would be loath to make the suggested change at this time."

Pearson said the coroner has been holding all Saanich inquests in Saanich, but cases from other jurisdictions in Greater Victoria have been held in the provincial court room at the Law Courts building on Burdett Avenue, "where there is a commissionaire in attendance and a detachment of the RCMP in offices immediately adjacent to the court room."

SCHEDULE

Most inquests are held in the evenings, when bus service to Saanich is reduced, the coroner noted.

In addition to inquests, Saanich police use the court room for a muster room, training class and special projects, but these account for comparatively little time.

Curtis said he thought the attorney-general "just doesn't like to be reminded of little irritants such as this. The attorney-general has not responded to invitations to see the expanded fire department-police building, at his convenience.

"The deputy attorney-general has now suggested he might be able to see it for a few minutes in the fall.

REFLECTION

"I think this reflects not on Saanich so much as the department," Curtis said.

The tastefully wood-panelled court adjoining the police department's end of the building was built in 1960-61 and went into use in 1962 before the central court was created. Its cost was about $20,000.

Curtis said there was no intention to return to a separate court system, which he said would be "foolish."

Cartridges 'Dangerous'

Up to 400 rounds of .22 calibre cartridges stolen from a building project at the weekend "could be dangerous to anyone," Esquimalt police cautioned today.

Children are suspected of taking three or four boxes of the ammunition in 100-round sizes from an apartment building project at 885 Craigflower.

The cartridges, used to fire special nails into concrete, can be hazardous if struck with a hammer or a rock, police said.

Not Any Election Issues: Anderson

B.C. Liberal leader David Anderson predicted today that Premier Bennett will not call an election as quickly as most people think, because there is no issue on which the Social Credit party could make significant political gains.

Anderson said that if an election was called right now, the result would be a minority government, but he said he is not sure whether it would be Social Credit or NDP.

For his own party, Anderson said an election now would result in the Liberals holding the balance of power a minority government situation.

"It will be the tail that will be wagging the dog," he said.

NO ISSUES

The Liberal leader said Bennett has not been able to make issues of such controversial subjects as the doctors' dispute with the government, the teachers' dispute, the construction lockout, or the attack on cabinet members in New Westminster during their tour of the province.

As soon as people realize that neither the DP or the Socreds will be able to form a majority government, he said, the Liberals will rise in popularity.

"People are looking at us now," he said, "and are saying that it will be us in power when Bennett is gone."

"That's not necessarily saying that Bennett will lose the next election but there is lots of time after that."

MINORITY

Anderson said that if the Socreds hold a minority edge in the legislature, future sittings of the house "will have to be run very, very differently."

"People just won't tolerate any fooling around or else he will be defeated."

Anderson said Bennett may next try to make an issue of the forest workers situation in the province "by blaming labor for everything that is wrong," by using the mediation commission, the courts and a "compliant attorney general."

"His legislation is ad, and he knows it. His legislation is antagonistic, and he knows it."

Anderson added that he has not yet decided in which Greater Victoria riding he will seek a seat in the next election.

BLOOD CLINICS ONE DONOR SHY

One hundred and twenty-four donors fell just one short of the objective Monday at the first of four Red Cross blood clinics this week.

A second clinic today at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort, will be open this evening from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Wednesday's clinic will be in room 205 of the Parliament Buildings, from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

FAMILY DOCTORS MAKE COMEBACK

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The family doctor is coming back strong among the new generation of medical school graduates in the United States.

"The reversal trend from specialized practice is clear," Dr. Carroll L. Witten of Houisville told an American Medical Association family practice session today.

Ninety per cent of the University of Washington's last three medical school classes are entering family practice, said Dr. Edward J. Kowalewski of Baltimore.

Dr. Witten reported that the number of family practitioners in the U.S. dropped to 59,999 in 1967 from 80,000 in 1947 and has returned to 64,000. He said the recovery rate will speed up in future years.

The decline in family practitioners developed with a surge to specialized practice after the Second World War.

The sharp increase in medical graduates choosing family instead of specialized practice reflects both a public need and demand and a commitment in the young medical generation, said Dr. Kowalewski, head of the division of family practice at the University of Maryland.

He said 126 of the 240 students in Maryland's last two classes are choosing to be family physicians.

Teamsters Voting On Propane Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — A three-year contract calling for a 27.7-per-cent wage increase has been recommended for settlement of the 3½-week British Columbia propane industry strike-lockout.

Carl Ansheim, Transport Labor Relations director, said Monday that the 150 teamsters involved will vote on the settlement which offers a 40-cent-an-hour increase in each of the first two years of the contract and a further 40 cents in two stages in the last year.

Ansheim said there is also improvements to health and welfare and vacation benefits. He gave no details.

Teamsters spokesman Pete Moslinger said Lower Mainland propane workers will return to work Wednesday if the offer is accepted. Other areas of the province might take longer, he said.

The contract dispute reached a head when the teamsters struck Canadian Propane and Cigas on May 24. Two other propane companies involved in the joint negotiations, Vigas and Northwest, locked out their employees May 29.

The truck drivers' rate under the old contract was $4.33.

Incinerator Blast Sparks Bylaw Reminder

A man who didn't know a Victoria bylaw bans all outside burning during June, July and August caused a minor incinerator explosion at 8:30 a.m. today.

A gardener from Wayside House, 550 Four Bay Road, ignited the garden refuse, but fire department officials suspect the explosion was caused by oily rags left in the incinerator by painters who had been working in the area this week.

No outside fires are permitted in the city during the summer and only leaves and garden refuse may be burned the rest of the year.

College Chiefs Rap Consultants

Camosun College council chairman Dr. Carron Jameson said Monday he agrees with the argument that a consulting committee set up by the provincial department of education takes away some of the individual colleges' autonomy in the area of curriculum.

Jamson said the issue came up at the weekend meeting of the B.C. Association of Colleges in Vancouver.

Galt Wilson, chairman of Prince George's College of New Caledonia, said the provincial committee is cutting off community influence in the colleges' curriculum.

Wilson cited the example of a construction technology program his college wanted to institute but which was vetoed by the department.

"The decision on this course should have been made by the people who know — the people within the community, the prospective employers — not some committee in Victoria," he said.

Jameson said there should be some community college representation on the consultative committee to give a voice to the people running the colleges.

This type of representation, he said, would make the committee aware of the individual needs of each college area.

Because Prince George has an immediate need for people with construction-type training, Jameson said, the New Caledonia people were quite upset over what happened to their course proposal.

He said another area of discussion at the weekend meeting was the cost sharing formula used by the federal and provincial governments for career and vocational programs.

Jameson said the meeting was valuable and that there was a feeling that B.C.'s community colleges are being appreciated. "Enthusiasm for the college idea has been tremendous," he said. "Everybody seems to be keen about it."

Agnes Gasps Last

APALACHICOLA, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Agnes has gasped her last over backwoods Georgia after a collision with the Florida Panhandle that left homes uprooted, roads awash and millions of dollars in damage.

Agnes, the first of the season's hurricanes, killed 13 persons, injured more than 100 and forced thousands of families from their homes as she rampaged north from Cuba.

Although an 80-mile-an-hour parent of ravaging tornadoes early Monday, the storm was reduced to a disorganized mass by midnight and was sweeping across South Georgia with 45 m.p.h. winds.

Once the storm passed, residents along Florida's northwestern coast began picking their way through the soggy debris they had called home.

One 15-mile stretch bordering the Gulf of Mexico from Carabelle to Eastpoint, Fla., was lined with demolished homes.

While Agnes was churning across the Gulf toward the Panhandle, a backlash slammed into the Tampa Bay area, inflicting $12 million damage on St. Petersburg and neighboring towns.

Flood waters more than three feet deep were reported in several neighborhoods in Pinellas County.

Electrical power and telephone service were interrupted during the day for more than 1,000 homes, and when the flood waters subsided, poisonous snakes, scorpions and spiders turned up in residential sections.

"I killed a five-foot rattlesnake in my yard," one St. Petersburg man reported. "The guy next door killed a coral snake."

Four persons died Monday and several others disappeared when a tornado sliced through three Okeechobee mobile home parks "like a freight train," as one witness described it. About 40 injuries were reported.

Several other twisters ripped through Brevard County on the Atlantic Coast Monday, destroying scores of homes, damaging 60 light planes at Merritt Island Airport and peeling walls from several apartment houses. Sheriff Leigh Wilson estimated the damage at $10 million.

New Call

After 34 years at St. Andrew's Church, Victoria, Dr. J. L. W. McLean will preach his final sermons there Sunday, June 25.

The congregation will hold a going-away party in Kirk Hall, 680 Courtney Street, on Wednesday evening. McLean will take a new parish in Elmira, Ontario on Aug. 1.

Busing Problem Follows School District Abolition

DUNCAN — The dissolution of the Ladysmith school district and amalgamation of the northern portion with Nanaimo and the rest with Cowichan will be effective July 1, Cowichan trustees were advised Monday evening.

Now that the provincial government has approved the change, Cowichan school board members say they are faced with a large busing problem, the distribution of students, and boosting the morale of parents and students from Crofton.

Most students will still attend the same schools, except in the secondary grades.

The current Grade 11 students (about 80) in the Chemainus Secondary School will be bused to Cowichan Senior Secondary. The following year all Grade 11 and 12 students from Chemainus will go to Cowichan.

To make up for the loss of senior students all current Grade 7 students from Crofton (38) will attend the Chemainus school and other members of the family, already attending junior secondary schools in Duncan, may also change schools, trustees decided.

WORK OUT SCHEDULE

Maintenance supervisor George Routley and district superintendent Eric Lewis urged board members to ascertain the attendance as soon as possible so they could work out a busing program and the number of teachers needed at each school before September.

Parents from Crofton fear their children may suffer by being forced to attend the Chemainus school because it is not accredited.

Lewis pointed out the accreditation committee is primarily concerned with the senior grades, 11 and 12, and not the junior ones.

"It is important that the public understand accreditation," he said.

Trustee Dave Haywood stressed that the "attitude of parents and students is an important factor in the change. It is a very important public goal for us to eliminate the fear that students will be going to a non-accredited school. We have to reinforce the concept that Chemainus will be a good secondary school."

Trustees agreed to meet with representatives from the area to outline the position.

"I feel that the students will be fortunate to be sent to Chemainus Secondary School due to the smaller population," Trustee Terry Taylor said.

HOBIE CATS are beginning to prowl on the Pacific Northwest. Up until a year or so ago, you could only see the twin-hulled craft on the waters off Southern California, Florida and Hawaii. Now, they are getting to be a fairly common sight on Puget Sound and inland waterways in Eastern Washington States.

Kremlin Leaders Criticized

MOSCOW (UPI) — An anonymous letter circulating in Moscow criticizes the Kremlin leadership for living richly and calls on Russians to strike for more political rights and higher living standards.

The creduely-stencilled letter has turned up in about 1,000 mailboxes in the past two weeks, according to Moscow sources who received copies and turned them over to Western newsmen.

The letter bears no individual name and is signed only by The Citizens Committee.

Dissident political sources said the committee is not part of their tiny underground movement.

They said the group includes technicians and engineers upset with Soviet political controls and living standards.

The sources said none of the authors had been arrested, despite a search by secret police.

"Esteemed citizens, the working people of the Western countries have achieved their high living standards and ample political freedoms through struggle, the tried and tested way being strike and demonstration," the letter said.

It noted the riots in Poland in December, 1970, after food prices were raised and said that action led both to economic concessions and a change in political leadership.

MONEY 'WASTED'

The letter blamed the Soviet leadership for wasting money on its own comfort, and on foreign aid and expenditures in Vietnam, Egypt, Syria, Cuba and elsewhere.

The letter said the party leadership had failed to deliver on 10-year-old promises of "fabulous material abundance" and said instead the cost of living had risen sharply in the same period.

"We are the second most-developed country in the world, but by standard of living, Soviet workers rank only 26th," it said.

"Our worker can buy for his wages seven to 12 times less than an average American, British and West German worker . . ."

It said working men in those countries had bigger apartments, more automobiles and better pensions and fringe benefits than Soviet workers.

"Esteemed citizens, fight for your rights and for better living conditions," the letter said.

"Without struggle we will increasingly become the slaves of the Communist Party leadership . . . pass this leaflet on to as many people as you can."

DEVIL'S HOLE FISH ICE-AGE HOLDOVER

WASHINGTON (WP) — Can the rare Devil's Hole pupfish be fooled into thinking that a spring-fed concrete tank is their ancestral home? The U.S. interior department hopes so.

The department announced Monday that it will duplicate as near as possible the habitat of the little fish that cling to a precarious life at the bottom of a limestone cavern 50 feet below ground water level in Devil's Hole, Nev.

The fish, no bigger than a little finger, are a remnant of the ice-age and no more than 500 of them survive. Interior wants to establish a population separate from that of Devil's Hole to assure that a catastrophe will not cause extinction of the species.

Pupfish eat and spawn on natural ledges a few inches below the water surface in Devil's Hole.

The water level has been threatened by the pumping of underground water supplies for irrigation and the slightest drop could be crucial.

Scientists want to save the pupfish for their genetic secrets that have permitted them to survive since glacial times and adapt to water ranging from freezing to well over 100 degrees.

Underground Test Ban Hinted

WASHINGTON (WP) — The United Nations resumes disarmament talks in Geneva today amid growing speculation that the United States and the Soviet Union are about to begin bilateral talks aimed at halting the underground testing of nuclear weapons.

"The start of negotiations is not too far off," said one source close to nuclear armament in the Nixon administration.

"I don't think anybody can say what they'll produce at this point, but both sides seem interested in dicussing at least scaling down the size and number of atomic tests."

Administration sources said the U.S. and Soviet Union have turned serious on the subject of nuclear test limitations in the wake of the SALT agreement that limits the number of strategic missile forces both countries now are allowed to have.

PLACE LIMITS

One Administration source said there was no point in attempting to get a test ban as long as there were no limits placed on the numbers of strategic weapons.

"As long as you had an open-ended strategic weapons force," he explained, "you had a situation where a ban on weapons testing would carry no weight as an arms control measure."

Just when or where bilateral talks to limit nuclear testing might begin in anybody's guess right now, but several sources speculated that the first overtures to such talks have already taken place, quite possibly during the talks that led to the SALT agreement in Moscow last month.

Whatever the nature of the talks, the test ban that would be discussed at first by the U.S. and the soviet Union is what disarmament experts call a "quota and threshold" test ban.

This means that the U.S. and Soviet Union would not enter into talks calling for an all-out ban on underground testing but would instead attempt to negotiate a treaty that would limit the size and number of tests each country could conduct each year.

Opposition Blasts Aimed At The 'Silent Minister'

OTTAWA (CP) — Refusal by Revenue Minister Herb Gray to answer questions on the attitude of provinces towards the government proposal to screen foreign takeovers aroused the ire of opposition MPs Monday night.

"A fraud and a runaround," said usually mild-mannered Gordon Fairweather (PC—Fundy Royal) just before walking out of the meeting of the Commons finance committee which is studying the bill.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said he was astounded at the refusal of Gray to tell the committee the results of his visits to each province to explain and discuss the bill.

Mr. Fairweather, who started off the questioning, wanted to know the position taken by provinces with high unemployment and low-capital inflows. He asked particularly about New Brunswick.

After several similar questions, Mr. Fairweather said the only reason Mr. Gray had been invited as a witness was to give the members an insight into provincial thinking.

If the minister would not do that, the proceedings were a farce, said Mr. Fairweather.

In his opening statement, Gray said the proposed legislation was an important addition to previous government action to control foreign investment.

The review process by which the government would screen proposed takeovers of Canadian firms by foreigners was flexible and would ensure that only those which generated suitable benefits to Canada would take place.

He also said Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin would tell the committee today what, if any, amendments the government proposed as the result of numerous briefs the committee heard in the last two weeks.

Rental Board Backed

Oak Bay council decided Monday to support the creation of a Rental Accommodation Advisory Bureau with funding being provided under the intermunicipal cost-sharing formula.

It was emphasized that the bureau should run for one year on a trial basis.

Council was told by Mayor Frances Elford that Victoria Ald. Alf Hood, who advocates that such a board be set up, estimates the operating costs would be $12,000 a year.

Aldermen felt that the cost-sharing formula could be abolished later when it is established the amount of use each municipality makes of the board's services.

Once this was established, they said, costs should be shared on a usage basis.

Canoe Race Draws 3,000

DUNCAN—More than 3,000 turned out on Saturday and Sunday during Cowichan Indian days to watch Vancouver Island and B.C. 11-man racing canoe championships.

Endeavor from the Musqueam Reserve won the Island championship while Lady Esther from Saanich won the B.C. racing championship.

Other winners during the two-day festivities were: Six-paddle, women, St. Michael; single paddle, women, Mona Sampson, Shell Beach; single-paddle, men, Wayne Charlie, Duncan; double-paddle, women, Cecilia and Phyllis Harry, Malahat; mixed double-paddle, Cecilia Harry and Richard George, Cowichan; double-paddle, men, Arvid and Wayne Charlie, Cowichan Klootchman' 11-paddle, St. Michael, followed by Mermaid and Prince Charles of Nanaimo; single-paddle marathon, men, Wayne Charlie.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

David John Gray, 21, pleaded guilty in provincial court Monday to possession of a narcotic — marijuana seeds found in his wallet.

Evidence showed Gray left his wallet in the Fisgard Street police station while he was there June 17 filling out an accident report form. When he went back to get it, police already had determined, in the course of an examination for identification papers, that it contained a packet of marijuana plant seeds.

Judge William Ostler asked the accused whether he had planned to plant the seeds, which Gray said had been given to him by a friend months ago and subsequently forgotten about.

"I toyed with the idea," Gray said.

"You should toy with less-damaging ideas," Ostler said in fining Gray $200 or ordering him to spend one month in jail.

Rogers Raps Defence Cash Roadblock

By MURREY MARDER

WASHINGTON (WP)—U.S. Secretary of state William Rogers launched the case for ratification of the American-Soviet nuclear arms treaty Monday with easy sailing for everything but new weapons spending to accompany it, including a defence ring around Washington.

The "possibility of nuclear war has been dramatically reduced by the treaty" concluded at the Moscow Summit conference last month, Rogers told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"I have no question about the usefulness and the validity of the treaty itself," replied Chairman J. William Fulbright.

But, if the agreement is "to be used as an excuse for a greatly increased arms race," Fulbright said, "I am worried about it."

Fulbright's concern about an "accelerated program for the development of a new type of missile submarine called Trident, and of a new super-sounding bomber (the B-1) to replace our B-52 fleet," was shared by many committee members.

There is "an inherent inconsistency," said Fulbright, in building more nuclear weapons when the ant-ballistic missile treaty concedes "that the United States and the Soviet Union are indeeds each other's hostage for reasonable behavior in a nuclear era."

Rogers insisted there is no inconsistency at all. On the contrary, he claimed, the United States achieved the ABM treaty, and the accompanying five-year limitation on offensive missiles, by negotiating "from a position of strength."

Rogers said Soviet chief Leonid Brezhnev told President Nixon in Moscow that the Soviet Union "plans to proceed" with all nuclear programs not barred by the agreements," "and that we should" also.

Mexico Hails U.S. Talks

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mexican President Luis Echeverria Alvarez Monday hailed understandings he reached in Washington as "a reborn good neighbor" policy.

Echeverria, coming to the end of his week-long official visit to the United States, addressed a cheering crowd of 1,200 at a formal banquet hosted by California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

About 100 demonstrators, mostly from Mexican-American groups, picketed the hotel where the Mexican presidential party is staying, saying they were protesting the detention of "political prisoners" in Mexico.

Echeverria told the banquet he was gratified by the hospitality shown him on his U.S. visit, adding:

"And now, upon our return from Washington, after having reached agreements which will be beneficial to both nations and for which Mexico has been waiting a long time, we can speak of a reborn good neighborliness."

Democrats Sue GOP

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The Democrats have filed a $1 million damage suit against the committee to re-elect President Nixon and five men accused of breaking into the Democratic party headquarters.

Lawrence O'Brien, Democratic national chairman, filed the suit citing civil rights laws on voting rights, invasion of privacy and the right for protection against wire tapping.

The suit named the committee, headed by former attorney-general, John Mitchell, together with five men apprehended in the Democrat offices including James McCord, a security officer for the Republic committee.

In Miami, meanwhile, secret service agents broke up a counterfeit ring's plan to flood the Democratic convention next month with $400,000 worth of bogus $10 and $20 bills.

The officers seized nearly $400,000 in counterfeit money, photographic plates and other parapehernalia used to print, dye and cut it. Five men have been arrested in connection with the bogus money plan.

Secret service supervisor Bob Newbrand said today: "Thank goodness we caught them before the convention."

O'Brien told a Washington news conference this morning "that as far as I am conserned, there is certainly in every sense a clear line (in the alleged wire tapping incident) to the committee to re-elect President Nixon and therein developing a clear line to the White House."

The other four men named in the suit and arrested along with McCord are Bernard Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Frank Sturgis and Virgilio Gonzales. All are now in jail.

A consultant to White House special counsel Charles Colson is listed in the address books of two of the five men arrested in the alleged bugging attempt.

Federal sources close to the investigation said the address books contain the name and home telephone number of Howard E. Hunt with the notiations, "W. White" and W.H.

Hunt worked for the Central Intelligence Agency from 1949 to 1970. All five suspects have had links to the CIA.

In other developments:

It was reported that one of the five suspects, Martinez, contacted University of Miami officials two weeks ago seeking housing for about 3,000 Young Republicans during the Republican national convention.

Former CIA employee and FBI agent McCord, the suspect who works for the Republicans as a security co-ordinator, served

Price, Wage Curbs Likely Rejected

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The Prices and Incomes Commission today issued a report, indicating that the government has decided against imposing wage and price controls to combat inflation.

The commission, in a final report before its terms of reference expire at the end of this month, said that the curbs might have worked — but only if they had been solidly supported by public opinion and government determination.

The fact that the commission is being disbanded is, in itself, a clue as to intended government action.

Should the Trudeau government have intended to impose the controls, it would have kept chairman John Young and his band of commissioners at work enforcing the legislation.

As it is, th commission is to be replaced by a small band of civil servants.

MAIN THEME

Main theme of the report tabled in the Commons today by Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford is a simple one: Canadians will just have to learn to live with inflation.

The commission noted that in 1969 it had attempted to get a national consensus in support of voluntary price and income restraints but met with only partial success.

It also pointed out that programs of regional economic expansion, manpower retraining and similar schemes might reduce the degree of unemployment and increase supply of goods and services to ease the pressure on rising prices.

However, programs of this nature were still in the experimental stage, the report added, "and it is too early to judge with certainty what can be accomplished."

CRITICAL RANGE

Moreover, it warned, "the possibility of increasingly-severe inflation will remain if the public and their elected representatives take an over-enthusiastic view of the extent to which this critical range of unemployment has been reduced."

The commission said that it does not believe powerful labor unions and big business can continue to push up costs and prices regardless of the amount of demand pressure or slack in the economy.

Temporary controls, it pointed out, could work effectively and then be phased out with a minimum risk of renewed inflation if only two essential conditions are met:

—First, the public must be convinced they are necessary and must trust their government.

—Second, the government must demonstrate a capacity to maintain price and cost stability.

NEWS BRIEFS

Fourth Victim

LONDON (UPI) — A fourth Canadian was identified today as among the 118 victims of Sunday's crash of a British Eruropean Airways Trident near London. Leslie Jackson, a Canadian citizen living in Belgium, was identified as the fourth Canadian victim.

Trials Planned

DACCA (Reuter) — Sheik Mujigur Rahman, prime minister of Bangladesh, says he intends to go ahead with the trial of 1,500 Pakistani prisoners on charges of war crimes.

Dispute Near End?

MONTREAL (CP) — The five-month old dispute between the CBC and its technicians could be settled by the end of the week, says Robert Bouchard, chief technician negotiator.

87 Bodies Found

HONG KONG (AP) — Eighty-seven bodies have been found but 165 persons are still listed as missing today after four days of record downpours, mudslides and collapsing buildings in this British colony.

TIME STILLED —ONE SECOND

GREENWICH, England (Reuter) — Time will stand still for one second at midnight June 30 — to allow the world to catch up with it.

Worldwide radio time signals will be cut by one second to maintain the signals within agreed limits of Greenwich Mean Time, with the insertion of a "leap second."

The earth is currently losing three-thousandths of a second a day and, by the end of June, the signals will be more than six-tenths of a second fast on GMT.

Irish Pubs Blasted

BELFAST (CP) — Powerful bomb blasts damaged pubs in two country towns in Northern Ireland during the night after one British soldier was killed and four were wounded in an ambush by guerrillas in Belfast.

Fourteen persons were injured — none of them seriously — in the explosion at Ballymena, northwest of Belfast. Nobody was hurt at Dunnamanagh, County Tyrone.

The bomb at Ballymena, more than 100 pounds of gelignite planted in a stolen car, also wrecked the employment bureau and damaged 16 nearby homes.

The British soldier died when a volley of bullets hit troops patrolling Belfast's Brompton Park area. A military spokesman said the four wounded men were not hurt seriously.

At least 374 persons, including 96 soldiers, have died in the last three years of strife in Northern Ireland.

Members of the Irish Republican Army in Belfast's Crumlin Road jail ended a 36-day hunger strike today after they were granted the privileges of political prisoners.

In Dublin a special criminal court freed Joe Cahill, 52, a former commander of the Belfast IRA provisions, after finding him innocent of inciting persons to join the illegal IRA.

'I'M A JUNKIE' SAYS ROBBER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A knife-wielding bandit hijacked a milk truck Monday and robbed the driver of $70.

Peter Brennan told police his delivery run was interrupted when the man jumped aboard, put a knife to his throat and ordered him to drive down an alley.

"I don't want to take your money, but I have to because I'm a junkie," his unwanted passenger told him.

Brennan said the bandit jumped off after relieving him of $70 in company receipts.

U.S. Rejects Spill Request

OTTAWA (UPI) — The U.S. government has rejected a Canadian request to refer the question of oil spills on the high seas to the International Joint Commission, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday.

Sharp told the House of Commons he was "disappointed that the United States has rejected Canadian proposals to refer these problems to the IJC."

Instead, he said, the U.S. authorities had suggested the Environment Minister Jack Davis meet Russell Train, the chairman of the Council of Environmental Problems.

Canada had been pushing for the United States to support the reference to the IJC for some time. Sharp said letters were sent to the United States government on May 4 and May 19.

B.C. Liberal leader David Anderson, who as Esquimalt-Saanich MP has fought long and hard over the tanker issue, said today Canadian officials should have realized that Washington would never refer as important an issue as that to the IJC.

"There is no way the Americans would refer a security issue to something like the IJC, which has 50 per cent Canadian membership," he said.

WISHFUL

Hopes of such a thing happening, he said, are "wishful and pious."

Also in Victoria, a joint meeting on oil spill problems decided Monday a "memorandum of co-operation" on spills will be drafted and presented to the governments of British Columbia and Washington State.

According to a press release following the meeting, the memorandum will cover the need for full co-operation in developing programs to combat oil spills and the need to exchange "all relevant information."

SOCRED DEFECTS

Another Social Credit party member has defected to the Conservatives.

Stan Pavlis, secretary and fifth vice-president of the South Peace River Social Credit Constituency, announced his resignation Monday, saying problems in the local agricultural industry must be taken before the government by men who "are dedicated rather than adept at politics."

CITY IWA MEN BACK ON JOB

Between 300 and 400 workers at B.C. Forest Products plywood mill on Gorge Road returned to work today.

The mill closed Monday when pickets appeared. But there were no pickets this morning and the day shift went to work, company and union officials said.

Elsewhere on southern Vancouver Island, about 1,000 workers were on strike while another 1,000 were on the job.

Officials of Local 1-118, International Woodworkers of America, said B.C. Forest Products, Van Isle Moulding and Moore Whittington were working but Sooke Forest Products, Victoria Plywood, Plumper Bay Sawmill, Butler Brother Logging and CPS-Rayonier logging were closed.

About 11,000 coast loggers and millworkers have gone on strike since the master contract expired last Wednesday.

Airport Hustle Restored

Times News Services

Major Canadian airports came back to life today as airlines scheduled extra flights to accommodate travellers grounded by the 24-hour pilots' strike for more stringent anti-hijacking measures.

The world wide pilots' strike ended at 11 p.m. PDT Monday and airports, as quiet as libraries since the strike began at 11 p.m. Sunday, resumed business on an increased scale.

Charles Simpson, president of the 2,000-member Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association, called the protest "very successful."

In Montreal the International Civil Aviation Organization announced Monday it has taken steps to permit member nations to impose sanctions against countries which cooperate with air pirates and extortionists.

In its statement Monday, the 124-member body said its 27-member governing council "has set the stage for legal procedures which will permit states to take sanctions through and within the framework of ICAO against any recalcitrant country which hpothetically might harbor, give refuge to or encourage perpetrators of unlawful interferece with international civil avaiation."

Bombers Before Pact: Laird

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird testified today Congress should reject the missile agreement signed with Moscow unless it is willing to pay $1.3 billion more for new U.S. bombers and submarines. (See also Page 32).

Pressed at a Senate Armed Services Committee hearing on the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, Laird said he could not recommend approval of the treaty unless Congress appropriates funds for the new B-1 bomber and Trident submarine.

If Congress refused to fund the costly projects, he said he would recommend the construction of all 12 antiballistic missile sites originally contemplated. The SALT agreements limit the United States and the Soviet Union to two ABM sites each.

Construction of all 12 sites would mean rejection of the accords which President Nixon signed with the Soviet leaders last month.

All three programs — the SALT treaty limiting defensive ABM missilery, the executive agreement freezing deployment of offensive missiles for five years and the new strategic weapons — are tied together, Laird said.

"Without one, I believe the national security requirements are jeopardized," he said.

S. Viets Push Back Red Tanks

SAIGON (UPI) — A force of 3,300 South Vietnamese marines fought three sharp battles in Quang Tri province today with tank-led North Vietnamese troops and destroyed 18 tanks with aid of some of the heaviest U.S. air and naval support of the war, front dispatches reported.

The marines were in the third day of a government drive to recapture the province which fell to the North Vietnamese May 1. President Nguyen Van Thieu announced plans Monday for a three-month campaign to recapture all lost territory.

The South Vietnamese had mighty support from B52s which flew a record 30 raids in South Vietnam, mostly in direct support of the marines, and attacked just north of the Demilitarized Zone today for the 13th consecutive day — another record.

The fighting was fierce along a 13-mile front, with marines driving as far as five miles into Quang Tri, the only province to fall to the Communist offensive. They were driven back by tank-led Communist counter-attacks, regrouped and attacked again and won back the lost territory.

The marines are considered South Vietnam's best fighting force and it was the marines who stood their ground during the fighting that led to the loss of Quang Tri when the 3rd Infantry Division broke and ran.

Ashcroft Water Rationed

ASHCROFT (CP) — Emergency water rationing measures were implemented Monday in this village of 3,000, hours after the water supply was knocked out of order by the high waters of the Thompson River.

The Ashcroft and District General Hospital was without any water for four hours and 465 students at the elementary school had an unscheduled day off.

Mayor Oscar Johansen said the regular pumping system finally ground to a halt Sunday night after several weeks of high river levels had deposited 3½ feet of silt and sand in the village's gravity-intake well.

Johansen appealed to civil defence officials in Kamloops for help while crews rigged up a fire engine to the water system and began taking untreated water out of the river.

Residents were warned to boil the water before using it for cooking or drinking because of the lack of chlorine treatment.

The possibility of major flooding in the Fraser Valley continued to lessen today as the Fraser River dropped to 23.46 feet, down from Sunday's level of 22.85 feet.

Have French Seized Greenpeace?

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Greenpeace III, protesting against a French nuclear test in the south Pacific may have been seized by the French navy, Heath Macquarrie (PC — Hillsborough) said Monday night.

He was refuting information given the Commons earlier by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, who said the craft, with one Canadian aboard, is in the area of a French nuclear air test scheduled for today but it was hard for the government to know the ship's exact location because it is not Canadian.

Macquarrie, Conservative foreign affairs critic, rose on a point of privilege at the night Commons sitting and said he wanted a government spokesman to set the record straight in view of information he had just received.

That information was that Greenpeace III "is indeed, by the appropriate laws and conventions governing such things, a craft of Canadian registry, a Canadian ship."

"I am further advised that for a worrisome length of time there has been no communication from the Greenpeace III and disturbing rumors of her apprehension by vessels of the French navy."

He asked that the government "move with utmost dispatch to concern itself about the safety and well-being of Canadian citizens aboard this ship in grave danger" and added that an opportunity should be made for an immediate government response to his point of privilege.

In Wellington, New Zealand, the French embassy and the UTA French airline office, were evacuated this morning following threats that the buildings would be bombed to protest the nuclear test on Murauroa Atoll.

Detectives also were investigating an early morning fire which gutted the Auckland offices of UTA.

Police said a witness said he saw a man on a motorcycle throw a flaming object into the offices. One fireman was injured in the blaze.

A newsman at the Wellington Evening Post received an anonymous telephone call saying the French offices in the same building would be firebombed.

In Dunedin, on the east coast of the South Island of New Zealand, the French consulate was also evacuated following a bomb threat.

Writer Sees Victoria as 'Distorted Dream Of Home Concocted by Homesick Englishmen'

By WALTER McKINNON
Times Staff

Ever wondered if Victoria's "Little Bit of Olde England" image is getting across to the rest of the world?

The answer is yes, if the purple prose of New York travel writers can be taken as any indication.

"Victoria is rather like a distorted dream of home concocted by homesick Englishmen who spent their lives supervising the Empire," according to one such scribe. "Whereas Vancouver is determinedly American in style and appearance, Victoria stands staunchly convinced — as was its royal namesake — that 19th-century British is Best."

This introduction to Victoria is from an article on British Columbia to be presented in the July issue of Better Homes and Gardens, a widely-circulated monthly magazine published by Meredith Corporation, Des Moins, Iowa.

It was written by John F. Baker, an author and editor who grew up in England and has for the past 14 years lived in New York.

Baker, who warns his readers that nobody goes to Vancouver Island without "making the pilgrimage to the quaint capital city of Victoria, however untypical of the island it may be," was one of a group of U.S. travel writers who passed through the city several months ago.

★ ★ ★

Upon reading his story, however flattering it may be, one must conclude that his visit was brief indeed and that he didn't get much beyond the Inner Harbor and the Empress Hotel.

Baker concedes that "Some of Victoria can be taken quite seriously, however," compliments the natives on their being "astonishingly green of thumb," offers a plug for Butchart Gardens but completely overlooks the admission-free splendor of Beacon Hill Park.

He was obviously impressed by The Empress and he found both bars, the Bengal Room and the Library Bar. Baker seemed to be a bit confused about the Bengal Room, however.

He calls it "an intimidatingly grand restaurant . . . where it would seem that medals and orders must be compulsory with one's evening dining."

Obviously he didn't stop in for a nightcap in the evening, when he would have found himself cheek to jowl with the blue-jeaned, love-headed younger set.

He had a word or two for Victoria's many architectural triumphs, too.

The Empress, for example, "squatting firmly at the centre of town, is the essence of nostalgic Englishry; a massive Edwardian pile that boasts a Rose Garden, a Conservatory complete with potted plants and elderly ladies in wicker chairs."

Our legislature, Baker writes, is "of choice Gothic-Moorish design, of a kind dear to many an English provincial city . . ."

And he has praise for "the showy, contemporary Provincial Museum, probably the only convincing piece of 20th-century architecture in town. . . ."

In the accommodation department, Baker recommends The Empress, The Imperial Inn, "quiet, elegant and not far from the hub of things," and The Olde England Inn, "a good shot at an English country hotel, with suits of armor, fine period furniture and typical Old Country cooking smells. . . ."

★ ★ ★

Baker's article warns that British Columbia "is a long way from almost anywhere else," but worth the trip.

Thanks, John . . .

And he closes with another plug for Victoria, as the best place to end a B.C. visit.

"It's the most foreign of western Canadian cities, and therefore leaves a pleasant aftertaste of 'abroad'."

Thanks again.

Sampling water at Clover Point where sewage has flowed for 78 years

Outfall Passes Test . . . So Far

Sampling of water from the surface to the sea bed at the mouth of the mile-long Macaulay Point sewer outfall has not turned up any biological problem so far, a University of Victoria biologist said today.

Prof. Derek Ellis said testing includes analysis of algae and samples from the ocean floor as well as water at all levels through the 200-foot depth.

The outfall, 36 inches in diameter, is currently carrying almost 10½ million gallons of sewage daily into the Strait of Juan de Fuca. It has been in operation 10 months, replacing an outfall which discharged sewage a few feet from shore at Macaulay Point in Esquimalt.

Ellis and fellow biologist Jack Littlepage are in charge of an independent evaluation program for the Capital regional district which is measuring the effects of the new outfall. Their testing began a year before the pipe went operational to provide comparative data.

The biologists are also conducting a monitoring program off Clover Point for the pollution control branch. Most of Victoria city's sewage is discharged there just below low tide line.

A control station there also enables them to make sure any pollution found at Macaulay Point isn't originating off Clover Point.

Very high coliform counts (one measure of pollution) continue to be found at Clover Point, Ellis said today. The study there also examines the long-term effects of sewage discharge. The Clover Point outfall has been used since 1894.

The Macaulay Point outfall is authorized under a three-year permit from the pollution control branch. The studies will determine whether a treatment plant is needed.

Elford to Drop Sports Centre Swap Proposal

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Oak Bay's Mayor Frances Elford today conceded defeat in trying to persuade her council to accept a controversial swap proposal by Farmer Construction Ltd.

She said, that as far as she was concerned, the issue is closed.

"This is a sad day dor Oak Bay," she said, "Council has decided not to accept Farmer's outstanding offer, the like of which we'll never have again."

Farmer Construction proposed building a curling-hockey complex free in return for being given the 9.3-acre academy site, now priced at $850,000 by council.

The firm had wanted to build three 12-storey towers and 50 town houses on the site.

A bid to hold a referendum on the swap proposal was defeated at Monday's council meeting. This, said the mayor, meant council had "literally turned down" the project.

The reverendum vote came after more than two hours of debate, heard by more than 100 residents.

Among those opposing the swap was Dr. G. Scott Wallace, Progressive Conservative MP for the municipality and a former alderman.

Wallace, noting that Ald. Douglas Watts had intimated that Oak Bay would be getting a $1 million complex in exchange for $850,000 (the asking price of the academy site), said:

"Nobody in business gives away $150,000" and cautioned "council shouldn't go into this degree of planning with one developer without some other proposal."

Jack Sambrooke and Bert Bertoia, members of the Oak Bay Recreation Action Group, said they were in favor of a recreation complex at this time and Bertoia stressed that if the Farmer proposal was accepted no increase in taxes would be needed to get one.

Ald. John Goult said the issue at stake was not whether council supported a centre. Both he and Ald. Douglas McLelland told the audience that council had commissioned architect John Di Castri to draw up plans for one.

Goult said, "We are getting to the nub now. If we choose to accept the Farmer proposal this council will be under obligation to consider it as a whole. It is simply not a matter of hockey sticks and ice skates for the winter."

Supporting the Farmer proposal, Watts said revenue from the academy site would be in the neighborhood of two mills and another two mills would be saved by the company building the complex.

Ald. Douglas McLelland disagreed:

"Farmer Construction has unwittingly brought the Trojan horse into Oak Bay. If the price is right and we have three highrises, it will be if they have them up there, why can't we have them down here? You're not looking at two mills, you're looking at a ring of 15 highrises."

After McLelland had stressed that nobody on council was against a recreation complex but "the real debate is how you pay for it," Bertoia and other RAG members said they would support any move to get one.

Watts moved the council approve in principle that a referendum be drawn up on the acceptance of Farmer Construction's development of the riding academy property with the proceeds to be used for the recreational centre.

The motion was defeated; the mayor, Watts, and Ald. Norman Pimlott voting for it with Alds. Shirley Dowell, Goult, Smith and McLelland opposed.

GAINS
. . . on 26th anniversary

Gains Named Fire Chief In Saanich

Assistant chief Harold Gains, 53, will take over as chief of Saanich fire department on his 26th anniversary of joining the force Aug. 1, 1946.

Gains was appointed to assume the post of chief Glen Robbins, who retires July 31.

Mayor Hugh Curtis, a member of council's personnel committee, said Gains is "an excellent member and officer of the department."

He was the sole applicant among 15 eligible officers of Saanich fire department invited to compete for the appointment.

Gains was promoted to lieutenant Nov. 1, 1965, and to assistant chief April 2, 1971. He has taken firefighting administration courses at McMaster University and B.C. Institute of Technology, qualifying him for the responsibilities of chief.

Saanich-born, Gains is married with three sons, one living at home, 4116 Cedar Hill Road.

Hospital Posts Under Discussion

Appointment of an assistant executive director at Queen Victoria Hospital will be considered at the next board meeting, chairman Alex Wood said today.

The hospital has been without an assistant for Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, executive director, since Pat Bluett accepted a senior post in Ontario about two years ago.

Wood said the board has been reviewing the administrative positions at the hospital since it took over this spring from the Sisters of St. Ann. While no changes are contemplated, it needs to confirm a number of appointments.

He confirmed that Carl Hortie, acting director of administrative services, has left. He takes a new position at Royal Jubilee Hospital as director of supply services.

Asked about resignation of Sister Mary Doris, director of nursing, Wood said he hoped she could be persuaded not to leave but any comment would have to come from there. She could not be reached for comment.

Many hospitals have medical directors to serve as the link between doctors on staff and the hospital board but Queen Victoria has been without one for about three years.

Trustees Beaten On Ban

Greater Victoria school board was beaten to the punch Monday in getting rid of what some trustees considered an objectionable story in a Grade 5 reader about an Indian who ran into trouble with the law.

The department of education announced earlier in the day the story won't appear in new textbooks.

The story, included in the reader Under Canadian Skies, will be phased out in all existing readers within three years. Objections to the story were that it portrayed all Indians as troublemakers.

Board Transfers 10 Principals

The Greater Victoria school board today announced the transfers of three principals and seven vice-principals in district elementary schools.

Robert Mainwaring, principal of Campus View Elementary, is going to Braefoot Elementary. Braefoot principal Donald McKinnon moves to Rockheights Elementary and Rockheights principal Robert McKee moves to Campus View.

Vice-principal transfers include W. H. Abbott moving from Sir James Douglas Elementary to Willows Elementary, G. C. Chater from Cloverdale to Sir James Douglas, William Kirby from Margaret Jenkins to Cloverdale, Leo Stratholt from Craigflower to Margaret Jenkins, E. S. Shortt from Uplands to Craigflower, W. C. Bell from Quadra to Macaulay and A. G. Mason from Macaulay to Quadra.

E. W. Thomson has been appointed first assistant at Uplands. Garnet Jackson, vice-principal of Willows, has accepted a Department of National Defence teaching job in Europe.

Other transfers will be necessary in the near future as the board Monday night received the resignation of Robert H. Jones, who is leaving Tillicum Elementary for health reasons.

Ask the Times

Q. Can only liquor stores sell beer, wine and hard liquor, and who owns the company that advertises Dial-A-Bottle? L.I.

A. Apart from such places as cocktail bars, dining establishments and beer parlors licenced by the Liquor Control Board, only provincial government liquor stores can sell liquor. However, private individuals or groups can get a banquet or entertainment licence to sell liquor, beer and wine at private parties.

Application forms can be picked up at liquor stores, and then taken to the local police department where you will get a special permit ($1 for beer and wine, and $2 for hard liquor.)

The refreshments cannot be sold for profit.

The Dial-A-Bottle service is privately owned. In Victoria, the manager is Burt Andersen who operates under a franchise from the parent firm in Vancouver. The service holds a business licence from city hall.

Q. Could you please tell me where to write in Ottawa about my old age pension? — G.S.

A. Old age pensions are administered through the regional offices of the department of national health and welfare. You should write to the Victoria office, 1230 Government.

Q. Could you give information on receiving mail while on an extended tour of Europe? Is there such a thing as "general delivery" in Europe.

A. Yes, letters can be mailed "general delivery to European cities. Canada House and British Columbia House in London and the various Canadian embassies, as well as American Express offices, can be used as addresses. The Post Office advises all letters sent to such addresses be marked "Hold For Arrival.

Q. Would you please tell me the mailing address of Jacques Cousteau?—J.P.

A. The Institute Oceanographique, Monaco.

Mine Rescuers Compete June 24

The Canadian championships in mine rescue will be held in Beacon Hill Park June 24, Mines Minister Frank Richter announced today.

Teams will compete representing Alberta, Nova Scotia, Yukon and Northwest Territories.

'Snobbish, Outdated Attitude' Of Home Owners Upsets Citizen

The snobbery of single family housing was cited by a ratepayer at Saanich council meeting Monday, but instead of getting a rise he got compliments.

L. W. Jones, 5-1701 MacKenzie, was given permission to address council on row housing, in which he referred to a remark in April by Mayor Hugh Curtis likening the type of development to wartime housing.

The mayor's reference was to potential development with row houses of a choice building site having a view of the Olympic mountains.

He suggested a better type of development would be more suitable.

Jones said in general statements of this kind, "all are condemned.

"I cannot see any person holding public office, especially a mayor, running down any type of housing," he said.

"Are we (who live in row houses) to be condemned to the less salubrious parts of town?" he asked. He wondered why the site in question was too good for that type of development.

"This way of thinking has got to change. The attitude of single family home owners is snobbish, outdated . . . We've got to look ahead in these things," Jones said.

If that same attitude persisted in Vancouver, the single family sprawl would extend to Chilliwack, he declared.

Curtis apologized to Jones and said his remark was not intended to be harmful toward row housing occupants.

But he accused Jones of being overly sensitive.

"If every member of council stopped to consider every single word, it would be very slow progress indeed," Curtis said.

Ald. Edith Gunning said it was true, there is a snobbery about single family housing.

"The single family dwelling seems to have about it an aura of sanctity."

More people should speak out like Jones about townhouses, she said.

Ald. Frank Waring said Jones had robbed him of his arguments in rebuttal, having been prepared for an attack on row housing.

Democrats Sue GOP

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The Democrats have filed a $1 million damage suit against the committee to re-elect President Nixon and five men accused of breaking into the Democratic party headquarters.

Lawrence O'Brien, Democratic national chairman, filed the suit citing civil rights laws on voting rights, invasion of privacy and the right for protection against wire tapping.

The suit named the committee, headed by former attorney-general John Mitchell, together with five men apprehended in the Democrat offices including James McCord, a security officer for the Republic committee.

In Miami, meanwhile, secret service agents broke up a counterfeit ring's plan to flood the Democratic convention next month with $400,000 worth of bogus $10 and $20 bills.

The officers seized nearly $400,000 in counterfeit money, photographic plates and other parapehernalia used to print, dye and cut it. Five men have been arrested in connection with the bogus money plan.

Secret service supervisor Bob Newbrand said today: "Thank goodness we caught them before the convention."

O'Brien told a Washington news conference this morning "that as far as I am conserned, there is certainly in every sense a clear line (in the alleged wire tapping incident) to the committee to re-elect President Nixon and therein developing a clear line to the White House."

The other four men named in the suit and arrested along with McCord are Bernard Barker, Eugenio Martinez, Frank Sturgis and Virgilio Gonzales. All are now in jail.

A consultant to White House special counsel Charles Colson is listed in the address books of two of the five men arrested in the alleged bugging attempt.

Federal sources close to the investigation said the address books contain the name and home telephone number of Howard E. Hunt with the notations, "W. White" and W.H.

Hunt worked for the Central Intelligence Agency from 1949 to 1970. All five suspects have had links to the CIA.

In other developments:

It was reported that one of the five suspects, Martinez, contacted University of Miami officials two weeks ago seeking housing for about 3,000 Young Republicans during the Republican national convention.

Former CIA employee and FBI agent McCord, the suspect who works for the Republicans as a security co-ordinator, served

Price, Wage Curbs Likely Rejected

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The Prices and Incomes Commission today issued a report, indicating that the government has decided against imposing wage and price controls to combat inflation.

The commission, in a final report before its terms of reference expire at the end of this month, said that the curbs might have worked — but only if they had been solidly supported by public opinion and government determination.

The fact that the commission is being disbanded is, in itself, a clue as to intended government action.

Should the Trudeau government have intended to impose the controls, it would have kept chairman John Young and his band of commissioners at work enforcing the legislation.

As it is, the commission is to be replaced by a small band of civil servants.

MAIN THEME

Main theme of the report tabled in the Commons today by Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford is a simple one: Canadians will just have to learn to live with inflation.

The commission noted that in 1969 it had attempted to get a national consensus in support of voluntary price and income restraints but met with only partial success.

It also pointed out that programs of regional economic expansion, manpower retraining and similar schemes might reduce the degree of unemployment and increase supply of goods and services to ease the pressure on rising prices.

However, programs of this nature were still in the experimental stage, the report added, "and it is too early to judge with certainty what can be accomplished."

CRITICAL RANGE

Moreover, it warned, "the possibility of increasingly-severe inflation will remain if the public and their elected representatives take an over-enthusiastic view of the extent to which this critical range of unemployment has been reduced."

The commission said that it does not believe powerful labor unions and big business can continue to push up costs and prices regardless of the amount of demand pressure or slack in the economy.

Temporary controls, it pointed out, could work effectively and then be phased out with a minimum risk of renewed inflation if only two essential conditions are met:

—First, the public must be convinced they are necessary and must trust their government.

Second, the government must demonstrate a capacity to maintain price and cost stability.

'I'M A JUNKIE' SAYS ROBBER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A knife-wielding bandit hijacked a milk truck Monday and robbed the driver of $70.

Peter Brennan told police his delivery run was interrupted when the man jumped aboard, put a knife to his throat and ordered him to drive down an alley.

"I don't want to take your money, but I have to because I'm a junkie," his unwanted passenger told him.

Brennan said the bandit jumped off after relieving him of $70 in company receipts.

U.S. Rejects Spill Request

OTTAWA (UPI) — The U.S. government has rejected a Canadian request to refer the question of oil spills on the high seas to the International Joint Commission, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday.

Sharp told the House of Commons he was "disappointed that the United States has rejected Canadian proposals to refer these problems to the IJC."

Instead, he said, the U.S. authorities had suggested the Environment Minister Jack Davis meet Russell Train, the chairman of the Council of Environmental Problems.

Canada had been pushing for the United States to support the reference to the IJC for some time. Sharp said letters were sent to the United States government on May 4 and May 19.

B.C. Liberal leader David Anderson, who as Esquimalt-Saanich MP has fought long and hard over the tanker issue, said today Canadian officials should have realized that Washington would never refer as important an issue as that to the IJC.

"There is no way the Americans would refer a security issue to something like the IJC, which has 50 per cent Canadian membership," he said.

WISHFUL

Hopes of such a thing happening, he said, are "wishful and pious."

Also in Victoria, a joint meeting on oil spill problems decided Monday a "memorandum of co-operation" on spills will be drafted and presented to the governments of British Columbia and Washington State.

According to a press release following the meeting, the memorandum will cover the need for full co-operation in developing programs to combat oil spills and the need to exchange "all relevant information."

SOCRED DEFECTS

Another Social Credit party member has defected to the Conservatives.

Stan Pavlis, secretary and fifth vice-president of the South Peace River Social Credit Constituency, announced his resignation Monday, saying problems in the local agricultural industry must be taken before the government by men who "are dedicated rather than adept at politics."

CITY IWA MEN BACK ON JOB

Between 300 and 400 workers at B.C. Forest Products plywood mill on Gorge Road returned to work today.

The mill closed Monday when pickets appeared. But there were no pickets this morning and the day shift went to work, company and union officials said.

Elsewhere on southern Vancouver Island, about 1,000 workers were on strike while another 1,000 were on the job.

Officials of Local 1-118, International Woodworkers of America, said B.C. Forest Products, Van Isle Moulding and Moore Whittington were working but Sooke Forest Products, Victoria Plywood, Plumper Bay Sawmill, Butler Brother Logging and CPS-Rayonier logging were closed.

About 11,000 coast loggers and millworkers have gone on strike since the master contract expired last Wednesday.

NEWS BRIEFS

Fourth Victim

LONDON (UPI) — A fourth Canadian was identified today as among the 118 victims of Sunday's crash of a British European Airways Trident near London. Leslie Jackson, a Canadian citizen living in Belgium, was identified as the fourth Canadian victim.

Trials Planned

DACCA (Reuter) — Sheik Mujibur Rahman, prime minister of Bangladesh, says he intends to go ahead with the trial of 1,500 Pakistani prisoners on charges of war crimes.

Dispute Near End?

MONTREAL (CP) — The five-month old dispute between the CBC and its technicians could be settled by the end of the week, says Robert Bouchard, chief technician negotiator.

87 Bodies Found

HONG KONG (AP) — Eighty-seven bodies have been found but 165 persons are still listed as missing today after four days of record downpours, mudslides and collapsing buildings in this British colony.

Airport Hustle Restored

Times News Services

Major Canadian airports came back to life today as airlines scheduled extra flights to accommodate travellers grounded by the 24-hour pilots' strike for more stringent anti-hijacking measures.

The world wide pilots' strike ended at 11 p.m. PDT Monday and airports, as quiet as libraries since the strike began at 11 p.m. Sunday, resumed business on an increased scale.

Charles Simpson, president of the 2,000-member Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association, called the protest "very successful."

In Montreal the International Civil Aviation Organization announced Monday it has taken steps to permit member nations to impose sanctions against countries which co-operate with air pirates and extortionists.

In its statement Monday, the 124-member body said its 27-member governing council "has set the stage for legal procedures which will permit states to take sanctions through and within the framework of ICAO against any recalcitrant country which hypothetically might harbor, give refuge to or encourage perpetrators of unlawful interference with international civil aviation."

TIME STILLED —ONE SECOND

GREENWICH, England (Reuter) — Time will stand still for one second at midnight June 30 — to allow the world to catch up with it.

Worldwide radio time signals will be cut by one second to maintain the signals within agreed limits of Greenwich Mean Time, with the insertion of a "leap second."

The earth is currently losing three-thousandths of a second a day and, by the end of June, the signals will be more than six-tenths of a second fast on GMT.

Irish Pubs Blasted

BELFAST (CP) — Powerful bomb blasts damaged pubs in two country towns in Northern Ireland during the night after one British soldier was killed and four were wounded in an ambush by guerrillas in Belfast.

Fourteen persons were injured — none of them seriously — in the explosion at Ballymena, northwest of Belfast. Nobody was hurt at Dunnamanagh, County Tyrone.

The bomb at Ballymena, more than 100 pounds of gelignite planted in a stolen car, also wrecked the employment bureau and damaged 16 nearby homes.

The British soldier died when a volley of bullets hit troops patrolling Belfast's Brompton Park area. A military spokesman said the four wounded men were not hurt seriously.

Bombers Before Pact: Laird

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird testified today Congress should reject the missile agreement signed with Moscow unless it is willing to pay $1.3 billion more for new U.S. bombers and submarines. (See also Page 32)

Pressed at a Senate Armed Services Committee hearing on the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, Laird said he could not recommend approval of the treaty unless Congress appropriates funds for the new B-1 bomber and Trident submarine.

If Congress refused to fund the costly projects, he said he would recommend the construction of all 12 antiballistic missile sites originally contemplated. The SALT agreements limit the United States and the Soviet Union to two ABM sites each.

Construction of all 12 sites would mean rejection of the accords which President Nixon signed with the Soviet leaders last month.

All three programs — the SALT treaty limiting defensive ABM missilery, the executive agreement freezing deployment of offensive missiles for five years and the new strategic weapons — are tied together, Laird said.

"Without one, I believe the national security requirements are jeopardized," he said.

S. Viets Push Back Red Tanks

SAIGON (UPI) — A force of 3,300 South Vietnamese marines fought three sharp battles in Quang Tri province today with tank-led North Vietnamese troops and destroyed 18 tanks with aid of some of the heaviest U.S. air and naval support of the war, front dispatches reported.

The marines were in the third day of a government drive to recapture the province which fell to the North Vietnamese May 1. President Nguyen Van Thien announced plans Monday for a three-month campaign to recapture all lost territory.

The South Vietnamese had mighty support from B52s which flew a record 30 raids in South Vietnam, mostly in direct support of the marines, and attacked just north of the Demilitarized Zone today for the 13th consecutive day — another record.

The fighting was fierce along a 13-mile front, with marines driving as far as five miles into Quang Tri, the only province to fall to the Communist offensive. They were driven back by tank-led Communist counter-attacks, regrouped and attacked again and won back the lost territory.

The marines are considered South Vietnam's best fighting force and it was the marines who stood their ground during the fighting that led to the loss of Quang Tri when the 3rd Infantry Division broke and ran.

Ashcroft Water Rationed

ASHCROFT (CP) — Emergency water rationing measures were implemented Monday in this village of 3,000, hours after the water supply was knocked out of order by the high waters of the Thompson River.

The Ashcroft and District General Hospital was without any water for four hours and 465 students at the elementary school had an unscheduled day off.

Mayor Oscar Johansen said the regular pumping system finally ground to a halt Sunday night after several weeks of high river levels had deposited 3½ feet of silt and sand in the village's gravity-intake well.

Johansen appealed to civil defence officials in Kamloops for help while crews rigged up a fire engine to the water system and began taking untreated water out of the river.

Residents were warned to boil the water before using it for cooking or drinking because of the lack of chlorine treatment.

The possibility of major flooding in the Fraser Valley continued to lessen today as the Fraser River dropped to 22.46 feet, down from Sunday's level of 22.85 feet.

Have French Seized Greenpeace?

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Greenpeace III, protesting against a French nuclear test in the south Pacific may have been seized by the French navy, Heath Macquarrie (PC — Hillsborough) said Monday night.

He was refuting information given the Commons earlier by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, who said the craft, with one Canadian aboard, is in the area of a French nuclear air test scheduled for today but it was hard for the government to know the ship's exact location because it is not Canadian.

Macquarrie, Conservative foreign affairs critic, rose on a point of privilege at the night Commons sitting and said he wanted a government spokesman to set the record straight in view of information he had just received.

That information was that Greenpeace III "is indeed, by the appropriate laws and conventions governing such things, a craft of Canadian registry, a Canadian ship."

"I am further advised that for a worrisome length of time there has been no communication from the Greenpeace III and disturbing rumors of her apprehension by vessels of the French navy."

He asked that the government "move with utmost dispatch to concern itself about the safety and well-being of Canadian citizens aboard this ship in grave danger" and added that an opportunity should be made for an immediate government response to his point of privilege.

In Wellington, New Zealand, the French embassy and the UTA French airline office, were evacuated this morning following threats that the buildings would be bombed to protest the nuclear test on Murauroa Atoll.

Detectives also were investigating an early morning fire which gutted the Auckland offices of UTA.

Police said a witness said he saw a man on a motorcycle throw a flaming object into the offices. One fireman was injured in the blaze.

A newsman at the Wellington Evening Post received an anonymous telephone call saying the French offices in the same building would be firebombed.

In Dunedin, on the east coast of the South Island of New Zealand, the French consulate was also evacuated following a bomb threat.
